City to Avoid Tax Increase, Funds Slash, Thomas Says

Senator Calls Capital's Rate Highest; Gas Levy Is Unlikely.

$5,700,000 Grant To City Forecast

Trade Board's, Parker's Figures Submitted at Hearing.

By James D. Secrest.

The threat of additional local taxes was lifted late yesterday when Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committee on District appropriations, stated he saw no need for new or increased levies, while predicting that the District supply bill will be restored to Budget Bureau figures with a lump-sum payment of $5,700,000.

Senator Thomas made his statement upon emerging from an executive session of the sub-committee at which the Washington Board of Trade presented an exhaustive tabular report on the relation of District taxes with comparable cities.

The report, prepared by L. H. Parker, technical adviser to the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, was designed to refute general statements, made often in the House, that the local tax rate is one of the lowest in the country.

"The District tax rate actually is the highest in the country," commented Senator Thomas, "when you eliminate portions of taxes in other comparable cities that go to pay interest on bonds, county and State levies.

Operation Costs Paid.

"The people of the District pay more than those of any other comparable city directly for the usual municipal expenses of maintaining schools, police and fire departments, streets, and the like."

Because of the attitude of Senator Thomas it is not believed that the District Commissioners will press their proposal that the local gasoline tax be raised 1 cent.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen suggested the gas tax as a means of obtaining more revenue to raise the appropriation for unemployment relief from the $1,500,000 voted by the House to $5,000,000 or more.

Senator Thomas said he is opposed to increasing the appropriation for relief above the Budget Bureau figure for two reasons: (1) Congress will be in session in time to make subsequent appropriations early next year if the initial amount is not adequate. (2) Many of those on Washington relief rolls are undeserving or should be returned to their home States.

Impressed by Figures.

The sub-committee chairman was impressed by figures submitted by the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association to the effect that more Negroes are now receiving aid than were counted here in the 1930 census.

Senator Thomas said that figures presented to the sub-committee in support of a larger Federal contribution show that between 60,000 and 70,000 of the public school children enrolled here are sons and daughters of Government employes, many of whom maintain legal residence in the various States.

The figures also show that municipal hospitals and agencies are used by thousands of persons yearly who properly should be cared for by the States from which they come.

The sub-committee chairman believes that the $5,700,000 lump sum recommended by the Budget Bureau has a better chance of enactment into law than the $8,317,500 asked by the commissioners, however, and he indicated that it will be the amount recommended to the Senate.

President Roosevelt is understood to be supporting the Senate sub-committee in a restoration of all District budget items to the estimates submitted by the Budget Bureau.

Jurist Who Helped Void AAA Returned Crop Check Next Day

Copyright, 1936, by The United Press.

Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter in the quiet of his study yesterday explained in minute detail the strange legal quirk which made him a beneficiary of the AAA which he later voted to outlaw as unconstitutional, and why he returned two small checks offered him for wheat curtailment in Montana.

The jurist, the somber black robes of his judicial role replaced by a comfortable tweed jacket, added that he was not seeking to set an example for other farmers who received more than $1,000,000,000 from the Government before the AAA was ended. "I don't even know that they should return them," he said.

The dean of the conservative bloc of the court broke precedent against interviewers to explain his position in a conversation across an old mahogany desk—the one perhaps on which he toiled over the constitutionality of AAA. Before musty volumes that carry the story of the drama of the law, he opened records which gave in minute detail his dealings with the AAA.

Received Next Day.

One paragraph alone was highly relevant to reports that he had returned all sums received before AAA was invalidated. It was written in response to a letter tendering him two checks by Ted E. Collins, an AAA official in Helena, Mont., where his farm lands involved are located.

The check was received January 7, the day after the AAA was condemned by the court, Justice Van Devanter assenting. One was for $14.97, the other for $45.35. The jurist wrote back:

"As the legislation under which the checks were drawn has been declared invalid, I think I should not accept the checks or the payment they are intended to represent."

The payments were the last to be made on two tracts of land which had belonged to Mrs. Van Devanter. Three other tracts have not been tilled for some time. All had originally belonged to Mrs. Van Devanter's mother.

Unruly Crews On U. S. Ships Face Inquiry

Mutiny Charges May Be Placed Against Sailors; Boats Held Safe.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Steamship inspection service officials of the Commerce Department reported last night that a condition of unprecedented minor insubordination had developed aboard American merchant vessels.

They said the situation had been developing over the period of a year. Officials were undecided whether it would be feasible or necessary to take departmental action or turn cases of insubordination over to the Department of Justice. Charges of mutiny can be brought against insubordinate merchant sailors.

It was estimated that 500 instances of alleged insubordination had been reported over a period of months. The United Press was informed that upward of 100 such reports were received yesterday in response to a departmental request for detailed information.

Passengers Not Jeopardized.

Officials did not intimate that safety of passengers on American ships was jeopardized in any way under present conditions. Most of the instances of insubordination were of minor character.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said yesterday: "American ships are absolutely safe. I have requested the full facts concerning the status of insubordination which have been compiled by the bureau."

Roper said no formal investigation was under way, but other officials said they were making an "inquiry."

Joseph B. Weaver, director of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, said they had never before faced such a situation, and that he could not determine any reason for the series of insubordinate acts until he had completed a thorough study of the situation.

Weaver explained that, despite the absence of previous studies, "there is no question that there is much more disturbance now than ever before. The interruption is becoming intolerable. It is a handicap to American commerce and ships are being delayed all over."

Officials Scored Over Delay.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Howard S. Cullman, vice chairman of the National Committee on Safety at Sea, tonight charged the Senate Committee on Commerce and Department of Commerce officials with delay in studying the maritime labor problem.

In a letter to Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the committee, Cullman stated such an investigation was required by the Senate resolutions on the Mohawk and Morro Castle disasters, adopted more than a year ago.

"No effort apparently has been made to study the human equation in safety at sea," he told Copeland. "The responsibility rests with the Senate Committee on Commerce, of which you are chairman."

The New York Post said passengers returning on the President Garfield today told at Jersey City that members of the crew had been insolent during the world voyage and that a walkout delayed the ship at Genoa.

Capt. Gregory Cullen said members of the crew fought in Naples and two were so badly injured they were put in a hospital for a week.

Two men were placed in the brig, Capt. Cullen said, but the American consul general at Naples ordered him to release the seamen and give them two weeks' vacation pay.

In his letter, Cullman wrote that "for many months the National Committee on Safety at Sea has called to the attention of yourself, the Secretary of Commerce and his subordinates the fact that the basis of any safety at sea must be safe crews."

Bill Proposes Five-Day Week For U. S. Aids

McCormack Offers Measure for 250,000 Civilian Employes.

Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, yesterday introduced in the House a bill providing for a five-day week for the 250,000 civilian employes in the executive branch of the Federal Government who are not already on a five-day basis.

Exempted in the McCormack bill are Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service, and any other employe whose duties the President may find make a straight five-day week impractical. The bill provides that there shall be no reductions in salaries for the shorter week.

"I have always been an advocate of a shorter work week," McCormack said. "I believe the Federal Government should standardize its employment practice by adopting a uniform five-day week, thereby putting itself in line with progressive employers and setting a good example in this approach to reduction of unemployment.

"The purpose of the bill is to obtain for other employes of the Federal Government the shorter work week which was recently put into operation for the employes of the postal service."

McCormack sponsored the five-and-one-half day week for Government employes which was put into effect about five years ago.

Firemen Overcome In Basement Blaze

Hampered by gas masks which failed to work properly, firemen early this morning took nearly an hour to subdue a three-alarm blaze in the basement of a building at 614 Twelfth street northwest occupied by American Stores, Inc. Three residents of upper floors were routed by the blaze.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. Charles Simpson, 19, an RKO Keith's Theater usher, saw smoke billowing from above a door and turned in the first alarm. Two additional alarms were pulled by firemen. Two firemen were temporarily overcome by smoke. One was Alvin Kendricks, of the rescue squad.

The upstairs residents, forced out by the fire, included Mathilda Goldbern, 29, who carried out her pet dog when she fled and Barbara Walker, 30. Nearly 1,000 persons watched the blaze. Several were soaked when a hose broke. The street was littered with groceries, which floated out on water poured into the store.

Gov. Landon Wins Favor In Minnesota

Delegates With Mandate for Kansan Elected at 7-District Rally.

Borah Is Jubilant Over Wisconsin Vote; Opens Campaign in Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, April 8.—Sentiment for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas as the Republican Party's Presidential candidate predominated today at seven district conventions which named 14 uninstructed delegates to the national G. O. P. conclave at Cleveland in June.

Landon supporters elected two delegates from each of three districts friendly to the Governor as his party's standard bearer in the 1936 political campaign.

Advocates of Col. Frank Knox's candidacy saw two delegates favoring his nomination, selected in the Seventh District, and the Ninth District named representatives friendly to both Landon and Knox. In each instance, however, delegates were uninstructed.

Primarily, two districts, those centering in Minneapolis and St. Paul, had named four uninstructed delegates who are Landon supporters.

Four delegates at large will be named at the State party convention April 18 to complete the representation.

District Support.

Borah Jubilant.

Chicago, April 8 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah, victor yesterday in his first Midwest primary contest for the Republican Presidential nomination, opened a four-day campaign to win Illinois' preferential vote today with Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, as his rival.

Jubilant over bagging 21 of Wisconsin's 24 delegates to the Republican National Convention, the Senator, before departing for his first address at Peoria, Ill., said he believed his native State would line up with Wisconsin in his favor at its primary next Tuesday.

"I feel that if we can have an untrammeled expression of the people of Illinois we will do the same thing here April 14," said the Idahoan.

The Illinois campaign, political observers here pointed out, differs in several important particulars from that in Wisconsin. There the Senator's opponent was an uninstructed delegation slate selected by the State central committee.

In Illinois the Senator must cross political rapiers with Knox, who has the indorsement of the State central committee, a diligent organization which has been active for months, and which was first in the field. Knox yesterday concluded an extensive swing over the State.

No Opposition.

Both candidates seek the preferential indorsement of their party members and the election of favorable delegates.

Knox headquarters have announced that candidates supporting their choice have been entered in all 25 Congressional districts, which choose two convention delegates each next Tuesday. In some districts three declared Knox men were running with no other opposition.

Borah's Illinois manager, Edgar J. Cook, Chicago attorney, was authority for the statement that Borah-inclined delegate candidates have been entered in 21 district races, but no two in every one.

Thus, political calculators have figured, it would be possible for all Borah supporters to win next Tuesday and Knox still could claim a majority of the State's delegation. The remaining 7 of the 57 total were to be chosen at large in the party's State convention at Peoria, May 1.

The preferential vote, however, while not binding, is by custom in some districts regarded as instructive for the first few ballots at the national convention.

Col. Knox already has 24 delegates from New Hampshire and Maine to the 21 Wisconsin delegates elected yesterday on the Borah ticket.

$10 'Ordained' Penner's Duck, Diploma Mill Inquiry Shows

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, April 8.—The story of how Joe Penner's duck entered the ministry may become a prominent angle of an official investigation.

Definite action will be taken within two weeks to curb activities of self-styled "churches" allegedly ordaining ministers for $10, announced Dr. Isaac Ward. He is chairman of the Los Angeles Ministerial Association committee investigating religious rackets.

"We have obtained enough data to proceed with a definite plan to curb the operations of persons who are bringing other religious denominations into disrepute," Dr. Ward asserted today.

The story of the duck, Googoo, owned by Penner, radio and screen comedian, came out in a report by Dr. U. L. Di Ghilini, investigator for the ministerial association. He said one so-called church had ordained at least 918 persons as ministers in the last year, offering ordinations for $10, a doctor of divinity degree without study for $5 more and the rank of bishop for $15 additional.

In a test of the organization's operations, Penner, a few weeks ago, permitted his duck's name to be used on an ordination application, handled by Di Ghilini. Within two days, the duck became "Rev. Drake Googoo," endowed with permission to perfom the usual ministerial functions, Di Ghilini reported.

Robert J. Bower, general manager of the Better Business Bureau, said the bureau had found attempts at prosecution of "church" rackets difficult because of the constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

Mrs. Maddock Freed in Killing Of Gaming King

State Declines to Prosecute Killeen Slayer; Admits Self-Defense Act.

Courthouse, Rockville, Md., April 8.—Lillian Maddock, confessed slayer of her underworld sweetheart, Edward (Big Eddie) Killeen, who once ruled Washington's gambling fraternity with a mailed fist, stepped from this Montgomery County Courthouse this afternoon a free woman.

She was cleared of a manslaughter charge in the death of Killeen when State's Attorney James H. Pugh, prosecuting the case, confessed a plea of not guilty, which in the parlance of Maryland courts, means a nolle prosse.

Pugh brought the trial of the faded, 36-year-old woman to a dramatic close only a few minutes after the detailed confession Mrs. Maddock made to police, November 23, the day of the killing, had been read to the jury.

"In view of the confession and evidence that has thus far been produced," said Pugh, "I believe that this defendant killed in self-defense. I can't conscientiously ask the jury to convict this woman of manslaughter."

Mrs. Maddock, who had come to the court for her grim bout with the law clad in chic Easter finery, sobbed convulsively.

Weeps for Happiness.

"I am so happy!" she exclaimed, although tears coursed down her heavily-rouged cheeks, and fell on the broad shoulders of Mrs. Hanna Edwards, her former housekeeper, who was at her side during the brief trial.

Represented by State Senator Stedman Prescott and Attorneys Harry Whalen, of Washington, and Barnard Welsh, of this city, Mrs. Maddock came to court today and entered her not guilty plea on the grounds of self-defense.

In his opening statement to the jury, which was not completed until 11:45 a. m., Prescott dwelt upon the life of Killeen, which ended late last autumn in a house he was sharing with the defendant on Conduit road, in Brookmont, when Mrs. Maddock emptied a pistol at him.

He said that after the mistaken-identity murder of Allen B. Wilson, newspaper route carrier, in front of the home of Mickey McDonald, in October, 1934, Killeen's entire nature changed.

It was a gambling war, Prescott said, and the shots that were intended for McDonald killed an innocent man. Mickey was marked, Prescott brought out, and Killeen, who also had powerful enemies in the world of the gaming table, was "a haunted man."

Says Killeen Planned Murders.

Shortly before his death Big Eddie had planned to kill Sam Beard, a rival gambling overlord, and District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, Prescott declared.

"Killeen was a haunted man after the Wilson murder," asserted Prescott. "He woke up at 3 o'clock one morning a few days before he was shot. Mrs. Maddock was asleep beside him, and he struck her in the face. Then he began to rave. He vowed he was going to shoot Sam Beard and kill the district attorney."

He characterized Killeen as "practically the head" of all gambling in Washington until the Wilson murder. Then he pictured the dead man as a haunted mobster, in fear of his life and increasingly brutal.

He told of how Mrs. Maddock,

Suspect Confesses Slaying His Sister

Butler, Pa., April 8 (AP).—State Police Sergt. Martin J. Crowley said today Elmer Double, 58, admitted he killed his 73-year-old sister after a quarrel and threw her body into a well at her farm home.

The New Kensington, Pa., man was held in the Butler County Jail on a charge of murder.

Sergt. Crowley said Double told him he clubbed Mrs. Laura Double Kelly with a broom and a heavy club March 30, left her body crumpled in the yard of her home, then returned the next day to hide it in the well.

Double was arrested in Washington.

Crowley said Mrs. Kelly and her brother quarreled over terms of her will.

Court Denies Hearst's Suit On Messages

Black Questions Official of Crusaders; Contributors Listed.

By Felix Bruner.

As the Senate Lobby Committee renewed its investigation by going into activities of another anti-New Deal organization yesterday, the District of Columbia Supreme Court held that it was powerless to interfere with the committee's activities.

The lobby investigation revealed that the Crusaders, former anti-prohibition organization now engaged in fighting tax increases and other Administration measures, has received contributions running into many thousands of dollars from various business interests, including many of the contributors to the American Liberty League.

The court decision, made orally by Chief Justice Wheat, was in the injunction suits brought against the committee and against the Federal Communications Commission by William Randolph Hearst, publisher, in connection with seizure of telegrams by the committee.

Wheat Dismisses Suit.

Justice Wheat recently granted an injunction against the Western Union Telegraph Co. preventing it from turning over to the committee telegrams of Silas Strawn, Chicago lawyer. In the Hearst case the action sought was directly against the committee. The court, holding that it had no authority to act against the committee, dismissed the suit against the Communications Commission on the ground that the commission no longer is working with the committee in seizing telegrams.

Justice Wheat, cutting arguments short, said that he could not see how the freedom of the press was involved in the Hearst suit.

"You can not say that the proprietor of a newspaper is not amenable to ordinary judicial process, or that his communications with subordinates are sacred," he said.

"No Jurisdiction."

"I will have to hold that the court has no jurisdiction over the Senate committee. I do not know exactly how that leaves us, but I think it is better to leave us without any remedy than it is for a court to assume jurisdiction to try to coerce or control a committee of the Senate. . . . If the Senate committee has been proceeding in a way which some people might regard as unlawful, it is better to let them continue to do it and let that be corrected in some other way than it is for me to proceed in the way that seems to me to be unlawful to attempt to correct what they do that I do not agree with."

Justice Wheat said he believed he had a perfect right to enjoin the Communications Commission from doing something unlawful, but he held that inasmuch as the commission maintains it now has no Hearst telegrams in its possession there was nothing for the court to do. He said the motion for injunction against the commission was denied without prejudice against another petition should the commission resume "activity along the lines of making copies of telegrams for purpose of improper disclosure."

Meanwhile, a House committee which investigated alleged lobbying activities of the American Retail Federation reported that "certainly the proof is conclusive" that the federation is a "super-lobby." It added, however:

Contributors Listed.

"Even though this be true, there is nothing in this record which indicates that the agents of the American Retail Federation will carry on any pernicious or illegal lobbying."

The committee was headed by Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas.

Chief witness before the Senate committee was Fred G. Clark, of Mentor, Ohio, commander of the Crusaders. He was questioned by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, committee chairman; Senator Gibson (Republican), Vermont, and Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington.

He told how the organization had been formed in 1929 to fight prohibition and how just before repeal was voted it was changed into an organization to combat "all forces destructive to sound government." He said the Crusaders have received contributions of about $120,-

League Inquiry On Italians' Use Of Gas Ordered

Britain Seeks Immediate Stop to War in Africa to Discuss Peace.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, April 8.—Great Britain pressed for immediate cessation of Italo-Ethiopian hostilities today after the League of Nations formed a sub-committee to investigate charges Italy was using poison gas in contravention of international rules of warfare.

Britain's action was taken in a meeting of the League's Committee of Thirteen, which resumed its efforts today to open the pathway to peace.

France, outside the committee, in a memorandum replying to the German peace plan, warned Adolf Hitler against the danger of seeking to modify the existing territorial line-up of Europe.

A forenoon meeting of the Committee of Thirteen had hardly begun before Anthony Eden, foreign secretary of Great Britain, raised the question of charges Italy is using poison gas and in the afternoon session he submitted a list of specific occasions on which Premier Mussolini's troops were alleged to have employed it with devastating effect against Ethiopian men, women and children.

Decide on Inquiry.

The committee then decided to appoint a sub-committe of three to study these allegations and also, at the suggestion of Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin of France, to look into the matter of alleged Ethiopian use of dum-dum bullets against the invading Italian troops.

Members meanwhile were agreed that every effort must be made to bring an early cessation of hostilities and real peace negotiatoins.

The committee instructed its peace negotiator, Salvador de Madariaga, of Spain, to see Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the League, and the Ethiopian representatives here tomorrow in an attempt to get from them definite statements of terms under which their countries are willing to make peace.

Eden indicated the British are determined to make every effort to force a cessation of hostilities, beginning peace negotiations "before we leave Geneva. He added that if this attempt fails, Great Britain must reserve decision on what to do next.

Eden submitted a list of allegations charging Italy with using

Attempt to Wreck Husband's Train Laid to Engineer's Wife

By the United Press.

Pensacola, Fla., April 8.—An attempt by an attractive middle-aged wife of a railroad engineer to wreck her husband's train and eliminate the extra man in a love triangle was charged by authorities here tonight.

Mrs. L. W. Vann, of Ferry Pass, the wife, was held on a charge of hiring two Negroes to wreck a Louisville & Nashville train, which was piloted by her husband.

Allen Langston, 70, and Allen Finley, 16, Negroes, were held in connection with the alleged plot. Earl Travis, of Castleberry, Ala., also was held by Sheriff H. E. Gandy, who said he was being investigated in connection with the charges.

"The plot, apparently, was devised so Mrs. Vann could collect $3,000 insurance on her husband and marry another man," the sheriff said.

Mrs. Vann indignantly denied the charges, but authorities claimed to have evidence that the wife paid the Negroes $50 and promised them $500 more "if they did a good job."

Gandy said the Negroes admitted having tried twice to wreck the train with Vann at the throttle. The sheriff said the 70-year-old engineer became suspicious when his train roared over a section of track without mishap, although rails, from which spikes had been removed or loosened, buckled.

According to police here, the attempt was made near Cantonment, Fla., but the alleged wreckers had removed spikes only from the inside rail on a curve, and Vann's train passed over the section safely.

France Urges League Army, New Colonial Distribution

'High Commission' Rule For Europe Urged in Answer to Hitler.

Pledge to Maintain Status Quo Sought

Germany Must Give Up Designs for Expansion, France Insists.

By the United Press.

Paris, April 8.—France's plan to preserve peace through a sweeping new deal for Europe, involving equal distribution of colonial riches and an international army, navy and air force under the League of Nations, was communicated to Britain, Italy and Belgium tonight.

It was France's determined reply to Germany's reoccupation of the demilitarized Rhineland. The note seeks to create a solid front of nations, with or without Germany, pledged to help each other maintain peace by military action against any aggressor.

The plan specifies a minimum of 25 years before any modification of present international law. It is based on recognition of equality of rights, respect for treaties and unbounded mutual assistance. It provides for a European committee, within the League, charged with permanent control and execution of treaties. The committee, by majority vote, could forbid future treaties incompatible with the League Covenant.

Three Principal Proposals.

The plan can be summarized in three words—arbitration, security and disarmament. Main points are:

Solidification of the League of Nations and development of collective security by a great network of mutual military assistance pacts and providing the League with an army, navy and air force "loaned" by the powers.

Creation of a European high commission, sitting within the League of Nations, to become a sort of European super-government or vigilance committee which would decide when the "League's army" should be used against a peace-breaker or aggressor. The sovereign idea of the French plan is that peace is to be assured by force, and that all powers shall lend whatever units of their armies, navies and air forces are necessary to meet any emergency, under direction of the League of Nations and the European super-committee. This force would be variable, depending upon the emergency, but would always be greater than the army, navy and air force of the country to be subdued.

In reply to German Chancellor Adolf Hitler's proposals for consolidation of European peace through bilateral nonaggression pacts, the French plan made ten points, as follows:

1. Recognition of Germany's claim to equality of rights, but demanding that Germany respect treaties.

Asks New Locarno Pact.

2. Insistence that a new Locarno treaty for settlement of the Rhineland crisis be freely negotiated.
3. Compatibility of the Franco-Soviet mutual military assistance pact with the Locarno treaty.
4. Condemnation of the fait accompli policy of German politics.
5. Readiness of France to examine the German proposals, in which the government considers the German contribution to peace is "more apparent than real."
6. Construction of a collective security system instead of bilateral pacts.
7. Security with in the League of Nations, for which Germany's return to Geneva is imperative.
8. Limitation of arms to make war impossible rather than humane.
9. French willingness to examine a basis for Franco-German rapprochement.
10. French refusal to hold a plebiscite on Hitler's proposals, on the ground that the government already is expression of the people's will and therefore recourse to a referendum is unnecessary.

German Press Critical.

Berlin, April 8 (AP).—The German press, critical of the French peace proposals, called them "dialectical shadow boxing" which are "not a reply" to Adolf Hitler, but a "retort."

While official Nazidom awaited English reaction, the press was given sufficient freedom to indicate clearly what the Wilhelmstrasse was thinking.

Corporate Tax Change Studied As Business Aid

House Group Opposes Roosevelt, Bars G.O.P. in Drafting Measure.

Despite flat Administration opposition and disagreement among themselves, Ways and Means Democrats yesterday set about providing preferential tax treatment for debt-ridden corporations adversely affected by the projected corporate earnings tax.

With Republican members excluded, Democratic committeemen topped off the closing of hearings yesterday with an effort to whip their $799,000,000 tax proposals into bill form by the end of the week. In the face of probable losses in revenue, sentiment was rapidly crystallizing in favor of a special 22½ per cent tax rate on corporations burdened with a high standing debt.

Senate Hearing Due Monday.

Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee meanwhile was planning to open Senate tax hearings Monday if the House committee completes its own bill by that time. Fresh controversy awaited the President's proposed corporate earnings tax there. Some Senate Democrats favor remodeling the plan along lines originally proposed by the late Senator Jones, of New Mexico, levying graduated earnings levies in addition to the existing corporate income tax.

Ways and Means Committee difficulties in working out a bill last night centered on a definition of corporate "debts." A majority of Democrats were said to favor a distinction between "standing" obligations and "current operating debts," with preferential treatment accorded only the former.

Another fight was in progress within the committee to provide special treatment for corporations which desired to withhold dividends from distribution in order to make improvements in their own plants and equipment.

Ten days of solid business opposition to the proposed tax "reform" developed vehement criticism of these two features of the sub-committee report, on the ground that as now proposed the tax would encourage corporate indebtedness and check expansion of small companies.

The proposal to impose a flat 22½ per cent rate in lieu of the steeply graduated levies in the pending proposal was made by Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, who would place debt-ridden companies in the same category of corporations prevented by contractual agreements from distributing all or part of their earnings in dividends.

Business Arguments Score.

Following yesterday's round-table conference of committee Democrats, Chairman Robert L. Doughton said business arguments for special rates on earnings used in liquidating outstanding indebtedness "made more impression on the committee than any other objections raised to the tax program."

"A sentiment appears to be in favor of special treatment for these corporations," said Doughton. "We would perhaps lose a little revenue but, if we can help these corporations to get on their feet, they will be better revenue-producing agencies, and if they are prevented from getting on their feet some of them might have to liquidate."

The committee also was weighing a proposal that foreign insurance companies doing 50 per cent or more of their business in this country pay only the preferential 15 per cent tax imposed on domestic banks and insurance companies.

Republicans Oppose Bill.

New warfare broke out between committee Democrats and Republicans. Although Doughton denied Republican members have been barred from the committee room while the bill is being drafted, he said:

"They are opposed to the bill, and if we have got to defend it we might as well write it."

Representative Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, declared Doughton was exhibiting a "sense of humor" when he called the tax plan "a non-partisan bill to balance the budget."

"There never was a more arbitrary type of hearing nor a more partisanly conducted preparation of a bill than we have seen in this tax measure," said Treadway. "The effort to balance the budget is pure moonshine if we are to credit the testimony of Acting Budget Director Bell."

As the Senate Finance Committee prepared to open tax hearings, strong Democratic sentiment was developing on that side of the Capitol in favor of re-enacting the existing corporation income tax, in addition to some graduated rates on corporate earnings in proportion to the amount retained from dividends.

There were some Senate Democrats who favored attempting to win the President over to this proposal when he returns to the White House. They took the position that the corporation income tax was a tried and sure source of revenue, while the proposed graduated earnings tax reform was experimental at best, with possibility that substantial revenue from it cannot be realized before 1938.

Intra-Party Battle in Illinois Should Keep Democrats Voting in Own Primary.

By Franklyn Waltman

CHICAGO, April 8.—Illinois is experiencing two of the sharpest intra-party political fights in years, preparatory to next Tuesday's primary election. Nationally the most interesting aspect of this battle may be the fight for Republican delegates between Senator William E. Borah and Col. Frank Knox, but locally it is the Democratic fight that is attracting attention.

WALTMAN

President Roosevelt is not involved in the Democratic row—although it may leave wounds which will react against him in November, since the Democratic State leadership is at stake. Washington, however, is keeping strictly out of the fight—Jim Farley taking care that he has no business in this neighborhood requiring a visit until after next Tuesday's election.

From the Republican viewpoint the most significant thing about the Democratic fight over a gubernatorial nominee is that it will keep the Democrats voting within their own party, thus leaving the Republicans free to express a preference for a Republican Presidential candidate. In this State, particularly in Chicago, it frequently has happened that when a Democratic primary fight was dull or unnecessary, Democrats had their fun by voting in the Republican primary and vice versa.

* * *

Some weeks ago, before the Democratic fight became hot, supporters of Col. Knox feared that many Democrats might vote in the Republican primary, supporting Senator Borah. It is believed that many Democrats and La Follette Progressives did that in Wisconsin Tuesday, making certain Senator Borah's victory over the State Republican organization, which wanted an uninstructed delegation.

Even though the Borah victory in Wisconsin was expected and despite the fact that the Idahoan did not win in any run-away finish, that result is expected to help the Senator psychologically in his fight in Illinois. Had Senator Borah lost in Wisconsin, it would have destroyed the little hope which his supporters have and the result here, in all probability, would have been a rout.

But even as it stands most observers of Illinois politics pick Col. Knox as the winner of the bulk of Illinois' delegates to the Cleveland convention. None believe the Chicago publisher can capture the Illinois bloc of 57 delegates intact. No candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination has done that in generations, not even Frank O. Lowden when he was Governor of the State.

Consequently most observers predict that Senator Borah will capture not less than 5 or 6 delegates and may get as many as 10 or 15, chiefly from down-State Illinois. Col. Knox is expected to have easy going in Cook County, which includes Chicago, even though, aside from his Chicago Daily News, he gets little newspaper publicity.

* * *

Col. Knox has been the most active of the Republican Presidential aspirants. Not only has he made more speeches in recent months throughout the country than any of the possibilities, but he has the most elaborate headquarters and publicity organization. He appears to be taking no chances whatever on making a poor run in Illinois, having stumped the State as zealously as a candidate for local office. He spent last week meeting leaders and making speeches in the State outside of Chicago and he is devoting this week to speaking around the city.

* * *

Distinctly to Senator Borah's disadvantage in Illinois is the State's large Negro population. There are almost a quarter of a million Negroes of voting age in this State and most of them are Republicans. Leaders of the Negro race, including the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, have been waging an unceasing warfare on the Idahoan from the day he became a serious contender for the Presidential nomination.

Through its organ, The Crisis, the N. A. A. C. P. has contended that "the record of Borah makes it impossible for Negro Republicans to lend him any aid whatsoever." Articles citing statements and actions by Senator Borah adverse to Negroes are being circulated among colored voters. In Illinois the Negro vote, if cast as a unit, is sufficient to decide the result.

* * *

The Democratic primary fight has grown bitter. It started when Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, with the assent of Democratic National Committeeman Patrick Nash, decided that Gov. Henry Horner had become so unpopular that he did not deserve a renomination. The Kelly-Nash faction put forward Dr. Herman Niels Bundesen, a former health commissioner of Chicago, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Gov. Horner, despite the blow of losing the support of the Cook County Democratic organization, decided to be a candidate for renomination. Several weeks ago, observers here explained, it looked like a sweeping Bundesen victory. Dr. Bundesen, a Senator Royal Copeland type, is very popular with women voters—and with the dominant Democratic machine behind him, few could see how he would lose.

But then Gov. Horner started to fight. He pointed out that he had been as enthusiastic about President Roosevelt and the New Deal as Mayor Kelly. He contended that the Chicago crowd turned on him because he refused to sign a bill legalizing bookmaking establishments in that city. Mayor Kelly retorted he was against the Governor because he would be too heavy a load for the President to carry in November.

Observers reported that the Horner prospects brightened steadily. Then a week ago it was revealed that State pay rolls were being padded with all kinds of Democratic workers, who were listed as traffic checkers and inspectors of various kinds at salaries ranging from $75 to $200 a month. A man listed as a mine inspector was shown never to have seen a mine. But Chicago seems undisturbed by such revelations. It is said to be "old stuff" in politics here. The betting on the outcome is at even money, with several astute journalistic observers leaning to the view that Gov. Horner will win. If he does, it means the end of the Kelly-Nash leadership.

Price Pegging Wrecked NRA, Filene Asserts

Urges Free Competition, Voluntary Pay Raises Before Senate Unit.

American business practices, and not the Supreme Court, "wrecked" the NRA, Edward A. Filene, Boston department store head, told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee here yesterday. He attributed the Recovery Administration's death to price fixing, and urged in its place the voluntary raising of wages and the maintenance of free competition.

Filene was testifying on the Wheeler bill to prohibit the "basing point" or "Pittsburgh-plus" system of pricing steel and other products. He agreed he had made no special study of the basing point system.

"But I have made a lifelong study of business," he declared, "and I have made an intense and continued study of price control and its effect upon prosperity, particularly in these later stages of industrial development."

German Debacle.

He alluded to German business before the war, where price fixing and cartels were unrestricted, and he stated those methods were directly responsible for the German business debacle, although German capitalists at the time believed price fixing to be in their interest.

"American business recently reached a crisis in which, although we had everything necessary for the creation of unprecedented prosperity, the whole nation was sunk in poverty," he said, "and it was generally assumed at the time that nothing but higher price levels could save us from ruin.

"The fact was that nothing but the buying of consumer goods by our masses, on a scale never before known, could solve our problem; and with the same amount of money, surely people can buy more consumer-goods when prices are low than when they are high.

"When the Administration proposed the NRA, however, American business did not use it to enable the masses to buy in maximum volume, but used it instead to fix prices at a level which, in spite of some raising of wages, made much more buying impossible.

"That, not the Supreme Court decision, was what wrecked the NRA," Filene said.

"Little Business" Also Blamed.

"It is not quite fair, however, to blame Big Business alone for this," he continued. "Little Business, too, often tries to fix prices by imposing a special tax, perhaps, on big competitors who may be underselling them; on the contention that, if the little man has to compete with, say, the chain store systems, the little man will go out of business.

"If the inefficient, however, are permitted to remain in business, and are under no compulsion to find better ways of serving their public, our capitalist business system is already done for."

Filene said the Nation had the "right" to expect business leaders to conduct their businesses so as not to bring a depression upon the country.

"I see no ultimate solution of our problems," he declared, "excepting through a Nation-wide effort to eliminate all waste throughout the whole process of production and distribution, so that prices may be as low and mass buying power as high as they can possibly be made; and since we never know how low we can make our prices until we are forced by competition to find out, this means that we must keep prices in competition."

Italy Offers 'Bonus' To Lure Tourist Trade

Rome, April 8 (AP).—Italy has decided to stimulate tourist trade immediately by giving "bona fide tourists" an exchange rate of about 16.50 lire to the dollar, it was disclosed tonight. (The lira currently is quoted at about 7.92 cents.)

This information was given tourist agents by the National Institute of Foreign Exchanges. Bankers abroad will be authorized to issue letters of credit at the new rate, which is designed to aid the hard-hit travel and hotel industry as a result of the war with Ethiopia and sanctions.

Exchange Institute officials insisted the new rate would be limited "stringently" to "genuine" tourists.

Hopkins Talks 5 Hours Before Relief Hearing

House Sub-committee in Closed Session on Need for 1.5 Billion.

Behind locked doors, a sub-committee of the House Appropriation Committee, yesterday heard Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, talk for five hours on why he believed Congress should appropriate another $1,500,000,000 for relief.

Opinion, even among members of Congress who are demanding that the public be told how relief money is being spent, was growing that this and similar hearings will be as near an investigation of relief as will be conducted during the present session.

Hopkins said nothing when he went in and he said nothing when he came out. He will appear before the committee again today.

Chairman Buchanan of the Appropriations Committee strengthened the feeling that there will be no investigation, with the statement that he believed "the facts we develop will fill all legitimate demands for any investigation."

Republican members of the sub-committee faced Hopkins with a long list of questions as to expenditure of present relief funds. Committee members said he answered every question in detail.

Representative Bacon (Republican), New York, siad that he believed the committee was getting sufficient facts to form an opinion. Representative Taber (Republican), New York, said the committe had not got beyond details.

votes to 150,446 in 2,476 out of 2,918 precincts reporting on the Presidential preferential votes in yesterday's election.

The uninstructed and unpledged candidates polled: Charles B. Perry, 80,539; Michael Eberlein, 74,144; George L. Gilkey, 71,934, and Harry W. Griswold, 81,692.

Socialist Daniel W. Hoan was mayor for another four-year term today, but devoid of power to put a Socialistic program through the city council.

Hoan was returned to the office he has held for 20 years in a close election contest with Sheriff Joseph J. Shinners, Non-partisan.

On resurns from all but 16 precincts, Hoan was leading by 12,682 votes. He was elected in 1932 by a majority of more than 46,000.

Hands Tied.

The voters four years ago gave him a Socialist city attorney and a controlling group of aldermen. The Socialists promptly set about advancing their program and enacted the Boncel ordinance empowering the mayor or police chief to close strikebound industrial plants in the event disorders threatened public safety. That precipitated a storm of protest.

But the citizens yesterday returned the popular Hoan to office and tied his hands by electing a Non-partisan council, attorney, treasurer and comptroller.

Th eSocialists were given another setback in a referendum on public ownership of the electric utility, one of their pet planks. A proposal that the city purchase the local power distribution system of the Milwaukee Electric Co. at an undetermined price, which Socialists estimated at about $33,000,000, was defeated by a 4-to-3 ratio. The vote in 381 out of 397 precincts was:

Brann to Run.

Hallowell, Me., April 8 (AP).—Gov. Louis J. Brann yielded today to Democratic exhortations that he again lead the party's fight in Maine. He will seek the United States senatorial nomination in the June primary.

Brann's decision reversed his frequently expressed desire to retire to private life.

At the same time he announced that F. Harold Dubord, national committeeman and announced candidate for the senatorial nomination, would seek instead the governorship.

There appeared little likelihood either Brann or Dubord would be opposed in the primary.

Brann is concluding his second term in traditionally Republican Maine. Dubord came within 1,200 votes of defeating the veteran Republican, Senator Frederick Hale, in 1934.

Landon Named.

Topeka, April 8 (AP).—Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati attorney and brother of Robert A. Taft, the Ohio Republican organization's "favorite son" candidate for the party Presidential nomination, said today Gov. Alf M. Landon "is my strong second choice."

"Naturally, my first choice is my brother," the son of the late William Howard Taft, told reporters after visiting with Gov. Landon. Gov. Landon is my strong second choice."

Taft said "I believe Senator Borah will get few, if any, delegates in the Ohio primary in May."

Shrinkage Noted.

Chicago, April 8 (AP).—Harrison E. Spangler, director of the Western division of the Republican National Committee, in a statement tonight asserted yesterday's and other recent Middle West elections disclosed "a tremendous shrinkage in the Democratic New Deal vote."

"An analysis of the vote shows that Jim Farley is doomed to disappointment in his dope of carrying the Presidential election on the basis of his $5,000,000,000 relief campaign fund," asserted Spangler.

Supports Oklahoman.

By the United Press.

Dr. Frank E. Townsend announced last night that he is urging Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City Democrat, to seek election to the United States Senate as a Townsend candidate.

Smith is vice president of Old-Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., the organization seeking enactment of a $200-a-month pension law for persons 60 years old and over.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., Gets New York Award

New York, April 8 (AP).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., tonight was announced as the recipient of the gold medal awarded annually by the Hundred Year Association for outstanding service to the city.

The association, composed of business houses established here a century or longer, awarded the medal to Rockefeller for his gift to the city of Fort Tryon Park, containing the "Cloisters" museum of medieval art and 60 acres of woodland and lawn.

Marilyn Miller Rites In New York Today

New York, April 8 (AP).—While Broadway and Hollywood mourned her passing, arrangements were completed tonight for the funeral of Marilyn Miller, singing and dancing star of the stage and screen, who died yesterday after a three weeks' illness.

Services will take place tomorrow afternoon at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, in Park avenue. The Rev. Dr. George P. T. Sargent, rector, will officiate.

Miss Miller, who was the wife of Chester L. O'Brien, an actor, will be buried in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Contracts Bill Is Toned Down By House Unit

Roosevelt-Backed Measure, Long Pigeonholed, Ready for Report.

By Robert C. Albright.

After months in a House committee pigeonhole, the Senate-approved Walsh Government contracts bill, enactment of which has been personaly urged by the President, has been drastically revised by a House sub-committee, and is virtually ready for report.

Originally designed to impose NRA standards on Government contractors, the bill has been stripped of many of the provisions of the old NRA codes, and as now drawn would place administration under a three-man public contracts board, appointed by the President.

One amendment would place all contractors who fail to comply with fixed standards on a "black list" for three years, during which time they could not bid on any Government business.

Prohibitions on child labor, convict labor and "sweat-shop" work in homes have been written into the bill, and, together with hours and wage differentials, would apply to all industries bidding on Government business, or supplying materials for the job.

Called Tyrannical.

Opposed by business spokesmen as "tyrannical" and "un-American," the bill has encountered a rocky road since the Administration labeled it a "must" measure last session. Although passed by the Senate, the House Judiciary Committee at first refused to have anything to do with it. It was once shelved by a 13-to-7 committee vote against reporting it to the House.

Later, a Judiciary sub-committee was appointed, headed by Representative Arthur D. Healey (Democrat), Massachusetts, which has passed much of the session attempting to write a redraft. Although changes to date have been tentative, a report to the full committee was said to be slated for the next few days.

Sub-committee members have voted against placing the measure under the administration of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, deciding instead on the three-man board, no more than two members of which could be from the same political party. Members would draw $7,500 salary and serve terms of two, four and six years.

Standards required of all industries bidding for Government business would be specified in all contracts. Firms paying less than the required level would be penalized twice the difference between wages actually paid and those required.

Aimed at Kick-Back System.

The bill aims a blow at the so-called "kick-back" racket, under which workers claim they have been compelled to reimburse their employers part of their wages. The bill would impose a fine of five times the amount of the "kick-back." For employing convict or child labor, a fine of $10 a day would be imposed for each person so employed.

A fight to require that only American citizens be employed by businesses bidding for Government business, and that only American materials be employed, has been waged by Representative John M. Robsion (Republican), Kentucky, but such provisions have not been written into the bill.

Leaders were silent on whether an effort will be made to obtain House passage this session. An effort to do so is expected to arouse stiff opposition from business organizations, which contend it would be harder to enforce than the NRA codes, outlawed in the Supreme Court's Schechter case decision.

Gambling Ring Aided 'Slavers,' Police Reveal

New York Breaks Up Vice Syndicate Operating in Political Clubs.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Police revealed today the breakup of a well-organized syndicate involving gamblers, loan sharks, "white slavers" and political clubs that has mulcted New York City women of thousands of dollars and forced them into immoral houses.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine reported his confidential squad had succeeded in breaking up a gambling ring preying for the most part on wealthy young married women in at least seven political clubs in the city.

The original complainant, a woman whose identity was not disclosed, told police at least 500 women had been victimized in the last several years in this fashion:

Runners Used.

Runners were employed to bring in customers who were willing to play poker or bridge with the minimum stack of chips set at $20.

Women who lost their money were served by ever-present loan sharks who advanced $50 for a $150 note.

When a customer became to heavily in debt to extricate herself it was suggested that she enter an immoral house to obtain funds.

On March 1, police reported a raid on a Bronx political club in which 16 persons were arrested. Two days later a political club in Manhattan was raided and 4 persons, including a woman, were arrested on gambling charges, while 16 others were held for disorderly conduct. Similar arrests at other clubs—both Republican and Democrat—followed, police said.

Taxi Drivers Paid.

Police reported the series of raids was conducted after policewomen posed as customers and succeeded in joining some of the clubs.

For the use of clubhouse rooms for the card games, the gamblers paid out of a "kitty" or percentage of profits. Taxi drivers got $20 each for unway women brought to the games.

The suicide of at least one wife resulted, police asserted, when a young husband learned she had been forced into an immoral life. Her name was not disclosed.

Shoemaker Who 'Put Coolidge In White House' Dies at 81

Homespun Philosophy of Aged Northampton, Mass., Resident Said by Late President to Have Aided His Rise to Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

Northampton, Mass., April 8.—James Lucey, 81, shoemaker, to whom Calvin Coolidge wrote while President, "if it was not for you I would not be here," died today after a long illness.

Lucey, a native of County Kerry, Ireland, always maintained he could not explain the former President's statement unless it was because of their philosophic discussions while Coolidge was a student at Amherst College.

Their friendship began when Coolidge, then a serious-minded student, came to Lucey's shop to have his shoes repaired. They met often thereafter, once in the White House, where the shoemaker was Coolidge's guset.

The former President frequently asserted Lucey's homespun philosophy had much to do with his success.

Lucey predicted while Coolidge was serving in the Massachusetts Senate that he would become President. When he became Vice President and invited his old friends to visit him in Washington, Lucey replied: "I'll wait until you reach the top."

Four days after the former Amherst student became President he wrote Lucey to say that if it was not for him he would not be President.

Lucey came to Northampton 56 years ago.

He leaves a wife, two sons and five daughters.

Ban on Unescorted Girls, 'Stags' at Dances Urged

Salt Lake City, April 8 (AP).—The Salt Lake City Council of Women asked the city commission today to ber unescorted girls and "stag" men from public dance halls.

Taking cognizance of two recent criminal assault cases, Mrs. W. W. Emery, one of a dozen women who urged a new ordinance, said: "We are informed the public does not hear of a third of what goes on at those places."

Both girls referred to were attacked by escorts "picked up" at dances.

Court Dismisses Suits Against Jackie Coogan

Los Angeles, April 8 (AP).—Two suits which asked $300,000 damages from Jackie Coogan as the result of an accident last May, in which the former child actor's father and three others were killed, were dismissed in superior court today by an instructed verdict.

"It would be a very novel principle if a child were held to have the right to control his father," said Judge Frank Swain. He ordered the jury to find for the defendant.

Robin Fights Self Daily at Dawn; Sleepy Citizen Vainly Calls Cop

The robin, a joy to behold to most people as the first sign of spring, is the bane of existence to Harry B. Mitchell, Civil Service Commissioner, and his family.

Mitchell, who lives at 117 Oxford street, Chevy Chase, Md., likes to sleep mornings—at least until the sun comes up. For ten days now this luxury has been denied him.

Bright and early, every morning at 5, a robin alights on the window sill outside Mitchell's bedroom to fight with his reflection in the glass.

The battle, noisy enough to awaken the commissioner, ends only when Robin Red Breast is so exhausted he cannot raise his head—a matter of an hour or so.

Mitchell became so provoked yesterday he called the Montgomery County Police at Bethesda and asked if they could not send out a man to shoot Cock Robin.

This, Private William Crawford, engaged to be married, and in accord with robins and all they mean, refused to do. His best reason was a State law that imposes a $500 fine for the killing of song birds.

"And you know," Crawford said smiling, "a robin has a mighty pretty song."

Mrs. Maddock

when she was a 15-year-old girl with pigtails down her back, met and fell in love with "Big Eddie," 21 years ago in Georgetown, and how Killeen promised to marry her. Eddie was 27 then, and handsome, Prescott stated. He forgot his promises, he continued, and she married someone else.

Romance Flared Anew.

Two years ago they met again, both estranged from their legal mates. The romance flared anew, the romance that ended when Mrs. Maddock shot Killeen that bleak November day in self-defense.

The confession, which was read to the jury, told of constant beatings Mrs. Maddock suffered at the hands of Killeen. The morning of the slaying, according to the confession, both awoke, and she slipped her arm around the gambler.

"Don't be cross like this Eddie," she said, according to the confession.

"I'm going to kill you," he answered, and reached for the pistol.

A struggle followed. Mrs. Maddock got the weapon. She shot blindly as Killeen approached her. There were five shots. Three bullets brought death to Killeen.

"I killed him because he was going to kill me. I did it to save myself," said Mrs. Maddock in the confession.

Only State's witnesses appeared yesterday. They included Dr. W. S. Murphy, who examined Mrs. Maddock after the shooting and found she had been badly beaten. The others corroborated what he said. They were Montgomery County Policemen E. R. Jones, first man on the scene of the crime; County Trooper Wilson Bayne and Detective Sergt. James McAuliffe, who witnessed the confession.

As Mrs. Maddock moved down the courthouse steps she tried to smile for the photographers.

"I'm going back to the beauty parlor business," she said.

"There's so much ugliness in the world. That's one business that tries to better things, anyhow."

Reconstruction Sped in South As Skies Clear

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, April 8.—The mammoth task of erasing scars left by the South's worst tornado season was accelerated today as clearing skies eased the tension of threatened destructive floods in the section.

Rebuilding was under way in the maimed cotton manufacturing cities of Tupelo, Miss., and Gainesville, Ga., where funeral processions moved through debris-cleared streets to graveside services for many of their nearly 400 dead.

In other parts of the storm-harassed South, several thousand persons were routed from lowland dwellings in Alabama, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Kentucky and Georgia by flooded streams. At Barlow, Ky., 200 families were driven out by the swollen Ohio River. More than 500 families abandoned their homes on the Tennessee side of the Mississippi River.

Five Drowned.

Five drownings, two in North Carolina and three in Tennessee, resulted from flood waters which spread over hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile bottom lands.

Communities along lower reaches of some South Carolina streams prepared for the worst floods since 1928. Weather observers said, however, improvement in the weather diminished the possibility of any widespread destruction.

The Tennessee River climbed past flood stage at Chattanooga. Some homes were vacated at Rome, Ga., where the Oostanaula and Etowah rivers flow together to form the Coosa. An anticipated flood of serious proportions failed to materialize at West Point, Ga., when the Chattahoochee was at a standstill below stage.

Ministers from neighboring communities aided in burying Gainesville's storm victims. Private services were held throughout the day and at noon the few remaining unidentified bodies were placed in separate graves and individual services said.

Damage $10,000,000.

More than 2,000 relief workers, including CCC, WPA, militiamen and civilian volunteers, started clearing wreckage from the residential section of Gainseville, their job of restoring some semblance of order to downtown streets completed.

The city's toll was estimated at $10,000,000 property loss, 180 dead, more than 1,000 injured and more than 700 homes wrecked.

A majority of its 214 victims buried, Tupelo turned to rehabilitating itself with the aid of Federal and State funds. Its property damage was estimated to equal or exceed that of Gainesville. A thousand were injured, 700 homes destroyed and 3,000 made homeless.

The Red Cross said its workers would remain on the job in both cities until every family is rehabilitated.

2-Gun Madman Shoots at Bus; Terrifies Pupils

He Lunges at Vehicle With Knife; 50 Children Escape Harm.

By the United Press.

Paso Robles, Calif., April 8.—A mad service station operator today terrified a bus load of 50 school children by firing revolver shots into the vehicle during a 3-mile chase.

The man, Merle L. Smith, 55, Paso Robles, apparently was seeking to harm the bus instead of the driver or children, police said.

Smith began his chase when the bus sped past his service station. He pursued it in an automobile and fired from two pistols.

Six shots hit the bus. None of the children was struck.

Smith followed the bus into the school yard, drew a hunting knife and lunged at the vehicle. He already had punctured one tire before he was overpowered by C. G. Carpenter, superintendent of schools, and W. I. Brush, school trustee.

Robbery Case Jails Old Lingle Suspect

Reno, Nev., April 8 (AP).—Frankie Foster, 38, once indicted for the slaying of Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter, was held here tonight as a suspect in a $125,000 New York City jewelry robbery.

Trapped in his home by city and Federal officers who surrounded the house, Foster telephoned a friend instructions to retain a lawyer for him, then surrendered.

He was held in the Washoe County Jail after arraignment as a New York fugitive. He failed to post a $10,000 bond. Hearing on the charge was set for April 20.

He is under indictment as the leader of a bandit trio which held up the Greenleaf-Crosby jewelry store in Rockefeller Center last January 6 and escaped with diamond bracelets and rings valued at between $125,000 and $138,000.

Detective Christopher Carroll, of New York, who participated in the raid, said Foster was arrested in Los Angeles July 1, 1930, in connection with the Lingle case. He never was brought to trial and the indictment eventually was dismissed.

"In and out of Reno" since last November, he has been employed in a gambling place here, officers said.

Stomach-Ache Brew Ends Jail Bootlegging

Joliet, Ill., April 8 (U.P.).—"Potato peeling" liquor, sold at 25 cents or two bags of tobacco a shot, sent 11 Joliet prison inmates to the hospital isolation ward today. Prison officials, informed that kitchen convicts were making liquor, discovered a jugful behind the coal pile. The prison physician diluted the liquor with a brew calculated to produce a stomach ache. It did.

Sugar Subsidy Slashed 80% Under Soil Plan

377 Producers Were Paid More Than $10,000 Each, Revealed.

Sugar producers, largest benefit-payment recipients under the old AAA, now will receive subsidy payments of about one-fifth of former amounts, Secretray of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace revealed yesterday.

Asked about the reaction of the sugar people to the new soil conservation program which slashes their benefits so steeply, Secretary Wallace smiled, saying:

"They're registering the natural reaction under the circumstances."

Wallace released statistics to show that in Louisiana 244 of 8,000 sugare-cane producers each received benefit payments of more than $10,000; 105 out of 70,000 sugar-beet producers received more than $10,000, and in Puerto Rico, 28 sugar producers out of 7,500 received in excess of $10,000.

At his press conference Wallace told reporters that in re-checking names of producers receiving more than $10,000, as requested by Senator Ellison D. Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, that "one notable exception" had been found and forwarded to the Senator. This was an unnamed California company.

$29,938.32 Bonus.

In his preliminary list, Wallace had recorded the largest wheat payment disbursed under AAA as $29,938.32. In a correction letter sent Senator Smith yesterday, Wallace said the actual figure should have been $78,634.32.

This came about in this way: The unnamed company received $29,508.36 in the second 1933 and first 1934 payments. In addition, the AAA paid under this contract a total of $49,125.96 in separate checks to 50 tenants, who rented lands from the company, with the total payment reaching $78,634.32.

Asked if it were true that this company is managed by Allan Hoover, son of the former President, a severe AAA critic, Wallace did not reply.

Questioned directly as to his attitude on the repeated demands of Senator Arthur Vandenburg (Republican), Michigan, for the names of those receiving large AAA checks, Wallace said:

"Generally speaking, where the public money is involved, it's a good practice to make names of recipients known, when any large sum is concerned."

He was asked if he thought politics motivated the demands for the names. He answered:

Cites Theories.

In discussing Senator Vandenburg's farm theories, Wallace said: "The Senator is getting around to indicating that large holdings of land are a sin. If there's any philosophy to his talks, and I think this is a point well worth looking into, the question of public policy is whether any method is available and should be used to discourage large holdings of land. Senator Vandenberg is beginning to suggest this." Wallace had been discussing the possibilities of a differential land tax in this connection.

From a Chicago organization, meanwhile, the Farmers Independence Council, to which Lammot duPont contributed $5,000 last year, according to the Black committee list, came statistics purporting to show that farmers who cast in their lots with the AAA "suffered heavily."

The release contended that "the unregimented farmers received 85 per cent more income than the controlled farmers," and that a better illustration "of the deadening effect of doles and Government pap" would be hard to find. It asserted the country would have been in a bad way for food save for imports and "the minority of independent free-wheeling American farmers who kept their necks out of the AAA yoke."

10-Cent Surprise Fee Aids Staunton Funds

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., April 8.—Staunton's financial machinery is functioning normally, after receiving a 10-cent fee from a Methodist minister.

The Rev. Frank L. Baker, pastor of Marquis Memorial Methodist Church, visited the city manager's office to inform the staff that he had checked his automobile license fee and found he owed the city an additional 10 cents.

He paid it.

Reich Election Figures To Aid in Racial Check

Berlin, April 8 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—An order issued by the ministry of interior today provides that results of the recent Reichstag elections be used as a racial census to establish in the future the racial purity of German citizens.

The order means that those unable to prove that they voted in the election of March 29—first election in which Jews were officially barred from the polls under the Nuremberg laws—will be considered "non-Aryans."

Effect of the order will be to simplify the complicated machinery for investigating racial descent, since a certificate testifying the holder voted, will be sufficient to prove his "Aryanism."

College Scientists Sail To Photograph Eclipse

New York, April 8 (AP).—A group of scientists of Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology sailed today, equipped with a motor-driven camera, to observe the eclipse of the sun June 19 in a town in Siberia.

The leader of the expedition, Dr. Donald H. Menzel, associate professor of astronomy at Harvard, said the camera, which takes a motion-picture film 9½ inches wide, is designed to take pictures of the sun's spectrum and lend high dispersion. It was designed especially for the expedition.

Hawaiian Clipper Reaches Mexico Port

Miami, Fla., April 8 (U.P.).—Pan-American Airways' Hawaiian Clipper, third flying boat designed for transpacific flights, landed at 7:43 p. m. at Acapulco, Mexico, on her way to California to join her sister ships, the China Clipper and the Philippine Clipper.

The Hawaiian Clipper made the hop from Miami to Acapulco in leisurely fashion, with Capt. Edwin C. Musick, Pacific veteran, in command. Arrival was announced by Pan-American offices here.

Musick messaged: "Flight perfect."

new Chain Bridge, and a municipal courts building will be retained is conjectural, but the sub-committee, by adopting the budget figures, will have a surplus of $3,000,000, which could be applied to the new projects.

Flanked by a large delegation of representatives of civic and trade bodies, Edward F. Colladay, of the Board of Trade, explained the Parker survey submitted to the sub-committee.

After explaining that many previous tax surveys have been unfair to Washington, the report made the following pertinent points and then supported them with statistical tables.

Washington ranks:

Third in per capita tax burden, being surpassed by Boston and New York.

First in per capita tax among 14 largest Southern States.

First in per capita tax burden among 25 largest cities in the United States with a Negro population of more than 5 per cent. (Washington's is 27.1 per cent.)

First Among 44.

First in per capita tax per white inhabitant among 44 largest cities.

First in per capita tax among 40 largest cities having a density of population of less than 28 persons per acre.

Washington's per capita tax increased more than twice as much as any other of the 44 largest cities from 1922 to 1933.

The above conclusions, it was explained, are based on combined city and county taxes. A secondary analysis, including State taxes as well, showed that Washington stands:

Eighteenth in the per capita tax burden and fourteenth in population.

First in per capita tax among 14 largest Southern cities.

Third in per capita tax per white inhabitant.

"Washington is exceptional in having a high tax burden and no annual interest charge," the report states, "since almost all cities with a high tax burden have annual interest charges."

Taxes included in the survey are property, franchise, poll, licenses and permits "and all other receipts which can properly be termed taxes." Special assessments, fines and forfeitures, interest receipts, earnings from public service enterprises were not included.

"In our opinion a comparison of the tax burden is more representative than a comparison of individual taxes," the report states.

"How the tax burden is to be most equitably distributed is a matter which is a local problem to be determined by an examination of the facts and conditions in each locality.

"For instance, because one State levies a 7-cent per gallon gasoline tax, it does not follow that every State should levy a 7-cent gasoline tax."

The report points out that all cities having a greater tax burden than Washington have a greater population. It also notes that, regardless of population, cities of Massachusetts and New York have a heavy tax burden and that Newark and Jersey City, often compared with Washington, are higher in rank in tax burden than in population, due to their proximity to New York City.

Southern Cities Lower.

"The Southern cities rank uniformly lower in tax burden than in population. For example, Baltimore ranks twenty-first in tax burden and eighth in population; New Orleans ranks thirtieth in tax burden and sixteenth in population, and Birmingham ranks forty-fourth in tax burden and thirty-fourth in population."

Dallas and Houston, in the State from which Representative Thomas L. Blanton comes, are thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth in the table of 44 cities of the United States in respect to tax burden. San Antonio is forty-third. No large Texas city even approaches the National Capital in per-capita taxes.

Admitting that population is a factor, but not the only factor in per-capita tax burden, the report suggests four other major factors: (1) Geographical situation, (2) density of population, (3) character of population, and (4) debt service charges.

In connection with the first factor the report points out that the Washington per-capita tax burden exceeds the average for Southern cities by 65 per cent.

It surpasses the per capita of Baltimore, the next Southern city in rank, by 40 per cent, although Baltimore far outranks the National Capital in population.

Regarding the character of population, the report states that Washington ranks sixth in the percentage of Negro population and has a per capita tax burden more than 53 per cent greater than any of the five large cities having a larger percentage of Negro population.

Washington has a greater per capita tax burden than any city in the United States having a percentage of Negro population of more than 5 per cent, it adds, and is, therefore, the exception to the rule that cities with high per capita tax burdens have a low percentage of Negro population.

Explaining the table showing the relation between high taxes and interest payments, the report points out that Washington and Worcester, Mass., are exceptional in having a high tax burden with no interest payments or small interest payments.

Washington is second only to Boston in the availability of the tax dollar for annual operation of city government or the amount spent in municipal operation after interest payments are deducted.

Per capita tax burden increased 98.3 per cent from 1922 to 1933, while the next largest increase was 47.1 per cent in Buffalo, N. Y.

Among those who accompanied the Board of Trade delegation were:

John Saul, president; Edgar Morris, first vice president, and Robert Cottrell, secretary; W. L. Beale and R. L. Holland, municipal finance committee, all of the Board of Trade.

W. W. Everett, past president of the Board of Trade; L. A. Carruthers, chairman of the fiscal relations committee, Federation of Citizens Associations; John Locher, Central Labor Union; Francis G. Addison, jr., District Bankers Associations; Arthur Sunderlin, first vice of the Federation of Citizens Association; Arthur Sunderlin, first vice president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association; Charles Rush, Washington Real Estate Board; George Morgan, Kiwanis Club; James McD. Shea, Washington Taxpayers Protective Association, and Roland Whitehurst, Rotary Club.

ber 3, 1934," the jurist recalled.

"She liked to manage her personal matters, so I do not know whether the AAA contracts were signed by her. They may have been signed by the agent out in Montana.

Estate Executor.

"I was made executor of the estate and some time later several checks were sent me. That was long before the AAA suit. At any rate I had no choice. I signed the checks and turned them into the estate.

"At any rate the sum was small. I think these two checks which were returned represent a fourth of the sum.

"Later I was sent a document which it was necessary for me to sign in order that the tenants might receive their benefits. I signed and returned it.

"While it was true that, ultimately, I might benefit when the estate is settled, I had no choice as executor.

"After the act was invalidated, however, I felt that, since I held against the law, the checks should be returned."

Workers Group Votes to Unite All of Jobless

Stormy Session Contrasts With Earlier, Peaceful White House March.

Overriding 50-odd instructed delegates from Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and Oregon, more than 200 delegates to the second annual convention of the Workers' Alliance meeting yesterday in the Labor Building auditorium, approved the merging of all unemployed organizations in the country with the alliance and the formation of a single Nation-wide organization for the unemployed.

The vote was taken after a stormy session at which opponents of the "unity agreement" vainly sought the consideration of amendments and were repeatedly booed, hissed and shouted down with cries of "Vote, vote!" Once, when a point of order was raised by a "unity" opponent, other delegates, seemingly by prearrangement, interrupted him with a loud chant of "Solidarity."

March for White House.

The bitter debate and heated argument of the afternoon session was in marked contrast to the peaceful, orderly march on the office of WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and the White House that the delegates staged in the morning.

Seeking food and shelter while in Washington for some 200 penniless delegates, the convention marched en masse to Hopkins' office, where a committee of five was received by Assistant Administrator Aubrey Williams.

Williams explained that a Federal law prevented the expenditure of Government funds to aid conventions, but promised to discuss the matter with Hopkins when the latter returned from the Capitol. At the afternoon session, Nels Anderson, director of labor relations for the WPA, tried to soothe the delegates by describing the difference in the treatment they were accorded by the Government in 1932 "when you were forced to hold a convention in the dirt on New York avenue and now, when you meet in a Government auditorium."

Dissatisfied with their reception at the WPA offices, the convention delegates marched on the White House. They were stopped at the gates by a squad of police and were informed that all the members of the White House staff who could handle their request were in Florida, fishing with the President.

The committee decided to send a telegram to Marvin McIntyre in Florida to ask the President to issue an executive order providing the aid asked, and then marched back in orderly procession to the Labor Building auditorium.

At the night session Representative Ernest Lundeen, of Minnesota, spoke of a need for a Farmer-Labor Party. Lundeen also announced he would fight adjournment of Congress until the Frazier-Lundeen unemployment insurance bill has been acted upon.

This bill was explained to the gathering by Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, one of its sponsors. Frazier said that while the bill might be labeled "class legislation" that "a great deal of 'class legislation' has already been enacted and always for the benefit of another class."

'Stay Away From Trees' Plane Victim's Advice

She doesn't know that Pilot Otto Ferguson, long her friend, and ten others died in the crash.

She told her husband, Mayor Ellenstein, of Newark, N. J., on hearing three branches rub against the plane, and added:

"In the future you ought to tell Mr. Ferguson not to fly so close to the trees."

S. C. Beers Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Samuel C. Beers, 64, retired oil and gas producer, and brother of the late Representative E. N. Beers, of Pennsylvania, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Mount Union, Pa. He died Tuesday at the Burlington Hotel, where he has been living for the last two years.

For more than 25 years in the oil and gas business in Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, Beers retired two years ago because of ill health. His home was at Mount Jewett, Pa.

He was active in local Masonic circles, being a member of the Acacia Masonic Lodge, the Columbia Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons, the Adoniram Council of the Royal and Select Masters, the Columbia Commandery of the Knights Templar, and the Almas Temple of the Mystic Shrine.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nellie M. Beers; a sister, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, of Harrisburg, Pa., and a brother, J. D. Beers, of Marion, Ohio.

Two Entry Dates Announced For Independent Art Exhibit

Displays Will Be Accepted at Corcoran Gallery Tomorrow and Saturday; The Post, Club Federation Sponsoring Affair.

Entries for greater Washington's second Independent Art Exhibit will be received at the Corcoran Art Gallery, E street entrance, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. tomorrow and Saturday. No entries will be accepted after 4 o'clock Saturday.

The exhibit, under the sponsorship of the art division of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs and The Washington Post, is open to all artists in and about Washington. Oils, graphic arts, water colors, miniatures and small sculpture will be exhibited.

The pictures accepted by the art committee of the exhibit will be shown in eight co-operating downtown department stores, where they will be on sale between April 20, opening day of the exhibit, and May 2. The co-operating stores are Julius Garfinckel & Co., the Hecht Co., Woodward and Lothrop, S. Kann Son's Co., Lansburgh & Bro., W. & J. Sloane, Palais Royal, and Frank R. Jelleff, Inc.

It is the hope of those in charge that this year the exhibit will be placed on a permanent, self-sustaining basis. In order to accomplish this purpose, an entry fee of 25 cents for each work of art, up to four, is being charged the exhibitors. Any one exhibitor may enter five works for $1.

Store Co-operating.

No prizes will be given this year, but each of the eight department stores will purchase—from the works of art shown in each of the eight individual exhibits—work in the amount of $100. Artists are, therefore, guaranteed purchases to the extent of at least $800, without taking into consideration potential purchasers among the thousands of Washingtonians and out-of-town visitors who will view the exhibit.

Last year more than 20,000 persons visited the stores that showed approximately 1,700 pictures in the first greater Washington Independent Art Exhibit.

Entry blanks, filled out in triplicate, must be attached to each work of art when it is brought to the receiving room at the Corcoran Gallery. Each exhibitor may enter a maximum of five works. Blanks may be obtained at the counter on the first floor of The Post Building, E street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The members of the board of directors of the exhibit, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Eugene Meyer, are Mrs. Charles Bittinger, Mr. Frank R. Jelleff, Mr. Garnet Jex and Mrs. Samuel A. Swiggett.

Senate Hears Ritter Received Portion of Fee

Former Law Partner Says Debt Payment Came From Receivership.

By the Associated Press.

Evidence that part of the $4,500 paid to Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter, of Florida, by A. L. Rankin, a former law partner, came out of a $75,000 receivership fee allowed Rankin by the jurist, was introduced yesterday at the Senate impeachment trial of Ritter.

The House prosecution charges in its chief impeachment article that Ritter "corruptly and unlawfully" received the $4,500 sum.

On the stand for the third time, Rankin, 58-year-old West Palm Beach attorney, contended the payment was in discharge of an oral agreement with Ritter at the time they dissolved their law partnership—that he was to pay $5,000 for the judge's interest in the firm when he was able to do so.

Replying to the penciled questions of Senators, Rankin said the first cash payment of $2,500 to Ritter came out of a $25,000 advance on his $75,000 fee in the Whitehall Hotel receivership and was made the same day the advance was allowed—December 24, 1929.

He said he had "so many obligations" at the time he had no other funds with which to make the $2,500 payment.

Later he testified the firm of Ritter & Rankin "kept no books," and when defense counsel tried to put in the record an auditor's statement on the financial standing of the firm at the time it was dissolved, the prosecution prevented it. The auditor will be called as a witness.

"Did Ritter know that the money you gave him came from fees in the Whitehall case?" asked Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado.

"I'm sure he knew it," Rankin replied.

"Were you able to pay Ritter independently of the fees you got in the case?"

"Not at the time."

On cross-examination by Frank P. Walsh, defense counsel, Rankin said he assumed Ritter knew the money came from the receivership fee becaus the payment was made on the same day the fee was allowed and the judge knew he was in debt.

Replying to a question of Senator Connally (Democrat), Texas, the witness said he also had paid $2,899 of his "debt" to Ritter by check out of the fees due the Ritter-Rankin firm, but uncollected at the time of its termination. Rankin testified previously he paid Ritter $5,000 altogether, but the excess payment was not explained.

R. O. Edmonston Rites Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for Robert O. Edmonston, 81, of 3114 Mount Pleasant street, a retired grocer and former president of the Democratic Club of Washington, will be held at 10:30 today at the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church. Burial will follow in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A lifelong resident of the District, Mr. Edmonston died Tuesday in Georgetown University Hospital of a broken hip, suffered when he slipped and fell two weeks ago. He started in the grocery business in this city while a young man and for many years owned a store on Ninth street.

Fatal Crash Re-Staged in Suit, With Judge Driving 'Death Car'

By the Associated Press.

Lake Charles, La., April 8 (AP).—An automobile accident fatal to Orrin Aultman, of New Orleans, at 1:30 a. m. January 20, 1935, was re-enacted early today in a moonlight court session on the Old Spanish Trail at the exact hour and site with Judge Thomas F. Porter, presiding over a damage suit case, as one of the actors.

Staging of the circumstances of the accident was ordered to obtain first-hand information on conditions at the time of the accident.

No testimony was taken at the scene, but Judge Porter drove a car of the make which Aultman used when his auto struck a truck belonging to the Union City Transfer Co. of Beaumont, Texas.

A truck was parked across the highway in what was claimed to be the position of the Union City truck, and Judge Porter took the wheel of the "Aultman" car and followed the course outlined in the suit.

A moonlight night was chosen for the judge to carry out the experiment, as it had been stated the moon was shining the night of the accident.

Judge Porter slid the car up to the truck, stopped and then conferred with court attaches and counsel for both sides and adjourned his after-midnight roadside court session until tomorrow, when further testimony will be taken in the courtroom.

Mrs. Ruth Aultman, widow of the crash victim, is suing the Beaumont company for $12,500 damages. In a previous trial, Judge Porter denied the plaintiff judgment, but granted a motion for a new trial.

Miss Mary Bealle Dies of Pneumonia

Mary Eliza Bealle, 85, retired Bureau of Engraving and Printing employe, died of pneumonia last night at her home, 4715 Fifteenth street northwest. Miss Bealle was an operative in the surface division for 25 years.

Coming to the bureau during the Spanish War as an emergency employe, she was placed on the permanent staff and retired in 1922. She was a sister of the late Annie E. Bealle, for 55 years chief of the examining division. Born in Jessamine, Prince Georges County, Md., she came to the District 44 years ago.

Miss Bealle is survived by two sisters, Miss Emily F. Bealle, of Washington, and Mrs. William B. Bealle, of Relay, Md.; four nephews and six nieces. Included in the latter are Morris A. Bealle, of this city, and Mrs. Winfield H. Scott, of Rangoon, Burma, wife of the American Consul at that place.

Funeral services will be held at the residence at 3 p. m. tomorrow, with the Rev. J. J. Queally, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, officiating. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

New Airplane Device Charts Rises on Earth

Altimeter Would Prevent Mountain Crashes Like Tuesday's Tragedy.

By the United Press.

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—A magnetic airplane altimeter that counteracts to mountains and tall buildings is being developed by Ralph Lucas, Albany scientist, who expects to have the apparatus ready within a month.

Such an air tragedy as Tuesday's crash near Uniontown, Pa., could not have occurred had an altimeter such as he has invented been in the plane, Lucas said.

Gravity Controls Device.

"A pilot flying by my instrument will know when he is nearing a mountain because the altimeter reading will drop as the level of the earth rises," Lucas explained. "Such knowledge will be of greatest importance in 'blind flying' and flying in severe storms."

The invention is termed as "revolutionary" in its field as it discards the medium of sea level upon which many present instruments are based. His instrument, he said, is controlled by the earth's gravity and by magnets.

The secret to the most important item—the fluid used to measure the plane's altitude—was closely guarded. The fluid is attracted by magnetism, yet so composed that mineral deposits in the earth, or concentrations of iron, steel or electricity—as in factories or power plants—will not affect it. Lucas admitted it was a "mineral salts" solution.

He said that as a plane, carrying one of his instruments, rose from the ground and the pull of gravity lessened, the attraction of magnets in the upper part of the apparatus would draw the solution up into a glass tube. The higher the plane rose, the higher the fluid would rise.

Should the plane pass over a mountain the altimeter would register such a happening, as the fluid would drop in the tube correspondingly with the altitude of the mountain.

Saving Life His Reward.

Asked how he proposed to market his invention, Lucas answered:

"I don't propose to market it. If it functions accurately in tests next month I shall submit it to the research department of the United States Navy for more thorough and comprehensive tests.

"I am not seeking financial returns. I am striving to reduce the danger of flying. If my invention brings greater safety to air travel and a resultant saving of lives, I shall have all the compensation I desire."

"However," he added with a smile, if I get any money from the Navy Department I shan't refuse it."

President, Fit After Vacation, En Route Here

Tells of Losing Big Fish; Talks to Sholtz, McNutt; Greets Moffett.

By the Associated Press.

En Route with President Roosevelt to Warm Springs, Ga., April 8 (AP).—Full of health and fishing stories, President Roosevelt traveled toward the White House tonight after 16 "grand" days on the warm southern seas.

Bronze-faced, the President came ashore smiling early this afternoon at Port Everglades, Fla., and aboard train turned to some official business which includes the filling of some important posts.

James A. Moffett, former Federal housing administrator, who has been mentioned for Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Moffett, met Mr. Roosevelt at Port Everglades and accompanied him to Jacksonville tonight.

Talks to Sholtz, McNutt.

Gov. Sholtz of Florida and Gov. McNutt of Indiana, both of whom have been frequently mentioned for high Federal office, likewise conversed with the President.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a brief talk with newspapermen aboard the U. S. S. Potomac as it docked, was mostly interested in talking about his cruise. Officially, he said things seemed more quiet than in a long time.

In true fisherman style, he came back with the story about the big fish which got off the hook. Somewhat dolefully, he related that he was doing some trolling during the last hours returning ashore today and to his surprise hooked a sailfish which was distinguishable by its characteristic leaps from the water.

Hook Straightened.

But suddenly the line went slack. Upon hauling in the line, he found the fish had straightened out the hook and escaped. He said, however, he did catch an eight-pound bonita during the last few minutes of the trip.

Traveling tonight to his Warm Springs, Ga., home to spend tomorrow with the folks there, Mr. Roosevelt will find himself in the neighborhood of the Southeastern tornado zone. He said reports were received during the morning on relief work. He allocated $2,500,000 for emergency work in the area last night.

The trim little U. S. S. Potomac, new Presidential ship, was pronounced a splendid craft by the Chief Executive. Incidentally, he disclosed that the ship had been receiving storm warnings for the past three days and was moving from one lee to another to keep in comparative safety, but the storms never overtook it.

Reminded that he has a speaking engagement next Monday at Baltimore, the vacationing President added that he has not given thought yet to what he will say.

He said he expected to be out for the opening of the American League baseball season next week in Washington.

Diplomats Start Agenda Draft For Peace Talk

Senate Approves $75,000 for U. S. Participation in All-American Parley.

By the Associated Press.

Preparation of an antiwar program to be considered by the inter-American peace conference proposed by President Roosevelt was entrusted yesterday to a committee composed of diplomatic representatives of all the participating countries.

Coincidentally, the Senate late yesterday approved without debate a $75,000 appropriation to finance this country's participation in the parley.

The conference, which will undertake measures to strengthen the peace machinery of the Western Hemisphere, will convene sometime this year in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Secretary Hull was made chairman of the agenda committee, which was organized at a regular meeting of the governing board of the Pan American Union. It was emphasized, however, that the union as such was not concerned with the forthcoming conference itself.

Subject to the approval of the 20 South and Central American republics represented on the board through their diplomatic representatives in Washington, each board member was named in turn to sit on the program committee. Ambassador Felipe A. Espil, of Argentina, was appointed vice chairman.

The committee will hold its first meeting Wednesday, after which it will begin the actual work of drafting agenda based on suggestions transmitted to each representative on the committee by his government.

Upon its completion, this formula in turn will be submitted to the various governments for approval before the final program is adopted.

Officials declined to speculate today on whether an effort would be made to build upon existing peace instruments of whether a completely new and all-inclusive program would be put forward.

It was understood, however, that the unanimous consent of all participating governments would be sought for the inclusion of all subjects on the agenda.

Secretary Hull announced that no date yet had been set for the conference, but the general expectation is that it will be held in July or August.

By the Associated Press.

Cries of unfair tactics were raised by both sides in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals yesterday as Attorney General Homer S. Cummings clashed with a utilities attorney over the utilities holding company act.

Appearing personally for the Government, Cummings asked the court to sustain an injunction restraining utility companies from filing actions against the act pending the outcome of a suit the Securities Commission has started in New York against the Electric Bond & Share system.

John C. Higgins, counsel for seven utility companies, which were prevented by the injunction from attacking the act, asserted the Government was attempting "to monopolize the courts" while it pushed a "hand-picked case" to the Supreme Court for a "narrow" ruling.

In reply, Cummings said the utility companies were trying to "confuse the issue and break down the orderly process of government" through a "barrage of suits from coast to coast" that "indicated a concerted movement."

A decision on the arguments is not expected for several weeks.

Cummings said that none of the penalties under the act would be enforced until the Supreme Court had ruled. The holding company act, center of a long battle in Congress last session, is intended to impose strict Federal regulation over the complex utilities system and eliminate "unnecessary" holding companies by 1938.

The Attorney General contended the utilities would not be damaged by the Government's tactics.

Higgins disputed this. He said "losses the utilities will suffer will be fatal, and their business paralyzed," unless they are allowed protection of the courts.

Blocking of test suits in lower Federal courts here had the effect of stopping them everywhere, he said, adding that loans, long-term contracts and other business operations by holding companies were impossible, while the "death sentence" threat and other penalties of the act were uncertain.

Mrs. Davies Given General Foods Post

New York, April 8 (AP).—The $63,000,000 General Foods Corporation today elected Mrs. Marjorie Post Davies to its board of directors, of which her former husband, Edward F. Hutton, was chairman until recently.

Selection of Mrs. Davies for a place on the board was said to be based on her large investment interest in the company. She is a daughter of the late C. W. Post, whose Postum Cereal Co. was acquired by General Foods at the time of its organization.

In her work as a member of the board Mrs. Davies will be associated businesswise with her divorced husband, for Hutton remained as a director after relinquishing the post of board chairman. His resignation, a few months ago, followed a wave of publicity in connection with an article by Hutton in Public Utilities Fortnightly, in which he suggested that business interests "gang up" on the Roosevelt Administration. He later issued a statement withdrawing the "gang-up" recommendation, explaining that some of the later policies of the Administration made publication of his article unwarranted.

The Huttons were divorced last September. Her present husband, Joseph E. Davies, is a Washington attorney.

Easter Evolution.

Easter is here—at least its tangible symbols are already noticeable in shop windows, glassed-in hothouses, and advertisements. The old-fashioned festivity was heralded by a triumphant, forced rebloom-ing of last year's lily and mysterious activities in the kitchen with dye and hard-boiled eggs. Not so the present era, which boasts florists' shops crackling with tissue paper and stiff silver ribbons, department stores abloom with papier-mache lilies in the heart of which nestle 'ipsticks, and confectioners' counters burdened with pep-permint eggs, marshmallow chicks, and sugar goslings.

In the days of gingham aprons and calico housecaps the preparations which preceded Easter were almost as exciting as those be-fore Christmas. Dozens of eggs were boiled in a great kettle, while nearby, in a smaller vessel, color for dyeing was drawn out of sumach berries, crepe paper, or scraps of inferior cloth saved for the purpose. Now it's the bunnies themselves which are made of gingham and calico, with the motif re-peated on edible eggs, available in any flavor. Paper napkins and bon-bon con-tainers for the holiday-conscious hostess are gay with coy rabbits in geometric de-signs. Polka-dot fowls on plaid postcards put their more conventional barnyard counterparts to shame. And even a gold-fish may be an Easter token.

In spite of the modernistic turn, there is nothing in it which need alarm sentimental-ists. The essential meaning of this particu-lar holiday is new life and new hope. If these are symbolized in new ideas, so much the more becoming. The Japanese symbol-ize springtime in a spray of blossoms. And it is equally appropriate to derive the mes-sage of the Resurrection from a single lily, whether it springs from the soil or some en-terprising merchant's stock.

Discipline At Sea.

The Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection of the Department of Commerce is aroused over the many cases of reported insubordination among the crews of Amer-ican vessels. In some instances seamen are said to have refused to participate in fire drills or to have threatened to quit in order to secure the rescinding of penalties im-posed for individual breaches of discipline.

The recent strike of the crew of the steamship California, to obtain better wages and working conditions, is a particularly flagrant example of insubordination which has caused friction between the Department of Commerce and the Department of Labor, Secretary Perkins intervened in that case, promising to use her influence to secure a hearing for the strikers if they would pro-ceed with the vessel to New York. Secre-tary Roper, however, maintained that the striking sailors ought to have been prose-cuted as mutineers.

Although the Department of Justice failed to respond to his appeal to take ac-tion, the incident serves to emphasize the great difference between strikes at sea and on land. Methods of negotiation that are suitable and proper in dealing with indus-trial disputes would be destructive of the discipline and order that are essential on shipboard.

Without a dependable crew the most carefully drawn safety laws, and the most efficient steamboat inspection systems, pro-vide very inadequate protection. Indeed, every great sea tragedy has emphasized anew the paramount importance of a well-drilled, intelligent crew, ready to respond to an emergency call and to make effective use of life-saving equipment. The Morro Castle distaster provides a recent conspicu-ous illustration of the needless sacrifices which result from the lack of such disci-pline.

In order to deal more effectively with the human aspect of the problem presented by sea hazards, the Bureau of Navigation rightly concludes that its jurisdiction over maritime affairs should not be shared with the Department of Labor. However, the frequency of disturbances indicates that there are legitimate causes of dissatisfac-tion which call for investigation. Director Weaver of the Bureau of Navigation is, therefore, urging passage of a measure pro-viding for the appointment of traveling in-spectors who would take passage on sea-going and coastwise vessels with a view to determining how they are being oper-ated. Competent inspection of this sort would doubtless disclose the reasons for the present disturbed conditions on ships of American registry and would probably suggest desirable reforms.

Smashing An Illusion.

L. H. Parker's report to the Board of Trade effectively smashes the theory that residents of Washington are undertaxed. With indisputable figures, taken entirely from the Federal Census Bureau, this taxa-tion expert in the service of Congress has shown that the Capital City pays higher taxes than any other strictly comparable city.

Congressmen intent upon whittling away the Federal "contribution" to the Capital City, while boosting its tax rate for po-litical effect, had almost convinced many local residents that their taxes are trifling when compared with those of other cities. Misrepresentation had become so general that it was accepted year after year with-out question in the House. It is this fact more than any other which accounts for the intermittent reduction of the so-called lump sum and strangulation of local institutions and service agencies.

Thanks to the foresight and persistence of the Board of Trade, this flimsy structure of misstatement and falsehood has now been thoroughly shattered. Another argument used to deny Washington essential com-munity services has been blown to smith-ereens. Congress cannot now ignore the urgent plea of the District for an equitable division of the Capital City's expenses with-out openly displaying an arbitrary attitude which it should be loath to indorse.

Instead of being highly favored by Fed-eral gratuities, Washington has a higher per-capita tax than any other Southern city. Its tax burden exceeds the average of South-ern cities by 65 per cent, and is 40 per cent higher than that of Baltimore, the most comparable from the geographical view-point. Only New York and Boston impose higher levies—including both city and county taxes—than does Washington. In both these cases the high tax rates are partially explained by the density and char-acter of their population, their more north-erly location and their municipal indebt-edness.

During the 11 years from 1922 to 1933 the tax burden in Washington increased 93 per cent, more than twice the increase of any other city. This finding is especially significant, for it was during this period that Federal aid to the Nation's Capital was sharply contracted. Nearly every year a larger amount of local revenue has been taken for national or seminational func-tions, to the detriment of essential local services.

Convincing as is this report by the chief expert of the Joint Congressional Commit-tee on Internal Revenue Taxation, it pre-sents only half the picture. Washingtonians have not only paid high taxes, but while doing so they have been denied adequate public health service, police protection, school facilities, etc. Few cities in the list studied have a death rate comparable to that of the District. In these circumstances any fair-minded and informed individual can see that the District has not been treated fairly.

It would be a mistake, however, to as-sume that local taxes should be adjusted to the average of the cities studied. Washing-ton is not strictly comparable to any other city. Mr. Parker's report is valuable chiefly because it sweeps away the twaddle about taxes here being lower than in other cities. At best it can only clear the way for development of a new fiscal understand-ing with Congress. That very delicate task remains to be accomplished. If local civic and municipal agencies are wise, they will take full advantage of this most favorable opportunity to press for permanent adjust-ment of local finances.

A Compromise Offer.

When the Interstate Commerce Commis-sion ordered a reduction in coach and Pull-man passenger fares to 2 and 3 cents per mile, respectively, it seemed probable that some of the Eastern roads would challenge the validity of the order as a usurpation of managerial functions. However, they have decided instead to petition for suspension of the order and substitution of a com-promise measure providing for a reduction in coach fares to 2½ cents per mile, with Pullman fares lowered to 3 cents as proposed.

While the compromise rates would not afford as good a test of the commission's theory that the way to increase earnings lies in drastic cuts in service charges, the roads present a very strong case against compliance with the original order. Four leading Eastern carriers, for instance, esti-mate that it would be necessary to increase their passenger traffic from 33 per cent to over 50 per cent to make up for loss of revenue, without any allowance whatever for added operating expenses entailed by greater traffic.

The petition also points out that the ex-perience of roads in other parts of the coun-try that have reduced fares voluntarily "furnishes no dependable guide" for the Eastern roads. Objection is likewise raised to the wide spread between the new coach and Pullman fares which would, it is al-leged, result in diversion of traffic from Pullmans to coaches.

These are all arguments challenging the economic wisdom of the order. They do not touch upon the larger question as to the right of a Federal regulatory agency to order a privately owned railroad com-pany to charge less than the present cost of services in the mere hope or belief that the added business attracted will com-pensate for the initial loss. When an ex-periment of this sort is undertaken in face of the protests of the roads, it certainly in-volves a major interference with the opera-tions of private managements.

To many railroad executives, and to some of the dissenting members of the I. C. C., the order seems open to dispute on that ground as an illegal usurpation of power. Yet the evident unwillingness of the pro-testing roads to challenge the commission's authority indicates a doubt as to the at-titude of the courts on this moot question.

Crisis In Ethiopia.

Haile Selassie's order, calling every able-bodied male Ethiopian to the defense of his country, has been followed by a proclama-tion from Mussolini demanding the "total annihilation" of the armies of the Negus. Obviously the Italo-Ethiopian war, now well into its seventh month of active hostilities, is approaching a decisive crisis.

The military dispatches, most of which emanate from the Italian side of the lines, have recently reported a series of victories for Il Duce's troops. They have announced the complete disintegration of five of the six Ethiopian armies, which seems to make Mussolini's call for further annihilation somewhat paradoxical. They have said that the road to Addis Ababa now lies open to the invaders. Yet the Ethiopians still seem able and willing to fight on against the tremendous odds of Italian bombings, poison gas, tanks and heavy artillery.

Making the proper discounts for inspired bulletins and censored news, it becomes evi-dent that the Italian position is in fact none too enviable. Recent heavy fighting is ob-viously partly due to a keen anxiety to reach a decision before the rainy season immobilizes large masses of men in the heart of a wild and bitterly hostile country. And another vital factor in the picture is a growing distress in Italy of which many indications trickle through.

Between the lines of a survey in the cur-rent issue of Commerce Reports, published weekly by the United States Department of Commerce, is some of this evidence that Italian economy is under serious and in-creasing strain. "Curtailment of activity," says this report from American consular agents, "is in evidence in practically all industries depending on imported raw ma-terials" . . . "Publication of trade statistics is still under suspension" . . . "No direct exports are now going to sanctionist mar-kets" . . . "Wholesale prices are noticeably advancing . . ."

All this is at least as much a part of the picture as Marshal Badoglio's military suc-cesses. Whether the collapse of the Ethio-pian armies or of Italy's economic structure will come first is a question which must be much in Mussolini's mind.

Consequently, the meetings at Geneva this week, with the question of an intensi-fication of sanctions again under considera-tion, will be very closely watched at Rome. If further measures should be taken against Italy, and if really conclusive military vic-tory is much longer delayed in Ethiopia, the position of the Fascist regime may well be-come desperate. It is in no position to sustain the costs of war indefinitely.

The diplomatic confusion caused by Hit-ler's Rhineland reoccupation, however, works strongly in Italy's favor. A collapse of sanctions, which has of late seemed as probable as their intensification, would be more than the equivalent of a decisive vic-tory in Africa. In fact the future of this campaign is being decided not so much at the field headquarters of Marshal Badoglio as in this week's conferences at Geneva.

That the device of sanctions, tried for the first time in the Italo-Ethiopian war, is more likely to be perfected than dropped in future is indicated by the character of the French reply to Germany's recent memo-randum, as made public in Paris yesterday. It calls for the mobilization of collective force against an aggressor state. Such mobilization, now attempted in the eco-nomic sphere against Italy, is the most logical in theory, and the most difficult in practice, of all the efforts to make peace something more than an uneasy interval between wars.

The mere proposal of such a scheme would seem to imply French intention not to abandon the far more modest precedent established in the case of Italy's aggression against a fellow member of the League of Nations.

As The Twig Is Bent.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

Dr. Alfred Adler, Viennese physician and psychologist, believes that modern mothers, by assuming too much control over the interests of their rising crop of young neurotics and delinquents, are making a mistake.

Many young people, according to Dr. Adler, by virtue of excessive attention on the part of their parents, and particularly their moth-ers, grow up to be dependent, introverted and selfish. This theory is in striking contrast to the claim, not as often made at present as a few years ago, that modern mothers were giv-ing their children too much freedom, result-ing in a laxity in the morals of the "wild younger generation."

It is likely that more children are ruined as regards social usefulness by too fond devo-tion on the part of parents than by turning them loose to fend for themselves. Certainly the child that is petted and spoiled by too much parental attention and interference is placed under a handicap when the inevitable time for it to guide his or her own destiny arrives. The parent may pamper the child if he chooses, but it is a cinch that the world for its part will not do much pampering once the child is placed in its care.

A United States Of Europe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The proposal of France that a United States of Europe be formed to overcome many of the ills of Europe is, or can be made, of tremendous significance. It is a distinct compliment to these United States and all the moral forces in and of this country should be lent to aid the proposal.

Years ago, during the World War, when Mr. Bryan was Secretary of State, I suggested to him that the greatest service we could render Europe and the world would be to co-operate in the formation of a "United States of Europe" on our American plan, and based on our experience. I suggested that as a great Democrat he was then in a peculiarly advantageous position to give impetus to this principle.

Later, I submitted to the Edward Bok Peace Committee that idea as the best peace plan for Europe and the world.

Later, Mr. Briand made his proposal and that proposal France is now reviving. It is practicable to form a United States of Europe, despite the difference in races, tradi-tions and antipathies. Border forts would disappear; passports and tariffs as between the states would become non-existent. The peoples would amalgamate to a consider-able extent. One state could not go to war with another, any more than one of our States can war with another. Great standing armies and armaments would be unnecessary.

A great organizing force can merge all these forces successfully and this country should render every reasonable moral and practi-cal aid to such a movement in the power of our Government and of our people—without endangering ourselves by undue "entanglement."

The Speed Mania.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

High speed, the auto industry oracularly tells us, is not the cause of accidents. It is "unsafe" speeds. Here is a fiddling with facts that a Rooseveltian air spellbinder might admire.

Production mania in most virulent form still grips the industry. With elimination of some most flagrant abuses incentive to owner-ship would be reduced, with re-sultant curb on production. For high-speed sells cars, particularly to the wild and woolly minority.

It has been my unenviable luck to witness many accidents. Some occurred at lower speeds. Most—by far the messier—at high speeds.

One good suggestion is offered—a board to handle traffic abuses on a national scale. But would the trade like the results, if unable to dictate the policies?

The industry might start its own house cleaning by partially muting that modern curse, the overloud horn; second, by educating the mod-ern generation to safety and mod-erate speeds, in interests of both self and gasoline preservation, else these youths will mature in a bicycle age.

Note to Hollywood.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Hollywood has, of late, been por-traying the lives of prominent men, and has done commendable jobs on scientific and political geniuses of the past. But it has overlooked, I think, a group of men, whose lives and sufferings, gave to the world lasting pleasures which are still enjoyed. I speak of the great musicians and master musical com-posers who achieved deserved im-mortality.

For sheer drama there can be no story conceived by a human mind that will match the life of Beetho-ven. There are other musicians whose lives would afford interest ing material. It should be done, Hollywood!

Merit System Defects.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The merit system, like the jury sys-tem, is probably the best approach to Government employment. I for one, however, do not see the per-fection of the system as others seem to see it.

For nearly three years I have been employed by emergency Gov-ernment agencies. In one of the departments in which I worked, many of the employes were from civil service. The theme song of these employes was: "See your congressman" when any question of promotion or other betterment of their positions was under discus-sion. I was told by most of these employes that they were able to get their positions only after their congressman had interceded. This situation did not make a favorable impression upon me as to the mer-its of the so-called merit system.

If I have been correctly informed, the governing officials of the United States Civil Service Commission do not get their positions through the merit system. If this information is correct I am wondering why they are not required to take the same medicine they mete out to others.

As for ability among employes of the Government, I have had splen-did opportunity of comparing work done by civil service employes with like work accomplished by those without civil service. My opinion is that the imperfections in one group is equal to the imperfections in the other. I have worked along-side employes with civil service rating who were wholly incompe-tent and it was a wonder to me how they ever passed an examina-tion. I have also worked with employes who procured their posi-tions through political pull and who were equally incompetent.

The depression has made avail-able the services of a host of com-petent men and women. Thousands of these are in Government service, the majority of whom are college trained. It is wholly unfair to think of them as being incompetent because they have not passed some civil service examination. It is also a misconception to consider a man competent merely because he has passed such a test.

Children And Crime.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

One of the important causes of crime in the District of Columbia is improper home conditions. It is almost tragic to observe the number of children who do not have the right kind of parents or home sur-roundings that are conducive to good citizenship. There is urgent need of something to supply this defficiency.

A juvenile court which is built along the lines of a criminal court is poorly adapted to meet this great need. The average juvenile offender does not need a finding of "guilty" or "not guilty." What he needs is training and guidance. It is abso-lutely necessary, therefore, that the functions of the Juvenile Court be expanded so as to liberalize its activities and to enable it to func-tion, not so much as a criminal court, but a medium of correction and an agency of rehabilitation. I am strongly in favor of the pro-posed bill.

Nineteen-Pound Birth.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The picture in The Post of April 6 of the baby born in Clear Lake, Iowa, weighing 16 pounds reminded me of a baby boy I delivered in Delaware 35 years ago that weighed 19 pounds, 2 ounces—a perfect child.

This record child was delivered near Harrington, Del., where I practiced medicine for 24 years.

The Need For More Purchasing Power.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The letter in your paper of April 3, signed "Vet Bureau" and captioned "How to Live on $1,440 a Year," ex-hibits the type of confused thinking that will lead inevitably to fascism in this country if sounder views do not prevail.

I agree that the Government can't expect a man to marry on $1,440 a year with any expectation that his family will be adequately sheltered and nourished. Numerous official surveys have fixed sums ranging from $2,000 up as minima for com-fortable living for families. It fol-lows, obviously, that the Govern-ment should not pay salaries less than are needed for suitable living standards to men with family re-sponsibilities. It follows, equally obviously, that private employers should adopt the same policy.

We can never get out of our economic troubles if there is not more purchasing power among our people. Competent studies have shown that the productive resources of our country are able, without any change in the structure of society, to provide much higher family in-comes than are now the rule, and the effort of organized labor is con-sciously directed toward such in-creased production and improved distribution that these universally higher incomes may be obtained.

The chief obstacle to organized labor's success in this campaign is the pernicious doctrine, spread by such persons as "Vet Bureau," that an employe should be grateful for any job, however parasitic the em-ployer. There is no reason why an employe should be grateful for any job that does not provide the ac-cepted minimum of comfortable living. He is being gypped if he gets anything less—assuming, of course, that he is efficient and not handicapped—and while he may have to accept it, under present con-ditions, he is under no obligation to be grateful for it.

Of course, we do not favor gam-bling of any sort. That is not in accord with the principles of the la-bor movement, which holds that value should be given for value and opposes the "something for noth-ing" school of thought. However, that is not material here; it is men-tioned simply because "Vet Bureau" seemed to think it necessary to ad-vise Government employes to avoid "numbers and nags."

"Vet Bureau" also thinks the young fellow who gets $1,440 a year is extremely lucky today. Everything is relative in this world, and he may be lucky or he may not. If his job leads to something, and he is young enough, he may be very lucky indeed. If, on the other hand, the "young fellow" isn't so young, and the job is a blind alley, as so many are, both in the Govern-ment and outside, he is "lucky" only in the sense that perhaps he is lucky to be existing at all. That might be open to debate.

What labor needs is to be less satisfied with little, to seek the standards of living and working conditions that labor has made pos-sible for all, but so seldom gets. Labor must constantly seek more; for only by doing so can the pro-ductive process expand to the point where a real prosperity can be as-sured.

The Post Impressionist

"Water, Water Everywhere."

Post Office, Thursday.

WHAT writer of thrillers, from Wilkie Collins to Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, has not reflected upon the manner wherein appar-ently trifling events may lead to dire consequences:

"He little guessed how strange and awful were to be the effects of this commonplace courtesy.

"Had she not carried her um-brella, she might never have real-ized that there lay, close at hand, a distressing and, yes, dangerous puzzle."

Just so, if we hadn't begun to plan our 1936 vacation just when we did begin to plan it, we might never have been entangled in the Mystery of Lake Murray.

* * *

We wanted to take our annual lay-off early. We argued:

"This is a Presidential election year; Washington is the Presiden-tial city. The Republican conven-tion occurs, at Cleveland, in June: so June will be interesting at Washington. The Democratic con-vention occurs at Philadelphia in July: so July in Washington will be interesting. After that, the campaign will be on, and Washing-ton will be an extremely interest-ing place until the 2d or 3d of November. We should like to take our vacation early June."

Whereto the boss responded:

"Why not go to Lake Murray?"

* * *

We were all set for our little place at Sebasco, Maine. But po-liteness compelled us to inquire:

"Where's Lake Murray?"

The boss, just returned from a Southern motor trip, answered:

"It's in South Carolina, close to Columbia."

* * *

It appeared he hadn't been there—hadn't had time to turn from the direct route to visit the place—and infinitely regretted missing it. He said:

"Nearing Columbia, I looked at the road-map and saw Lake Mur-ray marked on it. Saw it? A blind man couldn't have missed seeing it! Here it is."

The boss produced the road-map: Lake Murray looked somewhat big-ger than Lake Erie. It was enor-mous. It was astonishing. It routed all our memories of school-day geography. We gasped out the confession that we'd never known there was anything of the sort in South Carolina.

"Neither did I," said he. "That's why I'm so interested. I wish you'd go there for your vacation and tell me about it. I can't under-stand why I never heard of it be-fore."

* * *

We got out our 1930 atlas and turned to its map of the United States: no Lake Murray was marked. We hurried the pages to the large-scale chart of South Carolina: not a sign of Lake Mur-ray. We searched the encyclo-pedia's article on South Carolina—searched the index, too—but we searched in vain.

There is a young South Caro-linian not distantly connected with this newspaper. We asked her what she knew about Lake Murray as a summer resort. She regarded us with the eyes of Juno. We might as well have asked her the temperature at the lowest level of King Solomon's Mines.

"Lake Murray?" she repeated. "Where's that?"

* * *

Messrs. Smith and Byrnes were on the floor of the Senate: they couldn't be disturbed. The six Rep-resentatives of South Carolina were attending a half-dozen committee meetings: they couldn't be dis-turbed. And the Columnists' Union requires its members to quit work at 5: We had to go home.

* * *

But we didn't enjoy our dinner. Nor did we sleep well. The lapping waves of Lake Murray watered our wine: the crash of those breakers rang in our ears . . .

* * *

Coming down to the office next morning, we couldn't restrain our-selves from interrogating the mo-torman, against whom we were leaning. We were right: he was born in South Carolina. We were right again; he'd never heard of Lake Murray.

* * *

Since then, we have telephoned to sundry natives of South Caro-lina who have been long honored residents of Washington. They never heard of Lake Murray, either.

* * *

Now, we can't believe that Lake Murray was always in South Caro-lina and that the atlases missed it. Nor do we like to believe that such a vast body of water was thrown up by some natural convul-sion concerning which loyal South Carolinians have entered into a conspiracy of silence. And yet we don't like to call that road-map a liar.

We'd be willing to donate our next pay-envelope for financing Dr. Beebe (of deep-sea fame) or Dr. Blagen (the Trojan digger) upon a South Carolinian exploration, in order that the mystery might be solved. But we are not the sort of person to send other people into perils which we ourselves fear to encounter—and, anyhow, the fair face of no danger on earth can woo us from the delights of Sebasco.

* * *

We suggest that the Smithsonian Institution and the National Geo-graphic Society club together to father the Lake Murray job.

Idle Still—Hoping

A New Order Arises.

AMERICA'S unemployed, of which there are still more than 11,000,000, have become conscious of the fact they constitute a separate social class by themselves. Two years ago their faces were masked by what Frank Morrison, veteran A. F. of L. craft-unionist, called "an elemental sadness." This has gone now. And while their faces are not lit with sunshine, they are touched with hope. For they are learning one of labor's greatest lessons—that nothing comes to those who do not organize to get it. And so here to Washington the jobless of America have sent their delegates to form what might well be called an industrial union of unemployed.

Such thoughts occurred to me yesterday sitting in the auditorium of the Labor Department, where the Workers Alliance is meeting this week. Looking up from the press table, I could see row upon row of faces. Some were old faces, lined, weather-beaten, weary. Others were young faces, some surprisingly young and almost fresh and fair. They were of all types, white and black, Nordic, Latin, Mongolian. They were such faces as you will see on tenant farms, or in factories, or on WPA projects across the land, most of them. But some were faces that belonged behind store counters or stenographers' desks, or even on the platforms of schoolrooms. Only on a few were written that strain of "elemental sadness" that white-haired Frank Morrison saw two years ago.

These men and women, sitting there in perfect order at a convention conducted with meticulous regard for the Rules of Order, listened to speakers yesterday. One was Morrison, who told at length of the legislative work the A. F. of L. has been doing in behalf of the workers, and inviting the workless to co-operate closely with the Federation. Another was Nels Anderson, so-called fall guy for Harry Hopkins, who admitted that all Government officials had to have a split personality and that he, unfortunately, was there as an official. "But even so," he said, "ask me questions!"

• • • •

THE workless took a vote on whether they would or not. They listened, finally, to the counsel of a delega who said, "Why should we waste time asking questions of a petty Government official?" and turned down Mr. Anderson's offer. They wanted to get ahead on what to them is the important job, forming a national organization of all the unemployed.

If industrial unionism should spread, here, I felt, was a fair sample of what it would be like. For at this convention there is a great diversity of people, of mental development, of skill. Some bear union cards showing that when they have work it is on jobs that take knowing. Others have never done much else than swing picks. Still others could add complicated figures and do double entry. Here, if ever, was a vertical union, taking in everybody in the startlingly huge industry of unemployment. They sat there listening to David Lasser, their Socialist chairman, and you knew that some were not Socialists, but voted a straight party ticket every election day. Others read and even preached Karl Marx.

This cross-section of men and women without work going so soberly about the task of getting together to help themselves, in some blind way, out of their morass, was impressive. It had none of the degradation one used to see in Gospel missions and, while few if any were really decently clothed, there was nothing depressing in their attitude. At least I didn't feel depressed. It was difficult to learn just what they want, or how they hope to get it, but you could tell that not yet were these workless ready to go out and face the barricades.

• • • •

FRANK MORRISON saw that, too. Addressing them, he recalled the desperate hunger march of 1932, with its revolutionary implications. Today, he said, the unemployed have welded themselves together, and instead of marching like an angry army they have sent their delegates peacefully and lawfully to the seat of government. In '32 the workless were met by police. Today the Government has given them a hall to meet in, even if it has found no place for the more desperate to sleep, or food for them to eat.

And this, really, was the surprising thing. Even if members of the so-called Red squad were mingled with the delegates, the other police on duty showed no animosity. Like the unemployed themselves, the police and Government take them for granted. And this is something to think about, seriously.

The Industrial Union of the Jobless is worth seeing. Not as a spectacle, but as something symbolical of American life. I would rather have been there yesterday than at that birthday party to John the Baptist, Mrs. "Chip" Robert's horse.

Gold Strike Reported In Tonopah, Nev., Yard

Tonopah, Nev., April 8 (AP).—This famous old gold and silver camp was excited today by the reported discovery of ore deposits only 50 feet from a main business street.

Digging a cesspool in the back yard of a Mineral street home, Pete Moksimovich and Jim Markran struck ore which assayed from $35 to $60 a ton, they reported.

In deepening the shaft they said they uncovered a 4-foot ledge.

Observer Sees No Balance Of Powers Today Waiting To Be Tipped; Belligerency Of Dictators Offset By New Elements.

By Livingston Hartley.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

WHEN the German army entered the Rhineland, and Belgian farmers fled from their homes near the frontier, the thoughts of millions of people turned back to 1914. The capitals of Europe were much more shaken by Hitler's coup than they had been by the murder of Serajevo. War had been proved inevitable then, and today many believe that war has again become inevitable. But it is a question whether the peace of Europe is today more or less precarious than it was 22 years ago.

The present pessimism forms a striking contrast to the optimism with which the great majority regarded the future in 1914. This pessimism is largely due to three psychological causes.

The ordinary citizen of every land has been shocked and horrified to find that man is less civilized than our grandfathers believed. Germany and Italy have both contributed much to the advance of Western civilization. Yet Germany torpedoed the Lusitania in 1915 and introduced gas and other new horrors into the science of warfare. Italy, 21 years later, has opened new fields of human barbarity by bombing civilians in open African towns and by dropping mustard gas on unprotected natives.

National morality has been shown to be far lower than former generations believed, not only by such atrocities, but by a widespread disregard of solemn treaty obligations. The result is popular cynicism toward any government promise and a general conviction that public decency is no longer sufficient to restrain governments from employing the most ruthless and inhuman means to gain their ends in war.

Popular cynicism has consequently been accompanied by mass fear, since the German Gothas suggested, and the Italian Caproni's have proved, what a terrible menace modern air power can be to civilian populations. Disillusion, distrust, cynicism and fear have made Europeans pessimistic.

This pessimism would seem to be justified by certain developments that have taken place in the last 20 years. The most important of these is the rise of dictatorship, which now lays its iron hand upon the destinies of three European great powers.

• • • •

HISTORY shows that dictators tend to be warlike, and are constantly tempted to create international friction abroad as the easiest means of maintaining their personal popularity at home. Both Hitler and Mussolini, in their speeches and in their actions, have demonstrated the threat to peace inherent in dictatorship.

Modern dictatorships, moreover, are far better organized for war than even the old autocracies. The totalitarian state permits no political opposition, maintains rigid control over the press, radio and all other organs of propaganda, regulates education and can swing an entire nation behind its policies in a manner unknown to prewar rulers. The Kaiser was a pale shadow of Hitler in his ability to launch Germany overnight on a war of aggression.

Rapidly increasing armaments are again, as in 1914, a threat to peace in Europe. Today, however, air power and mechanization of armies make this threat more acute by permitting an aggressor state to strike a decisive blow in the first few hours of hostilities. In the opinion of many authorities, such a blow would in future be struck through a surprise attack without any declaration of war, as H. G. Wells suggests in the film of "Things to Come." This precedent has already been established by the Italians in Ethiopia.

Finally, Germany, Japan and Italy have all proved that international treaties, which were generally regarded as sacrosanct before the "scrap of paper" speech of 1914, will only serve as adequate bulwarks of peace when backed by superior force.

In the light of these developments the future of Europe looks dark. There is, however, another side to the picture.

• • • •

THE last 22 years have witnessed a revolutionary change in the popular attitude toward war. Before 1914, war was the "great adventure," where an individual soldier won glory in a dashing bayonet or cavalry charge, led by a smartly clad officer who gallantly flourished his sword.

We see war differently today. We picture a group of former citizens in filthy khaki and gas masks, hiding for hours in the mud beneath a nerve-racking barrage. Or we visualize a city clerk, his wife and his children cowering in a cellar in a flaming city under an enemy air raid. The romance has gone out of war with mechanization, with the compulsory draft, and with the extension of hostilities to the civilian population. Romance has been replaced by realism and by fear.

From this fear, and from new conceptions of international relations embodied in the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact, there has grown an entirely new popular attitude toward war "as an instrument of national policy." This new attitude is reflected in the world-wide condemnation of Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia, which would have created a very limited outcry a generation ago, and in the growth of pacifist movements such as the 11,000,000 "peace votes" in Great Britain. Any realistic comparison of actual conditions with those of 1914 must recognize the vast influence of public opposition to war on every government which is not terrorized by a dictator.

• • • •

IF we turn to the national structure of Europe we see that the last 22 years have wrought a radical change. There were then two well-balanced alliances which had contended for supremacy for many years. These two teams were of almost equal strength, lined up for a conflict in which either side might win.

These rival alliances do not exist today. We see, instead, Germany, standing alone in Europe. Arrayed against Germany is an infinitely stronger group of states,—France, Russia and the Little Entente, with the probable support of Great Britain—in the event of another war.

This line-up is perhaps the strongest bulwark against war in Europe at the present time. Whatever the attitude of Hitler, the German army would be unwilling to tackle such superior forces without the assistance of allies. Until Germany finds some powerful allies she cannot start another world war.

If Germany could form an alliance with Poland, Italy, Austria and Hungary, we should have again a European situation analogous to 1914. The two teams would again be drawn up, and the German side would have a chance of victory. The formation of such a German bloc, however, does not appear imminent for two reasons: First, Mussolini has recently thrown his weight more decisively than ever behind Austrian independence; second, Mussolini does not like Hitler, and the personal hates of dictators are potent factors in European politics.

• • • •

IN the international sphere we have achieved great progress since 1914 through the erection of machinery for collective security. However imperfectly the League of Nations has functioned in the Manchurian and Ethiopian disputes, its values as a bulwark against war in Europe should not be under-estimated. Without the League, its Covenant obligations and its machinery for conference, compromise and delay, we might well have war in Europe now, since France might have met the German occupation of the Rhineland with unilateral military action instead of joining in multilateral efforts to reach a peaceful settlement.

The future value of the League as a guarantor of peace is uncertain. Constant disregard of international obligations may make its machinery inoperative as far as positive action to restrain an aggressor is concerned. It may continue, however, to play a negative role of the first importance, since it insures a meeting of responsible European statesmen whenever a crisis occurs, allows delay of action until heated emotions cool, and provides an opportunity for a united front for the maintenance of peace.

It should be remembered in this connection that Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary of 1914, is on record as stating that a meeting of European statesmen alone in the month after Serajevo could have prevented the World War.

A comparison of 1936 and 1914 in Europe leads to one conclusion. Despite pessimism, dictators and re-armament, another great European war is far less likely today than it was then. Before 1940, however, this outlook may change fundamentally, either through the formation of a powerful bloc of states behind Germany, or through the complete collapse of existing international machinery.

Don't Mention It.

Senate Hearing Seen as Result Of TWA Crash

Copeland Sub-committee Is Likely to Call U. S. Aids; Wreck Examined.

Active resumption of the Senate's investigation into the safety of air transportation appeared probable yesterday as a result of the TWA crash near Uniontown, Pa., Wednesday, which took the lives of 11 persons.

The Commerce sub-committee, headed by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, temporarily had suspended the hearings after hearing charges of "inefficiency" hurled at officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Now, however, it appears that Jay A. Mount, former Air Commerce official, who had testified that "criminal negligence" existed in the bureau, will be recalled the witness stand.

Hearings cannot be resumed immediately, however, as Col. Harold Hartney, the committee's principal investigator, has gone to Uniontown to conduct an investigation of the Sun Racer accident.

On his return it is expected that he will go over the results of his inquiry with members of the committee, after which Eugene Vidal, director of the Bureau of Air Commerce, and his aids will be called to testify.

Meanwhile Secretary Roper stated yesterday nine officials of his department had been dispatched to the scene of the crash to make a thorough study of events which led up to the destruction of the twin-engined airliner in the fog at Chestnut Ridge, Pa.

Asked to comment on charges that the accident was caused by failure of the Department of Commerce radio beam, Secretary Roper said:

"The radio beacons were flight-checked by Mr. C. A. Lample, a Bureau of Air Commerce radio patrol pilot, on March 29, and as a consequence a notice was sent to all airlines operating in and out of Pittsburgh on April 1, including TWA, setting forth the exact status of both beams.

Checked Beams After Crash.

"Upon receipt of reports that the TWA Sun Racer had crashed, Mr. Lample was called on the telephone and asked to flight check the beams immediately.

"He found, I am advised, that the courses marked by both radio beacons were functioning in the same manner as he found them on the occasion of his official check on March 29."

Secretary Roper added that these findings were confirmed by another pilot, Horace Stark, of Central Airlines, who flew into Pittsburgh Wednesday morning from Akron, arriving there less than an hour before the TWA plane was scheduled to land.

"He said he tuned in on the Pittsburgh beam on leaving Akron and found it to be of sufficient strength and clearness of tone. He reported also that light to moderate ice was ecountered but no radio trouble was experienced," Secretary Roper added.

Bureau of Air Commerce officials were reluctant to comment yesterday on the accident pending receipt of detailed information from investigators in the field.

Radio Set Failure Hinted.

However, one of them explained that in addition to failure of the radio beam it was possible that the two-way radio set carried by the plane might have failed. The failure of this equipment, which is owned and maintained by the company flying the plane, would render the beam useless to the pilot, it was explained.

South Trimble, jr., Solicitor of the Department, headed the list of officials who have gone to the scene of the accident near Uniontown. Denis Mulligan, aeronautical lawyer attached to the Solicitor's office, has been placed in direct charge of the investigators.

Others from the department include Rex Martin, assistant director of the bureau; R. W. Schroeder, chief of the airline inspection service; I. R. Metcalf, expert on ice formation, and the following inspectors: R. I. Hazen, B. M. Jacobs, O. D. Murphy and G. W. Lossow.

On their return to Washington these officials will prepare a complete report on the causes of the accident, which will be made public "in about a month."

The existence of a radio phenomenon termed "multiple courses" was advanced yesterday as a possible cause of the accident by one aviation authority who asked that his name be withheld.

"There are definite cases on record," he said, "in this locality where the beam has 'spread.' This is caused by reflection of the radio signals, but never has been conquered.

"When it has occurred, the plane usually was flying away from the radio beacon and not towards it, as was the case of the Sun Racer," he added.

Investigators Examine Wreck.

By the Associated Press.

Uniontown, Pa., April 8.—Investigators examined in vain today every fragment of the demolished 9-ton T. W. A. liner, Sun Racer, for a clew to indicate the cause of the disastrous end of its flight.

Relatives claimed the bodies of the 11 persons—9 passengers and 2 pilots—who were killed when the lost transport crashed against a mountainside. Only three survived and one of them is in serious condition.

After hours of search of the wreckage, Maj. R. W. Schroeder, of the Department of Commerce, said:

"In my opinion, the cause of this catastrophe never will be known. The wreckage is horribly tangled, and indications are the pilot, missing his beam, crashed suddenly while attempting to gain altitude after he struck a tree."

Survivors Improving.

At the Uniontown Hospital, the survivors showed improvement. Mrs. Meyer C. Ellenstein, whose condition is serious, is the wife of the Mayor of Newark, N. J.

The other two are Miss Nellie Granger, heroine hostess of the ill-fated plane, and C. C. Challinor, of Cleveland and New York.

Miss Granger and Mrs. Ellenstein were the only two women aboard.

Little Miss Granger smiled wearily on her hospital cot today and moved her legs and arms to show she came out of the wreckage uninjured. Asked how she felt, her reply was:

"I feel sick."

It was Miss Granger who stumbled through miles of brush and over a mountain trail to bring aid to the injured.

At the scene of the crash, investigators examined broken dials and all bits of the liner that were left after fire swept the fusilage.

Board to Make Inquiry.

T. W. A. officials in New York announced a board would be appointed to make a full inquiry. Two pilots, two superintendents and one or two other officials will make up the group. S. A. Baltz, the Fayette County coroner, said his investigation will begin after the three survivors recover sufficiently.

John Walker, vice president of T. W. A., expressed the belief the plane, for an unknown reason, had strayed from its course and that the pilot thought he was in a different locality. He said:

"It was possible the pilot was totally unaware there were any mountains in the vicinity and that his first warning came when the rear or wing of the plane struck a tree."

Film Stars' Instructor Manager Hurt in Plane

New York, April 8 (AP).—Katharine Hepburn's manager and Ruth Chatterton's flying instructor were injured slightly late today as an airplane in which they were landing at Roosevelt Field crashed through a steel fence.

The plane was owned by Leland Hayward, Miss Hepburn's manager, who suffered bruises about the knees. It was piloted by Robert Blair, who taught Miss Chatterton to fly. Blair also suffered leg bruises.

Rosa Ponselle Suffers Broken Arm in Scene

New York, April 8 (AP).—Rosa Ponselle, her manager disclosed today, suffered a fracture of the arm in the performance of "Carmen" Saturday night in Baltimore.

In the third-act scene, when the street dancer leaves Done Jose to go to Escamillo, Rene Maison, the French tenor, threw Miss Ponselle too hard upon the stage.

000 a year and have collected about $140,000 for a special radio fund.

The committee put into the record a list of 39 individuals who contributed not only to the Crusaders but to various other alleged lobbies. Prominent in the list were the names of Irene du Pont, Lamont du Pont, E. F. Hutton, former chairman of the board of General Foods; F. A. Merrick, president of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.; Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, and J. Howard Pew, president of the Sun Oil Co.

Listeners Contibute.

Clark testified that in addition to large contributions from prominent persons, thousands of contributions "from a nickel up" came from listeners to the radio broadcast. He told of one Ohio woman who sent $1 and said she had only 50 cents left to buy food. He said he returned the $1 but the woman sent it back to him.

Senator Schwellenbach quoted a Crusader broadcast which said that none of the officers or leaders were paid. When it was revealed that Fred W. Blaisdell, of Chicago, assistant business manager, is receiving $400 a month, Clark said he would correct the statement in his next broadcast, although he did not consider Blaisdell an "officer or leader."

Proud of Contributors.

Challenged by Schwellenbach to broadcast a list of contributors to the organization, Clark said he would devote an entire broadcast to the subject.

"I am proud of the list," he said.

R. D. Metcalf, New England manager for the Crusaders, said he had personally contributed $25,000, mostly in the payment of bills. He said he had tried every possible way to raise money, including employment of a professional money-raising organization which "raised about 20 per cent of what it cost."

In behalf of the committee it was explained that the list of contributors to the Crusaders who also contributed to other organizations was obtained through questionnaires sent to individuals. This list, with amounts contributed to each organization, follows:

H. M. Addinsell, New York, president Chase Harris Forbes Corporation—Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $200.

E. M. Allen, New York, president, Matheison Alkali Works—Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $100; American Taxpayers League, $35; National Economy League, $50.

Du Ponts Contribute.

Irenee du Pont, vice chairman, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Crusaders, $10,000; Sentinels of the Republic, $100; Liberty League, $86,750; Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, $50; Minute Men and Women of Today, $1,400.

Lammot du Pont, president, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Crusaders, $1,000; Liberty League, $10,000; New York State Economy Council, $1,000; Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, $1,000; Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, $3,000; Repeal Associates, $2,000; Farmers Independence Council, $5,000; American Wild Life Institute, $1,000; Women Investors of America, $500; Council for Moderation, $250; Pennsylvania Protection Bureau, $2,000.

A. B. Echols, vice president, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Crusaders, $75; Sentinels of the Republic, $25; Liberty League, $375; American Federation of Utility Investors, $50; Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, $75; Taxpayers Research Council, $130; Farmers Independence Council, $100.

Joseph H. Emery, New York, member advisory board Chase National Bank, Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $675; New York State Economy Council, $350.

Hutton's Donations.

E. F. Hutton, New York, former chairman General Foods, Inc., Crusaders, $5,000; Liberty League, $10,000.

William H. LaBoyteaux, New York, president Johnson & Higgins, Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $100; American Taxpayers League, $40; National Economy League, $100; Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, $125; Citizens Budget Committee, $20.

Stuart Logan, Chicago, Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $100.

S. T. McCall, New York, vice president American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co., Crusaders, $50; Liberty League, $100; American Federation of Utility Investors, $10.

F. A. Merrick, president Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., Crusaders, $878.28; National Economy League, $3.

George M. Moffett, New York, president Corn Products Refining Co., Crusaders, $5,000; Liberty League, $10,000.

E. W. Montgomery, Greenville, S. C., cotton merchant, Crusaders, $50; Liberty League, $125; Committee for the Nation, $25.

E. M. Morris, South Bend, Ind., investment company official, Crusaders, $25; Liberty League, $50; Economists National Council on Monetary Policy, $100.

John A. Morris, New York, member Gude, Wimmill & Co., Crusaders, $75; Sentinels of the Republic, $10; Liberty League, $400; American Taxpayers League, $10; American Federation of Utility Investors, $65.

J. Howard Pew, president, Sun Oil Co.—Crusaders, $4,600; sentinels of the Republic, $5,000; Liberty League, $10,000; American Taxpayers League, $10; National Economy League, $5,000.

Frank Purnell, Youngstown, Ohio, president, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.—Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $100.

Sloan Gives $10,000.

Benjamin Rosenthal, New York, vice president, United States Playing Card Co.—Crusaders, $200; Liberty League, $200; American Federation of Utility Investors, $10; New York State Economy Council, $15.

E. C. Sams, New York, president, J. C. Penney Co.—Crusaders, $100; Liberty League, $100.

John M. Schiff, New York, partner, Kuhn, Loeb & Co.—Crusaders, $1,750; New York State Economy Council, $200; National Economy League, $1,000; Citizens Committee, $200; Citizens Budget Committee, $200; National Civic Federation, $200.

Alfred P. Sloan, New York, president, General Motors—Crusaders, $10,000; Liberty League, $15,000; New York State Economy Council, $250; National Economy League, $250.

Lionel F. Strauss, New York, street railway executive—Crusaders, $200; Sentinels of the Republic, $25.

B. E. Sunny, Chicago—Crusaders, $75; American Federation of Utility Investors, $10.

J. H. Van Alstyne, New York, president, Otis Elevator Co.—Crusaders, $25; Liberty League, $100; New York State Economy Council, $100; League for Industrial Rights, $50.

J. W. Waisek, jr., Chicago lumberman—Crusaders, $45; Liberty League, $10.

E. T. Weir, Pittsburgh, president, Weirton Steel Co.—Crusaders, $8,250; Liberty League, $15,000; National Economy League, $500.

Radio Fund Donors.

S. A. Archer, Minneapolis, president Archer-Daniels-Midland Co., $5,000.

James F. Bell, Minneapolis, chairman General Mills, Inc., $5,876.28.

E. R. Crawford, McKeesport, Pa., president McKeesport Tinplate Co., $5,000.

H. B. Earhart, Detroit, manager Earhart Foundation, $3,376.27.

A. Rex Flinn, Pittsburgh, president Booth & Flinn, Ltd., $5,000.

Howard Heinz, president H. J. Heinz Co., $5,876.27.

E. F. Hutton, New York, former president General Foods, $5,000.

E. T. Weir, president Weirton Steel Co., $5,876.28.

F. B. Wells, Minneapolis, vice president F. H. Peavey & Co., $5,000.

Philip K. Wrigley, Chicago, president William Wrigley, jr., Co., $5,000.

Shouse Insists Private Wires Were Inspected

Replies to Schwellenbach; Holds F. C. C. Guilty of 'Illegal Act.'

Jouett Shouse, president of the American Liberty League, in a radio address last night renewed his charges that the Senate lobby investigating committee seized not only telegrams of lobbyists, but examined thousands of private messages.

Referring to a speech in the Senate by Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, a member of the committee, Shouse said that "if he has any quarrel, it is with the Constitution and the courts."

Shouse renewed his charge that every telegram passing through Washington telegraph offices during ten months of last year was "subject to examination" by committee representatives. He pointed out that Schwellenbach did not deny his assertion that 22,000 telegrams were copied and turned over to the committee.

"It was a fishing expedition," he said, "and I am not so credulous as to believe that even the trained fingers of the agents of an over-zealous and politically organized Senate committee could or did have a magic touch enabling them to pounce upon thousands of particular telegrams without unlawfully reading private messages.

"The Black committee confesses it has read and taken possession of such private telegrams. It makes this confession when it seeks to reassure the people by declaring that it has not and will not use such private communications or make them public."

Shouse quoted Schwellenbach as saying that no telegrams not connected with lobbying were examined.

"In answer to the Senator's assertion, I repeat the charge made in my speech March 27 that thousands of the telegrams delivered to the Black committee under blanket subpenas before the court halted such actions, which were plainly of a private nature, having no relation to any subject the committee was authorized to investigate, were placed in sealed envelopes on which was indorsed their private and personal character, and that those envelopes, in case after case, were opened by the investigators of the Black committee and the telegrams inspected," he said.

Shouse charged that the Federal Communications Commission, in assisting the committee to obtain telegrams, "was guilty of an illegal act."

The Liberty League president quoted the recent warning by the Supreme Court against encroachment by Government agencies upon the rights of individuals.

"This courageous decision," he said, "will hearten all who believe in the protection of constitutional rights, but, like other recent decisions, it will be condemned by the bureaucrats of the New Deal and spokesmen for the New Inquisition."

Girls Challenge Actor To Swimming Contest

Salt Lake City, April 8 (AP).—Brunette Hazel Cunningham challenged Eric Rhodes today to a distance swimming race in Great Sale Lake—and started something.

Three more girls joined Miss Cunningham, convert-reared former San Francisco nurse, in demands that Rhodes, young Hollywood film player, make a "free-for-all" of his proposed attempt to set a new salt-water swimming record.

Zilla Layton, veteran of previous Great Salt Lake races, heard about Miss Cunningham's challenge and promptly added hers. In quick succession followed Donna Manning, of Ogden, Utah, and Cora Lee Ansell, high school student.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

The Lady and the Murder Trial.

Q. Now then, Miss Joople, the police entered the room, found Mr. Kweep dead on the bed with a dagger in his chest, and you standing over him; is that correct?

A. I don't remember.

Q. You mean to say that you don't recall such a situation?

A. The dagger is familiar but I don't recall the man.

Q. How were you dressed when the police entered?

A. I had on a Turkish towel and a pair of bedroom slippers.

Q. How did you come to be in Mr. Kweep's room?

A. I was lured there from my apartment 6 miles away.

Q. Just how were you lured?

A. Well, I was in the bath when a telegram came. It said, "Come up and see me some time," and was signed "Philbert."

Q. What did you do next?

A. I went over the Philberts and figured out which one this was. Then I threw a towel around me and took a taxi.

Q. Weren't there any trolley cars or busses running?

A. Yes, but no expresses!

Q. Now then, Miss Joople, why didn't you stop to dress before going to Mr. Kweep's apartment 6 miles away in the middle of the night?

A. I suspected he was a scoundrel, a beast and a brute, and I wanted to find out for certain.

Q. When you arrived at the apartment house did you walk up?

A. No, I took the elevator.

Q. Why?

A. On account of the lure.

Q. You knew this man was married and had a family of 14 children, did you not?

A. No; he had deceived me basely; he said there were only 13 children.

Q. Now then, after you arrived in Mr. Kweep's apartment, what happened?

A. I suddenly realized where I was.

Q. For the first time?

A. No; I'd been there before.

Q. What did Mr. Kweep do?

A. He kissed me, told me he loved me and then . . . oh, must I go on?

Judge. You must go on, Miss Joople.

A. Then he pointed to the phonograph and . . . please, your honor . . .

Judge. I'm sorry but you must tell everything.

A. He . . . he asked me to play the record, "The Music Goes 'Round and Around" . . . Then everything went black.

Judge. Black is no name for it. Shall I charge the jury?

A. Yes, and if you don't mind, charge it to Mr. Kweep.

Jury Foreman (abruptly). Your honor, we have heard enough. The prisoner is not guilty. Any lady would have done the same in her place.

Prosecutor. Yes, but she wasn't in her place; she was in her place.

Judge. Don't be technical. The defendant is discharged. American womanhood must be protected.

Defendant (smiling for the cameramen). Judge, may I have the dagger back?

Judge. I guess so. But what do you want it for?

Defendant. I'm expecting another telegram.

Post Is Ranked 3d Paper in U.S. On Typography

N. Y. Herald Tribune Wins First, N. Y. Times 2d in Ayer's Competition.

Special Dispatch to THE POST.

Philadelphia, April 6.—The Washington Post was awarded third place among daily newspapers of circulations of more than 50,000 in the Sixth Exhibition of Newspaper Typography conducted by N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., Philadelphia advertising agency, according to the announcement of award made today. It won this recognition in competition with 374 newspapers from all over the United States entered in the same circulation division. In making this award the judges took into consideration typography, lay-out, make-up, press-work and general typographical excellence. First place in the more than 50,000 circulation division went to the New York Herald Tribune which also was awarded the permanent possession of the Francis Wayland Ayer Cup, which was offered the paper three times receiving first place among all entries regardless of circulation. The cup had been received by the Herald Tribune in 1931 and 1934. The New York Times received it in 1933 and 1935 and the Hartford Courant in 1932. Second place in the more than 50,000 circulation division went to the New York Times. Papers in this division surviving to the final elimination were: The El Paso (Tex.) Times, The Scranton (Pa.) Republican, The Athens (Ohio) Messenger, Arkansas Democrat, Little Rock; The Peoria (Ill.) Journal, St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press, Jackson (Colo.) Citizen-Patriot, Denver (Conn.) Journal and New Haven Courier.

First place among the 943 papers of less than 10,000 circulation went to the Amsterdam (N. Y.) Evening Recorder, second to The Beloit (Wis.) Daily News, third to The Evening Tribune, Hornell, N. Y. Papers surviving to the final elimination were: The Daily Reporter, White Plains, N. Y.; The Daily Mining Journal, Marquette, Mich.; The Titusville Herald, Titusville, Pa.; Morristown Daily Record, Morristown, N. J.; The Morning Press, Santa Barbara, Calif.; The Oregon Statesman, Salem, Oreg., and The Daily Missoulian, Missoula, Mont. All the 1,445 papers in the contest were issues of March 4. They will be placed on public exhibit in the Ayer Galleries. Formal presentation of the cup and certificates of award will be made later.

The judges were Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times; Prof. Kenneth E. Olson, chairman of the Department of Journalism of the University; and John Clyde Oswald, of New York, author, printer and former owner and publisher of the American Printer.

Another indication of PROGRESS

From semi-obscurity three years ago to a top position among the Nation's great newspapers today—in content as well as in appearance—this, the story of The Washington Post.

Readers find The Washington Post today a more interesting, informative, readable paper than ever before. No wonder advertisers are finding, in the results derived from the advertising columns, a reflection of this ever increasing reader interest and reader confidence.

And The Washington Post will continue to grow . . . . in appearance—interest—circulation—and advertising value

President and First Lady Plan Busy Easter Program

Niece and Nephew Will Be White House Guests; Picnic on Sunday Afternoon and Attendance at Egg-Rolling Monday Are Scheduled.

By Vylla Poe Wilson.

The Easter Sunday program of President and Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt will include the service at 11 o'clock at St. Thomas' Church and a picnic luncheon in the country if the weather permits. President and Mrs. Roosevelt will dine at the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt's niece and nephew, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, a sub-debutante, and Daniel Roosevelt, a student at St. Paul's School, and their stepfather, Mr. John Cutter, of Boston, will be Easter guests at the White House.

According to her usual custom, Mrs. Roosevelt will go to early morning service at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, early Easter Sunday morning.

Easter Monday morning, President and Mrs. Roosevelt will appear on the south portico of the White House to greet the hundreds of children who will be admitted to the White House Grounds to roll eggs. A band will play and the usual Easter Monday egg rolling features will be in progress. Mrs. Roosevelt will stroll through the grounds among the children several times during the egg-rolling hours.

The White House will be invaded Monday afternoon by a group of District of Columbia Girl Scouts, who will not hunt for Easter eggs, but for fire hazards in the Executive Mansion. The fire-hazard hunt in the White House will be in connection with the safety in the home campaign of the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Roosevelt said at her press conference yesterday that no doubt the youthful critics will be able to find many things incorrect from a safety viewpoint in the White House. People who live in a house are not able to judge such things as well as people who come in from the outside, she pointed out.

The Girl Scouts will look for such things as stairways that go down too suddenly and are improperly lighted, rugs that slip on the floors, and so forth. The conference was held in the Monroe Room, where, it was remarked, the doors all open inward, as many of the White House doors do.

Mrs. Roosevelt attended the luncheon of the League of Women Voters yesterday. She received Miss Josephine Brown and a group of social workers at the White House in the afternoon and attended also the opening of the headquarters of the Women's National Democratic Council.

Today she will go to New York. She will be back tomorrow in time to meet the President, who will return to Washington from his vacation.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the Ambassador of Great Britain, and a small group will be received at the White House for tea tomorrow afternoon.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt will receive students of two Hudson River schools.

The French Boy Scout, Bernard M. de Boissiere, who is in this country to return the recent visit to France of an American Boy Scout, will arrive at the White House late in the afternoon of April 14 and will be an overnight guest there.

Pearl Buck Feted By Mrs. Roosevelt At a Dinner Party

Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at dinner last evening in the Executive Mansion, having as her guests Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Walsh, the latter better known as Pearl Buck, author and lecturer.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Roosevelt attended the lecture on "China, the Land I Know the Best," given at Constitution Hall by Miss Buck, and spoke briefly before introducing her.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore for the occasion a gown of white satin with a sash of deep blue velvet which also trimmed the edge of the full skirt.

Mrs. Walsh wore a gown of white satin with a shoulder cape of the same material.

The lecture, dealing with the people of China, their customs and superstitions, was for the benefit of the research laboratory at Vineland, N. J.

Mrs. Roosevelt Inspects New Voters' Home

By Dudley Harmon.

Mrs. Roosevelt energetically ran up and down the steps yesterday in a tour of inspection of the new headquarters of the Democratic Absentee Voters' Bureau of the Democratic Women's National Council, at 1406 G street. The occasion was the housewarming given by the members and in less than 15 minutes Mrs. Roosevelt had made the complete circuit of all the offices.

"Don't you want to take the elevator?" suggested Mrs. S. J. Asbury, who is in charge of the voters' bureau, and showed the First Lady around.

"No, thanks," asid Mrs. Roosevelt. "I could run up hundreds of steps. It's just the time I'm worried about."

Yesterday was one of her busiest days, with her morning press conference, the noon luncheon given by the District League of Women Voters, and her introduction of Pearl Buck, writer and lecturer, last night.

The tea yesterday was held downstairs below the new offices in the District National Bank. The business surroundings were transformed with vases of roses sent by Mrs. Roosevelt from the White House and a tea table at which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Arthur Condon, president of the council, with Mrs. Grattan Kerans, chairman of its educational committee, received the First Lady.

She was dressed in a suit of lavender wool, trimmed with beaver, and wore a brown straw hat with a small brim. Mrs. Condon wore a gown of black crepe with a small nosegay at the shoulder and a black hat of rough straw.

Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, was among those pouring tea. Mrs. Emil Hurja, her blondeness set off by a gown of black crepe and a black hat, a gardenia on the brim and two tiny streamers in back, also presided at the table.

Among those present at the tea were Senator George L. Radcliffe, his secretary, Miss Bertha Joseph; Mrs. W. W. Cook, sister of Mrs. Cordell Hull; Representative Edward Kelly, Mrs. George Cameron, Mrs. J. C. Burchinal, national committeewoman from West Virginia; Mrs. D. A. McDougal, Democratic committeewoman from Oklahoma; Miss Margaret Watson, and the following officers of the Democratic National Committee and of the council: Mrs. James Wolv, director of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee; Miss Molly Dewson, chairman of the general advisory committee; Dr. Frances Moon Butts, vice president of the council; Mrs. M. R. Walton, recording secretary; Mrs. Alice Cameron, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lillian P. Kells, treasurer.

Bridal Pair to Make Home in Washington

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Maxwell Miller, whose marriage took place Friday in New York, will make their home in Washington on their return from a trip to Bermuda.

Mrs. Miller is the former Miss Matilda Greimer Sommerfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph William Sommerfield, of 180 Riverside drive. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents. A small reception followed the ceremony, performed by Judge Edgar J. Lauer. Mr. Miller is with the finance division of the Resettlement Administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Weiss Visitors to Washington

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Weiss, of Boston, are guests at the Mayflower while in Washington for a few days.

Mr. Weiss, science editor of Time magazine, was given honorary membership in the Pan-American Medical Association at a meeting held at the Mexican Embassy April 5. It is the first time a journalist has been so honored by the association, the membership having been given because of the creditable manner in which he has handled his magazine articles dealing with medical problems.

Capital Society Women Throng To Bundle Tea at Thrift Shop

By Francesca McKenney.

Members of Capital society drove to the Thrift Shop yesterday afternoon in smart town cars and were helped by liveried chauffeurs in carrying bundles into the Thrift Shop, while others walked many blocks with the bundles under their arms to attend the "bundle tea" which was from 3 until 6 o'clock.

The packages filled the front window of the shop by the close of the afternoon. Many of the guests bought articles which were on display and some the Worth costumes which were modeled by members of the Junior League.

The handsome amethyst velvet Worth gown modeled by Miss Virginia Cooke, was bought by Mrs. Wallace H. White, jr., wife of Senator White, early in the afternoon and immediately a large white tag, "sold," was pinned to it.

Miss Mary McDowell wore a deep purple ostrich feather hat which completed her old-fashioned costume of slate grey, and was the center of attraction when it was discovered it was really but one large feather pinned into place to resemble a hat.

During the afternoon tea, punch and cakes were served in the small room in the back of the shop. Among those who served tea were Mrs. Chandler P. Anderson, Mrs. Richard M. Kleberg, who wore a chic ensemble of English tan; Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, and Mrs. Chester Wells.

Among those who served punch were Mrs. Thomas A. Claytor, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman and Mrs. Garret L. Schuyler. Others assisting were Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Mrs. Barry Mohun, Mrs. Levi Cooke, Mrs. Charles Bradley and Mrs. Spaulding Flannery.

Mrs. Lawrence Groner, who took her bundle early in the afternoon, left shortly after to rush to a meeting of one of the hospital boards. Mrs. Groner will go to Norfolk Monday to meet her two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Shouse and Miss Marion Shouse, who will dock on Tuesday from Europe, where they spent several weeks before completing their trip around the world.

Others seen at the tea were Mrs. Harry J. Covington, Mrs. James F. Mitchell, Mrs. McKenna Elkins, Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, who was accompanied by her young grandson, Charles Lanier Stone, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Stone, will arrive in Washington tomorrow to spend the week-end with the latter's mother.

Also Mrs. Bishop Hill, Mrs. William North Sturtevant and Mrs. Daniel Long. Miss Eliza Mitchell, whose engagement to Mr. Corcoran Thom, jr., was announced on Sunday, left as soon as she had modeled several evening gowns to hunt for a house in which to live after her marriage this spring.

Senor Gomez, Cuban President-Elect, Due To Visit Here Soon

The President-elect of Cuba, Senor Miguel Gomez, who is now in California, is expected to arrive in Washington April 21, and will be the guest of the Cuban Embassy during his stay of several days.

Senor Gomez will be accompanied by his wife, Senora de Gomez; his three daughters, Senoritas Serafina, Graciela and Margareta Gomez, and by his brother-in-law, Senor Julio Moralen Coello.

Plans for their entertainment while they are in Washington are indefinite as yet, but it is probable there will be a dinner in their honor at the White House and that the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Dr. Guillermo Patterson, will entertain for them.

Miss Boldt Is Wed To Mr. Goodridge

Mrs. Walter White Attends Sister at Ceremonies.

The wedding of Miss Louise A. Boldt, daughter of Mr. George C. Boldt, jr., and of Mrs. Mead A. Lewis, of New York, to Mr. Malcolm Goodridge, jr., son of Dr. Malcolm Goodridge and of Mrs. Henrietta T. P. Goodridge, of New York, took place Tuesday at the home of the bride's father, with only members of the immediate families present.

Mrs. Walter White, of Washington, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and Mr. Edwin T. Goodridge, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Goodridge will make their home at 130 East End avenue.

Mrs. White is expected to return from New York today.

DID YOU EVER take a rose geranium leaf, crush it in your hand and then inhale the exquisite fragrance of it? If you did you know the reason why rose geranium bath soap has always been popular no matter who made it. I have found a new rose geranium soap for you, made by a company so old, so reliable and so popular it advertises that "what is good enough for your grandmother is good enough for you."

The soap comes in two sizes—a hand size and bath size. It is a soft rose color and has that exquisite fragrance of rose geraniums which I have always considered about the top in perfumes.

This soap is not expensive for the thing that it is, and if anything makes you feel more important than a luxuriously perfumed bath, I have yet to find out what it is.

Personally, I do not care for the little cakes called "hand size." Anybody's hand is big enough to handle the bath size and to me there is an economy in buying the large rather than the small cake. But if you have a guest room and the guest is staying only a week, the small cake is perfect for that bathroom. But wherever you use it or whatever size you like, do not fail to buy a bar and try it because, I am telling you the truth, it is a remarkable soap.

Children Best At Table Form On Sunday

More Is Learned About Etiquette Than During Week.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

SUNDAY was a special day in the Jones family. Whether they attended church or not, it still was a day set apart from the rest of the week. Of course the fact that the man of the house was at home in itself marked the day off; and then, breakfast was later and more leisurely than on other days, and was, furthermore, a distinctly more elaborate meal.

Crowning Event.

But the crowning event of the day was Sunday dinner. Mrs. Jones always made it a dinner party. To be sure, there were seldom any extra guests. The family was the company. They were invited formally to attend, and came to the meal in their best clothes and manners. The prettiest china and linen always were used and every effort was made to turn the meal into an "occasion."

Several purposes were served by this means. Sunday dinner became a happy occasion where both parents and children met in an impersonal way. The children were on their best behavior, but even if one of them inadvertently committed a breach of etiquette, the affair was passed over with courteous silence as if the youngster had really been a guest.

Learn More.

The children probably learned more about etiquette and correct social form at these meals than at those where they were constantly being corrected. Here they had a chance to see their training put into practice.

One day's vacation out of seven is important if human beings are to keep fit. But it must be a day of real rest, both physical and spiritual, a day unlike the other work-a-day six. Sunday, when the family is all together, is likely to become a time of wrangling and scolding. A little special effort might make it a day of real rest and gladness with definite benefits.

No Hat for Mrs. Arlen: She Likes Accessories

Mrs. Michael Arlen, wife of the noted novelist, never wears hats. She is, however, very fond of other accessories as is proven by a photograph taken recently in Cannes. She is shown in a tailored coat suit with a patterned scarf in combination with a bouttoniere, sturdy white peccary gloves, top-handle bag and button earrings.

Roe Sauce.

2 tablespoons sherry
2 tablespoons white wine
5 tablespoons butter
Cayenne
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup chicken stock
¼ teaspoon beef extract

Put roe in small, shallow baking pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, cayenne and nutmeg. Add two tablespoons butter and wine. Cover with buttered paper. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Remove membranes. Brown remaining butter, add flour, continue browning. Pour on stock gradually, while stirring constantly. Bring to boiling point, add beef extract, roe and salt to taste.

Mrs. Waters, Who Could Write Travel Book, Gives Valuable Hints on Trips Around World

Minimum Luggage Is Found Best; Warns Against Being Too Critical

By Hope Ridings Miller.

"TRAVEL WISDOM FOR WOMEN" is new type of guide book that Mrs. Laura Waters could write—if she ever has time.

The material she has gathered for the last six years, as the only woman head of a travel bureau in Washington and as conductor of scores of persons on scores of trips, would fill many volumes, and her observations about tourists of her own sex would probably be the most illuminating of all the traveler's tales she could tell.

Yesterday at her office, Mrs. Waters gave a few pertinent suggestions for the woman who wants to get even more than her money's worth from any trip; who wants to come back home with something more than a shell comb from Pike's Peak, a cuckoo-clock from Switzerland, a rosary from Rome or some feather miniatures from Mexico.

Before she launched into her list of hints, Mrs. Waters pointed out "Some women travelers won't need any of these; but most of us fall short on one or two, at least."

Six Tips to Travelers.

Her tips to travelers, six in number, are as follows:

1. Travel light. No matter where you're going, you won't need more than two bags, according to Mrs. Waters. "Clothes? A top coat, a dark, tailored suit and about three blouses, two simple silk dresses and one or two dinner dresses," she said. "All these and accessories can go into two pieces of luggage. To take more means added responsibility and added expense."

2. Cultivate adaptability to the food and customs of the country you visit. "'When in Rome, do as the Romans do'" is the idea exactly," she went on. "The 'habit-bound' woman who, no matter whether she's in Washington or Warsaw, must have her bacon and eggs each morning will consider a continental breakfast something to get upset about. But the woman who takes meals as she finds them

MRS. LAURA WATERS.

(knowing full well she can have bacon and eggs at home the rest of her life, if she chooses), will enjoy 'eating as the Romans eat' for a little while, at least."

3. Don't be critical. "This is probably the most valuable rule of all, and the hardest to follow," she said. "Far too many American tourists have a tendency to feel superior to foreigners because their way of doing things is different from ours. In viewing everything with a critical eye, tourists of this type lose sight of all that delights the seasoned traveler, who doesn't expect any country to be just like his own."

Suggests Reading Course.

4. Know something about the places you plan to visit. "What you bring back from a journey depends a good deal on what you take with you," Mrs. Waters continued. "A reading course should be part of any long trip. But if it can't be taken as a prelude, it can be taken afterward. Either way you have the pleasure of traveling twice."

5. See something of each country besides the inside of its shops. "It sometimes seems to me the typical tourist is more concerned about buying Aunt Anna a pair of gloves in Paris than in seeing Notre Dame; or in selecting a Dunhill pipe in London for Uncle John than in visiting Westminster Abbey," she said. "There is probably no cure for that, except to remind the prospective traveler that pipes and gloves can, after all, be bought at home."

6. Don't get "thrift-conscious." "This, I believe, is a hint women particularly should heed, for it applies much more to them than to men. Perhaps they pull their purse strings tighter in Europe because they believe all foreigners are out to cheat American tourists; perhaps they are afraid they will be stranded in another country without enough money to get back home. But whatever the reason is, the fact remains that many feminine travelers make their companions uncomfortable and themselves miserable by counting their change too carefully and too often, by voicing their rebellion against prices charged for everything from Paris hats to picture post cards."

King Likes Feathers; New Hat Style Seen

After flowers come the feathers. So say the millinery stylists who are prophysying a be-plumed autumn to follow a flowery summer. This fashion feeling may, without a doubt, be traced to King Edward VIII's interest in ostrich feathers. One of the hats already planned for the fall season is a tiny sailor surmounted with three diminutive "Prince of Wales" plumes perched in front.

Egg Dish Contest Pre-Easter Event

Egg dishes always assume an important place on the menu during the week prior to Easter, so they have been chosen as the natural subject for The Post's recipe contest this week.

Remember that if your favorite egg recipe should win one of the six weekly prizes of $1 each, it will be submitted with the winning recipes from the past five contests to be rejudged to determine the winners of the four grand prizes—a waffle set, chromium and black, which includes an iron, batter bowl and ladle, tray and sirup pitcher; a streamlined electric iron with heat control for every type of fabric; an electric casserole that may be used for warming foods as well as cooking, and an electric kitchen clock for the smart up-to-date kitchen.

This contest is the last of a series of six, so if you have not yet become eligible for one of the grand prizes by winning a weekly award in one of the previous contests, be sure to enter your favorite egg recipe this week. Send it to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post.

Adele Astaire Wears Navy Blue Gabardine

Among the smart spectators of Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England, was Lady Charles Cavendish (Adele Astaire), wearing a navy blue gabardine suit designed by Victor Stiebel. It consisted of an all around pleated skirt and short double-breasted jacket with high Edwardian revers, and a white lace blouse. With this she wore a navy felt Breton with streamers and navy accessories.

Chlorine Water Checks Odor of Hyperhidrosis

Excessive Sweating May Occur Over Entire Skin in Many Cases.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

We all perspire—some more so than others—and nature has very wisely provided the skin with sweat glands, by means of which the body can rid itself of water and wastes. In Genesis 3:19 (King James version) we read: "In the sweat of thy face thou shall eat bread." As a result of exercise, if the face alone should perspire, we would understand that something was wrong, as the sweat glands are found in the skin of most parts of the body.

Excessive sweating, when there is no occasion for it, is known as hyperhidrosis and may occur over the entire skin or in some particular region, for example, the palms of the hands, the soles of the feet, beneath the arms, or in the groin. Sometimes the phenomenon will appear in the area supplied by a particular nerve.

Cause of Cold Feet.

We have all had the experience of shaking hands with a person whose palm is so damp that it is decidedly noticeable. Others will suffer from cold feet, not because of poor circulation, but because the hose are always wet. Still others will perspire excessively in the armpits. Cases are cited in which the hands perspire so readily that after being wiped dry, beads of moisture will gather on the palms within a minute or two. If the fingers are held downward fluid will drop from the tips. Those who are annoyed by this particular symptom observe its effect as much in cold as in warm weather.

Sometimes sweat has a foul odor and the condition is known as bromidrosis. While this may appear in uremia, scurvy, or acute rheumatism, it is generally limited to special parts of the body, such as the feet or beneath the arms. It is probable that the odor is due to the growth of bacteria on the skin after the fluid has been exuded. The remedy lies in scrupulous cleanliness. Soap and water may be needed two or more times each day, followed by the application of chlorinated water. An antiseptic dusting powder is a valuable aid.

X-Rays Cure Glands.

Numerous astringent solutions, such as potassium alum or aluminum chloride, have been employed to check excessive perspiration. While some such preparations are relatively harmless, yet occasionally sweat glands may become irritated, followed by the development of cysts. These tiny, rather firm affairs are not to be invited, as in some cases surgical removal is required.

No remedy, however, appears quite as efficient as a few exposures to mild doses of X-rays.

MARY HAWORTH Says:

Man Instinctively Looks to Woman to Establish the Tone, the Tempo, of a Love Relationship.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 22 years old and have been married two years. I was brought up never learning the facts of life. Maybe I read too many 10-cent novels. Anyway, I sat around waiting for a knight on a big white horse to come galloping into my life with treasures to lay at my feet. Did I get disappointed? And how!

Mary Haworth.

• • • •

I started working as a stenographer when I was about 18, just fresh from high school, in a place where there were about 35 men and I was the only girl. And then I learned about men. I learned a good lesson; learned that none of them are any good; that they look to a girl for only one thing. I learned that all the love making I was to supposed to swallow hook, line and sinker was just to drag me in. I learned never to believe a word they say, even when they think they're telling the truth, and to this day I have had no cause to revise my discovery. I eye with distrust every man who looks at me.

• • • •

Several years ago a very prominent woman, whose name is frequently mentioned in the press, was quoted as saying our young girls will just have to learn how much whisky they can hold without getting drunk. Some of the girls were very much insulted at that remark. But it was the unvarnished truth. The majority of them have learned to drink, unfortunately, but few of them have learned the psychological moment for putting aside the glass. Nor do they drink just because other girls do, but because they like the thrill of being drunk, the false courage to do things they wouldn't do in their sober senses.

For that matter, I know many young men who are hardly ever sober; young men who are partially under the influence of drink even during working hours. They have no moral sense and little self respect, and don't give a darn about anyone else. I know young fathers and mothers who drink and smoke in the presence of their children. Yet they would hesitate to do these things in their parents' presence. They have respect for their parents which they do not have for their children. I've seen so much of this thing that I wonder what the state of society will be 20 years from now. Certainly we haven't much to hope for from the half drunk, unmoral, direspectful young hyenas of today. What do you think?

• • • •

This is a letter I have had in mind to write ever since I read the letters from "Seventeen," "Twenty-One" and other spokesmen for and against the younger generation which were printed in your column a month or more ago. Sincerely yours, DISGUSTED.

The Jaundiced Mind.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I think if the letters from "Seventeen," "Twenty One" and other spokesmen for and against the younger generation proved anything, they proved that the young people of today cannot be lumped together and disposed of as "half drunk, unmoral and disrespectful young hyenas." Those who wrote in defense of the younger generation had much to say in praise of its good manners and sound morals; and those who found something to be desired in these respects nevertheless voiced a praiseworthy and confidence-inspiring allegiance to the highest ideals of social conduct. Had the youth of today been committed to swinish conduct, the letters of revolt which caught your eye would never have been penned. Persons do not protest against conditions which satisfy.

• • • •

I believe your diagnosis of your jaundiced attitude toward men, as being the result of having read too many 10-cent novels in your impressionable years, is correct. Whoever expects the impossible is bound to be sorely disappointed. But it is not necessary to let one, or even several, romantic reverses poison one's whole outlook on life and one's fellowmen. It is the woman's business to establish the tone, the tempo, of a love relationship. Man instinctively looks to her to do so. But the girl who expects the modern man to play the role of knight on a white charger, however, is very apt to get him woefully confused as to just what she is expecting of him. The modern young man in the American scene, given half a break, is essentially inclined to be a decent and delightful comrade; and only the woman who is looking for the worst is going to find it in the person of every man she meets. Every man has his good as well as his bad points, and as a rule he is inspired to present the noblest side of his nature to the woman who in herself is realistically good and fine, and who takes it for granted he is cut from the same cloth. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

SUBSTITUTE SWEETHEART

By Priscilla Wayne

Ruth Dayton, 18, an orphan, wholesomely beautiful, has been hired to impersonate June Bradley, whom she greatly resembles. At first, bedazzled by June's uncle and aunt, Joseph and Clara Bradley, Ruth believes her mission is one of mercy—to comfort a dying man.

June finds herself falling in love with the man whose stepsister she is pretending to be. She shares the suspicion he voices that the auto accident was deliberate, and suspects the uncle and aunt of desiring Jim's death. She attempts to go for help but finds herself a prisoner, her phone disconnected.

Chapter VII.

THE DAY PASSED quickly enough. There were several brief calls in the sick room. But the new nurse was exceedingly careful of his patient. He was very professional.

She wondered how one nurse could replace two. She even ventured asking Mr. Pascoe about it. "Aren't you under the same rules that other nurses work under? Won't you be obliged to have a relief nurse?"

"How solicitous you are, my dear niece," Joseph Bradley said, sauntering into the room just in time to hear the remark. He lowered his voice so that the sick man might not hear. They had paused in a small room just off his bedroom. "You see, I'll spell Mr. Pascoe off if he needs rest. I've had some experience in nursing myself. I'm a good nurse. Isn't that true, Pascoe?"

"You see, June?"

She knew herself to be caught in a trap without knowing what direction she could possibly turn for help.

It was her belief that Joseph was contemptible enough to have substituted Pascoe, who, Perhaps, was not even a professional nurse, in order that the sick man would be completely in his control.

Servants Gone.

Indeed, the very house seemed in his control. In some unaccountable way the two servants Ruth had noticed on the second floor had disappeared as well as the maid, Mary, who had been replaced by Clara Bradley's Bette.

Mrs. Bradley watched Ruth every minute, slipping along silently behind her if she moved out of her room, or sitting patiently in the room next to hers.

She was knitting a white sweater suit and her hands fairly flew at the easy task. "It is for you," she told Ruth.

In the late morning the doctor arrived. Crouching near her window and watching, Ruth saw the small car arrive. A professional appearing man with a physician's small bag alighted, came into the house.

Ruth had expected to see a gray bearded, rather aged man. This man was young. He walked with a light, springy step.

There came, almost immediately, a light tap at Ruth's door. Mrs. Bradley's voice, purringly gentle and soft, "The doctor is here, June. Shall we go down and wait outside to learn how he finds Jim?"

Immediately after she had made it, Ruth regretted her answer. "No, thank you, if you don't mind, I'll wait here."

Mrs. Bradley's answer was to turn a key in the lock. "I don't mind at all. Wait there just as long as you like."

No Escape.

For the tenth time June made the rounds of the windows in her room. Every one of them was covered by that ornamental wrought iron that made it simply impossible for any person to escape that way even if one dared the sheer drop of more than 30 feet to the pavement below. She tried to telephone again. There was no doubt that her room telephone had been disconnected. By whom she could easily guess.

It was exactly 1 o'clock when Mrs. Bradley came back to Ruth's door. She opened the communicating door between their rooms.

"See," exhibiting her knitting as though they were the best of friends. "I did a whole inch around the skirt while I waited for the doctor to make his tiresome investigations.

"I expect you're hungry, my dear. I've ordered our lunch served right up here. Uncle Joe is having his lunch down with Jim. Goodness, it will be nice when this family gets so it can have its meals together. We have them all over the house now, don't we?"

Ruth came into the room slowly, stood, facing Mrs. Bradley. "Mrs. Bradley, how is Jim?"

"How is Jim?"

Mrs. Bradley sat down, looked at Ruth with an expression that certainly simulated worry. "I'm afraid, my dear, that he's worse."

"Worse?"

"Not Dr. Benson. Dr. McGuire."

"But I thought his physician was Dr. Benson."

Mrs. Bradley laughed. "My dear, you are a question box, aren't you? His physician is Dr. Benson. But Dr. Benson has gone out of town. He sent Dr. McGuire in his place to take over the case. Dr. Benson will be gone probably for several weeks."

"Jim didn't say anything about it."

"Probably Jim didn't know anything about it. Anyway, Dr. McGuire says that the outlook is not so good. Jim seems weaker. The cuts about his head aren't so bad. Dr. McGuire rebandaged them this morning."

Can't See.

Though she hated Mrs. Bradley, Ruth must question. She longed to know the truth about Jim's condition. "Were his eyes unbandaged?"

"For a few minutes. He can't see anything, my dear. I guess it's a case of permanent blindness—if he recovers."

"If he recovers?" Ruth knew her question was almost a sob.

"Dr. McGuire told your uncle and me after the examination that he has his grave doubts whether Jim will recover. He's very weak. There are probably internal injuries they didn't suspect."

"He ought to go back to the hospital." A quick, wild hope seized Ruth at the thought. A hospital might mean escape for them both for, by this time, Ruth was certain that Jim, as well as herself, was caught in the clutch of this sinister group.

"Uncle Joe talked to Dr. McGuire about that. He says that Jim is too weak to be moved. We just must give him plenty of rest and the best possible care. If they do not help him, then nothing can."

Bette, Mrs. Bradley's personal maid, came bringing the lunch. Sandwiches, a salad, glasses of milk.

Ruth ate even though she loathed the company. Refusing to eat would not relieve the situation in the least. She must keep her strength and all of her wits in order to fight her way through the difficulties that surrounded her.

The Bradleys might assume that she had decided to accept it; that she had made up her mind to continue as they had directed. Let them. For she had not. Sooner or later, she knew, if she kept alert and watchful, the opportunity would come to get away, and she would be ready to take it.

Mrs. Bradley must have divined the girl's thoughts. She sat watching her quizzically. "Still determined to get away?"

"That's my own business."

"Oh, quite, quite. There's no doubt of that. But I think you won't have very long to wait."

"You mean that Jim is so sick?"

"Yes, that's what I mean. When he is gone there won't be any need of our gentle pretense and you will be free as air to go."

"But what if when I do go I inform the authorities that you held me here against my will, an actual prisoner? What about that?"

And still Mrs. Bradley was calm and cheerful. "Well, what about it? You tell me. But if you ask me, then I'll tell you that any set of authorities, when they hear the true story of how we hired you out of the kindness of our hearts just to ease the loneliness of a dying man—well, I don't think they'll have anything but admiration for us."

"Just to ease the loneliness of a dying man." If Jim were really dying, if it actually meant that, after a day or two Ruth would never see him any more, then, suddenly, Ruth knew that it meant the end for her, too. She wasn't trying to pretend now, even with herself.

The happiness, the life and the welfare of the man lying so quietly in that closed room meant everything in the world to her.

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

Mrs. Marshall's Recipe For Late Vice President's Favorite Cake.

By Pattie Ellicott.

FORMER Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, who sought far and near for a good 5-cent cigar, did not have to seek for his favorite cake—Meringue Sponge Cake—for Mrs. Marshall, his widow, who visited Washington frequently, was an adept at preparing this dish.

Often, when the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall entertained notables from abroad at tea or luncheon, acclaim was given by the guests for the Meringue Sponge Cake. Few of them realized that Mrs. Marshall had prepared it herself out of the experience of a long period of home making for the rising Indiana statesman.

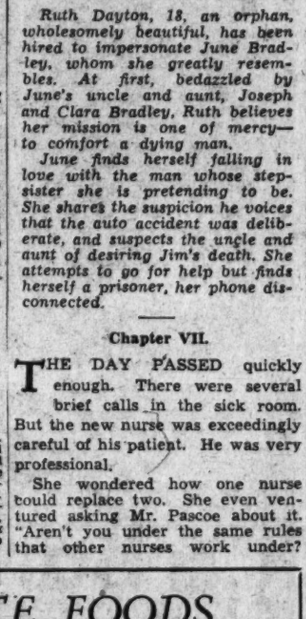
Mrs. Marshall's Meringue Sponge Cake was made as follows:

1 cup flour
1 cup sugar
1-3 cup cold water
6 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon cream tartar and salt.

Boil sugar and water together until it begins to thread when dropped from spoon. Beat egg whites stiff. Pour boiling syrup very slowly into whites, beating constantly while adding. Set aside to cool (not cold); stir occasionally while cooking.

Beat egg yolks very light, fold gradually into stiff whites. Add vanilla, sift in flour, add cream tartar to the last flour, fold in lightly.

Bake in ungreased angel-food pan in moderate oven 45 to 50 minutes.



MRS. THOMAS R. MARSHALL.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IT'S NOT nearly as easy as it looks, this business of hanging wallpaper. The lady in this picture is going to get paste in her hair and paper on everything but the walls. The funny part is that the difference between getting all tangled up in the paper and in having no trouble at all putting it on the wall is simply a matter of folding, cutting and brushing the paste on—all in the proper sequence. If you do the wrong thing first, or pick up the wrong end of the paper, you'll surely get into difficulties. For all that it's fun and quite possible for a rank amateur to do a neat job . . . in fact, we've prepared directions in one of our bulletins, "How to Hang Wall Paper," which we will send on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

All this apropos of a problem in paper that a friend of ours is just now involved in. She's moving into an old house with high ceilings and old-time marble mantels. Her furniture is partly Victorian and partly reproductions of eighteenth century English. She'd like something unusual and distinctive in wall paper for the living room, where she'll be using a real little old spinet, or rather a melodian.

And our advice is: Flowered paper—great big pink or red roses on a white ground! With a gray rug and furniture covered in peacock blue satin and in red satin. Then white lace curtains. If she doesn't want to be quite so bold, she might have light gray paper, then furniture coverings partly in red satin and partly in a large-scale floral on a light ground . . . then a deeper blue rug.

Magill Assails Power Project On Mississippi

Clashes With Norris During Hearing on Plan Similar to TVA.

By the Associated Press.

The proposed Mississippi Valley Authority was assailed before a Senate agriculture sub-committee yesterday by Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, as being out of "harmony with the fundamental principles of American democracy."

His testimony on the bill to set up a governmental agency to control floods, improve navigation and develop power in the Mississippi Valley led him into a sharp clash with its author, Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, over the fight by power interests against the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company act last session.

It began after Magill had concluded a prepared attack on the bill as tending toward "political domination of a great private industry."

Queried on Wife Beating.

Norris asked the witness if he approved methods used by the power interests to defeat the holding company act.

"That's like asking if you've stopped beating your wife," Magill answered.

"All right, have you stopped beating your wife?"

"There were things done I do not approve of," said Magill, "but for millions to write to members of Congress for the protection of their individual rights and private property—that was right."

He added that the number of persons who attacked the measure by improper means was small.

"A few people," Norris said. "Don't you know they spent $10,000,000 in trying to defeat that bill?"

"No, I don't know that."

"Well, you ought to," responded Norris, who contended the Insull companies employed professors to use the telephone and radio as part of their campaign.

"What is the Securities Commission for?" countered Magill. "They are looking after that and I am in favor of looking after that."

Stocks Dropped $253,000,000.

He added that after President Roosevelt urged passage of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, utility stocks registered a drop of $253,000,000.

"If the stocks were based on 50 per cent value and 50 per cent wind, they ought to go down," Norris said.

In his attack on the proposed MVA, Magill said: "It is even more dangerous that the Tennessee Valley Authority," an agency which Norris sponsored.

He said that Norman Thomas, twice Socialist nominee for President, had lauded the TVA as a "clear embodiment of socialistic principles."

"This MVA," said Magill, "is the application of Marxian principles on a much greater scale.

Mother Seeks Custody Of Freddie Bartholomew

New York, April 8 (AP).—Freddie Bartholomew's mother, Mrs. William Mae Bartholomew, arrived from England late today to try to regain for herself and her husband the custody of their 12-year-old film actor son.

Freddie, who played the title role in "David Copperfield," has been living in Hollywood with his aunt, Millicent Bartholomew, who helped him become an actor and who was awarded his guardianship in Los Angeles last October.

Mrs. Bartholomew said that if she could not regain Freddie's custody in California she intended to "appeal to Washington."

Test of Inquiry Power Planned By Townsendite

Downey Assails 'Attack on Personalities' by House Committee.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

The high command of the Townsend old-age pension organization in a clash with the House committee investigating the organization announced yesterday it proposed to challenge in a Federal court "the right of the committee to attack personalities."

To this statement by Sheridan Downey, personal counsel for Dr. F. E. Townsend, Chairman Bell (Democrat), Missouri, of the committee, retorted:

"It appears that some of the leaders of the Townsend movement are getting jittery at the disclosures of abused trusts and betrayed and violated confidences made so far at the investigation hearings."

"The only thing we have the jitters about," Downey countered when told by reporters of Bell's remark, "is that the investigation is not moving promptly and expeditiously."

Charges "Dragging Out."

Downey said he understood the investigation would be "dragged out" until next November. He asserted it was not an investigation but an attempt to break down the Townsend organization.

The committee, Downey said, has asked for all Townsend records from all sections of the United States, adding that several trucks and warehouses would be needed to hold them.

"We plan to go into Federal court within the next two weeks and test the right of the committee to attack personalities," said Downey. "Our directors have challenged the investigation as not being based on efforts to obtain information looking to future legislation."

Lays Delay to Pensionites.

Downey maintained the delay in the investigation was preventing the Townsend organization from "proceeding with our mission," and asserted it was unfair to the movement.

Bell said "the principal delaying factor has been the inability to learn the amount of money collected, what it was spent for and who got it."

"The opposition to this investigation by the Townsend board of directors appears to be something more than mere coincidence," said Bell. "It does seem somewhat strange this proposed resort to legal action should occur just as the investigation has begun to shift its activities to California and other Pacific Coast States."

Representative Gavan (Democrat), New York, committee member, planned to leave tonight for Los Angeles and other West Coast points to take depositions for the committee.

'The Perfect Arrest;' As 3 Robbers Are Seized

New York, April 8 (U.P.).—Two weeks ago police received information that Daniel Bloom, 28, planned to rob some establishment in the clothing district. Four detectives were assigned to trail him and never let him out of their sight. Today Bloom, Lawrence Chirco and George Lewis held up the Em-Eff Pants Co. The detectives watched the trio carry arm-loads of trousers to the street and then made the "perfect arrest."

Churches Start Easter Season Services Today

Special Programs Arranged for Maundy Thursday, Good Friday.

Washington churches, Catholic and Protestant, today call their parishioners to the first of the deeply religious ceremonies that lead to the celebration of Easter next Sunday.

In Catholic churches these services in many cases, begin this morning. Eight and 9 o'clock masses have been scheduled. These will be followed at afternoon holy hours, and finally Tenebrae at night—8 p. m. in most churches.

The Protestant churches have Holy Thursday services planned for the evening. Some of them are presenting sacred music, while others will feature sermons.

Most significant of the Holy Week services, however, come tomorrow, Good Friday. Three-hour devotions have been planned by nearly all the downtown churches, while those in outlying communities will join in union services. In addition, many of the Catholic parishes plan Stations of the Cross ceremonies for later in the afternoon and Tenebrae at night.

Program at 9 A. M.

At the Franciscan Monastery, where exercises have been developed into colorful pageantry, there will be the annual dramatization of the funeral of Christ tomorrow night. Today's services there include solemn high mass and procession to the Holy Sepulcher at 9 a. m., Tenebrae at 4 p. m., and holy hour at 8 o'clock.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception has ceremonies beginning at 8 a. m. today. Holy Hour will be at 4 p. m. and Tenebrae at 8 o'clock. Stations of the Cross will be given there at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church has Tenebrae at 7:30 p. m. today. Three Hours Agony services will begin at noon Good Friday. The meditations will be given by the Rev. Denis J. Kavanaugh, O. S. A. Stations o the Cross will be at 4 p. m.

Nearly all Episcopal churches will conduct Maundy Thursday rites day. At the Washington Cathedral there will be Holy Communion at 9:30 a. m., and evening prayer and sermon at 7:30 o'clock. Canon G. Freeland Peter will preach another of his Holy Week sermons on "The Events of Holy Week."

Dr. Robbins to Preach.

The Rev. Dr. Howard C. Robbins, of the General Theological Seminary, New York, will preach at three-hour services, beginning tomorrow noon. He will give a meditation on the Seven Last Words of Christ. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow, morning prayer and litany will be at 10 a. m. and evening prayer at 4 o'clock.

The Rev. Dr. Angus Dun, of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, Mass., will be the three-hour devotions preacher at St. John's Episcopal Church. Canon Peter will speak at the same hours in St. Margaret's Church.

The annual "Service for the Three Hours," conducted by Washington Methodist Episcopal churches, will begin at noon tomorrow in Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. Benjamin W. Meeks, district superintendent, will have charge. Addresses on "The Seven Words From the Cross" will be by Dr. J. Martin Gillum, of the Brookland Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Dan L. Ennis, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. William Andrew Keese, of Metropolitan National Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. Edward Barkley Wilcox, Falls Church Methodist Episcopal Church; Dr. Raymond W. White, Rhode Island Methodist Protestant Church; the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, McKendree Methodist Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Horace E. Croner, Emory Methodist Episcopal Church South; the Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch, Chevy Chase Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Foundry Church.

Music Is Feature.

Holy Thursday Communion services, featuring music and a sermon, will be conducted tonight in First Congregational Church. Paul De Long Gable, organist, will give a half-hour meditative program at 7:30 p. m. The Rev. Harvey W. Goddard will preach at 8 p. m. on "Father, Forgive Them." The 60-voice choir, directed by Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing.

The German requiem mass by Brahms will be sung at Good Friday services tomorrow night in Concordia Lutheran Church. Soloists with the Concordia Cantata Choir will be Ruth Wiberg, soprano, and Howard Samsel, basso.

The Washington Catholic Evidence Guild will conduct open-air ceremonies of the Way of the Cross, beginning at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in Franklin Park. There will be several speakers, and a choir of 30 men from religious groups at Catholic University.

60 Voices In Chorus.

The Mount Pleasant Congregational Church chorus of 60 voices, conducted by Norton M. Little, will sing Sir John Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion," at 8 p. m. tomorrow. In the quartet of soloists are Mrs. Russel J. Clinchy, soprano; Marguerite Ray, contralto; William P. Shanahan, tenor, and Eugene Kressin, basso.

Southwest Protestant churches will join in three-hour devotions tomorrow in Grace Episcopal Church. Five pastors of churches in that community will preach. The Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde is the rector of Grace Church.

Candlelight communion services are planned for 8 p. m. today in Woodside M. E. Church. The senior choir there will sing Stainer's "The Crucifixion" tomorrow night.

Italians Advance, Threaten Capital

Asmara, Eritrea, Thursday, April 9 (U.P.).—Italian advance patrols have captured Gobbo and are marching on Emperor Haile Selassie's imperial war headquarters at Dessye en route to Addis Ababa, it was reported at Marshal Pietro Badoglio's general headquarters early today.

Reports said Azebo-Galla tribesmen, hostile to the Negus, have laid traps in the vicinity of Dessye in hopes of capturing the emperor and turning him over to the Italian command.

An inhabitant of the village of Gobbo, north of Dessye, reportedly told the Italian advance guard that Haile Selassie, his face cleanly shaved as a disguise, fled through there several days ago after the disastrous battle of Lake Ashangi.

More than 100,000 soldiers and laborers have started constructing highways and improving trails around Lake Ashangi for a speedy mass advance on Dessye.

Fat Girls Get The Go-By—Slim Girls Win Men Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.
Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.
Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers". If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.
Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.
So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

Bill to Punish Out-of-Town Drivers Sped

House Group Approves Senate Plan to Curb Offending Autoists.

Upper Chamber Body Plans Traffic Hearing Tomorrow.

The House District Committee yesterday reported favorably a Senate bill to authorize the District Commissioners to revoke the right of any nonresident to drive in the District for any cause they deem sufficient, while the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations prepared to investigate the traffic situation.

Opposition to the bill was voiced by several members of the committee and three voted against it. They are Representatives Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland; Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Cole (Republican), of New York.

"You ought either to report this bill or repeal the law which enables the Commissioners to revoke the driving permits of residents of Washington," Representative Carpenter, chairman of a special traffic sub-committee, said in recommending the measure.

Live Outside District.

"Thousands of persons who work and do most of their driving in Washington live just outside the District, and so are not now liable to lose their permits for traffic violations on which we penalize residents."

Senator Thomas, chairman of the Senate sub-committee, has summoned a large representation of District officials and organizations concerned with traffic matters to appear at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

He explained that the sub-committee will try to ascertain, first, whether present laws are adequate, and, second, what form a rider to grant the Commissioners more authority should take.

While legislative in character, the rider is not expected to encounter opposition because of the uniform opinion on Capitol Hill that the local traffic situation is bad.

Witnesses Called.

Among witnesses summoned are the Commissioners, the traffic director, police officials, representatives of the Board of Trade, automobile associations and citizens' organizations.

Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service, has been invited to suggest some proposal for keeping parking space open in front of public buildings for the convenience of persons doing business with the executive establishments.

Four driving permits were revoked and 21 licenses suspended for speeding yesterday after a meeting of the Revocations Board.

Those whose permits were revoked are Barbara E. Gruber, 2316 Twentieth street northwest, 52 miles; Harry H. Newman, 920 F street northwest, 55 miles; Cal Turner, 507 T street northwest, 70 miles; Melvin H. Wilson, 704 Seventeenth street northeast, 50 miles.

Forty-five day suspensions went to Edward D. Meyers, 1915 K street northwest, 42 miles; second offense; Frank E. Numbers, 135 Todd place northeast, 42 miles second offense.

Thirty-day suspensions went to Salome E. Fraser, 5833 Colorado avenue northwest, 45 miles; John C. Hill, 1320 Kalmia street northwest, 42 miles; Vernon F. Marlowe, 1127 Forty-eighth street northeast, 42 miles; Philip W. Mead, 15 T street northeast, 45 miles; Clarence E. Mitchell, 212 Eleventh street southwest, 40 miles; Sol Oreenland, 928 Crittenden street northwest, 36 miles second offense; Carnegie Palmer, 38 Q street northwest, 45 miles; Claude K. Peacock, 656 B street southeast, 42 miles; Samual S. Taylor, 3615 Eleventh street northwest; 48 miles; Joseph H. Thomas, 4400 Douglas street northeast, 44 miles; Margaret L. Wensink, 1201 Allison street northwest, 42 miles.

Hit-and-Run Victim Dies; Driver Held

William Spirer, 21-year-old Western Union messenger, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday of a fractured skull suffered when he was knocked from his bicycle by a hit-and-run driver at Columbia and Ontario roads northwest Sunday.

Wilford Coleman White, 34, of 3100 Warder street northwest, was arrested a short time later in a house in the 2500 block Q street northwest after witnesses furnished police with the hit-run auto's license number. White was charged with leaving the scene of an accident at the time and released under bond. He was re-arrested yesterday, to be held for the coroner's inquest.

Dr. Davis Will Direct D. C. Child Health Day

Dr. Hugh J. Davis yesterday was named by Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, to be chairman of the committee which will have charge of the District's participation in a Nation-wide "child-health-day" program of education to be conducted under auspices of the Federal Children's Bureau on May 1.

Dr. Davis is chief of the child hygiene division of the District Health Office. A meeting of the local committee is to be held on April 17.

Alligood Freed In Assault Case By Trial Board

Testimony on Mental Condition Persuades Tribunal to Retire Him.

Seven charges ranging from intoxication to assault on a superior officer against Detective Sergt. Frank M. Alligood, crack stolen-car sleuth for the Police Department, were dismissed yesterday by the Police Trial Board.

In dismissing the charges the board held that "Alligood actually committed all of the acts of which he stands charged, but in the light of medical testimony offered as to Alligood's physical and mental condition, the board does not see how he can be held responsible for the acts."

The board cited a prior suggestion of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons in which it was recommended that the detective be ordered before the retirement board. On the basis of the board's report, Alligood will be retired for physical disability on half pay of $1,500 annually, officials said.

The detective was charged with assault on Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, while he was assigned to guard the President at the White House correspondents' dinner in the Willard Hotel, March 7.

Physicians said Alligood apparently suffered a brain tumor as a result of a head injury sustained seven years ago.

Alligood, who is 42, has been on the force 20 years and has received 22 commendations for bravery and efficiency.

The board's action upheld a motion of Daniel B. Maher, defense attorney, that the charges be dismissed because Alligood was "mentally incompetent" the night of the incident.

Maher earlier submitted testimony that Alligood several times awakened his wife at night and screamed he was going mad. The board was told he occasionally ran into the street in his pajamas to look for stolen automobiles.

At one time Alligood was known as the man who recovered more stolen cars than any other detective in the country.

D.C. Guard Adds Medical And Headquarters Units

New units were added to the District Guard for the first time in 12 years Tuesday night with the establishment of a Headquarters Company and a Medical Department Detachment. Maj. William T. Roy, special troops commanding officer, directed the organization of the units.

Officers of the new units are: Headquarters Company, First Lieut. Cooper B. Rhodes and Second Lieuts. R. B. Thrift, Charles L. Rust and Malcolm T. Powell. Medical Department Detachment, Capt. Robert M. Bolton, Medical Corps, and First Lieut. James B. Bradley, Dental Corps.

Adults to Get Chance In Egg-Rolling Fete

The annual rite known as White House egg-rolling will be observed on the Executive Mansion's south lawn from 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. next Monday, it was announced yesterday by C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks.

Easter egg-rolling will be limited to children under 10 during those hours, Finnan said. From 3:30 to 5 p. m. the event will become a free for all, with adults welcome and the Marine Band throwing in a concert for good measure.

Of course, Finnan reminded, adults will be admitted before 3:30, but only if they are acting as guardians of small children. This will lead, said old timers, to revival of the practice of youngsters outside the gates allowing themselves to be escorted inside at 10 cents and up per head.

Police Pushing Hunt for Body Of G.U. Student

Dragging River Off Hains Point; Car Abandoned Near Water.

Harbor police continued their search in the Potomac River off Hains Point last night for the body of Donald F. MacCarthy, 24, fourth-year medical student at Georgetown University, whose abandoned car was found Tuesday afternoon.

The crew, hampered by the choppy water in the Georgetown Channel, started dragging near the point on the sea wall. No prints leading from the automobile to a point on the seawall. No prints were discernible returning to the car.

Dr. F. W. MacCarthy, the student's father, yesterday left North Bangor, N. Y., for Washington, where he will aid in the search for his son, the Associated Press reported. Members of the family said that Representative Bertrand H. Snell was aiding in the search.

MacCarthy was last seen about 6 p. m. Monday by his roommate, Thomas S. Zborowski, 25, who said the student had left the house at 1419 Thirty-third street northwest. Zborowski said a wet suit owned by MacCarthy was found in his roommate's wardrobe. He explained that the youth had taken a long walk in Sunday's rain and the clothing probably had not dried.

Zborowski said MacCarthy was a nervous type, and, although a brilliant student, frequently worried over his studies. MacCarthy's home is in North Bangor, N. Y.

Mrs. Roosevelt Asks Tolerance For Juveniles

Tells Women Voters Cases Should Be Considered on 'Human' Lines.

Interpretation of the law in juvenile cases "from the human rather than the purely legal standpoint," was urged by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in an address to the luncheon meeting of the Voteless District League of Women Voters at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Following portrayal of the year through skits, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke briefly, citing her observation experiences in the juvenile courts, and made a plea for tolerance in the handling of children brought before the lanw and understanding and kindliness in the carrying out of all laws.

"The important factor in handling children is to try to keep human understanding unhampered by legal routine which is of very little use in a children's court," she said.

"The juvenile court should be taken away from criminal and legal procedure and made an agency for better understanding of children in a community through the use of all the agencies at hand.

Presiding at the meeting was the District League's president, Mrs. William Kittle. Others at the speaker's table included Mrs. Roosevelt and her two guests, Mrs. Grosvenor Allen and Mrs. Louis McHenry Howe; Judge Fay Bentley of the Juvenile Court, Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns, wife of the Speaker of the House; Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillan, civil service commissioner; Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of Senator McNary, and Mrs. Fred J. Sisson, wife of Representative Sisson, of New York. The board of directors' members were also on the platform.

First Lady Backs 'Animal' Parties

At her press conference yesterday Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt championed the cause of entertaining the family pussy cat, the trusty dog and the favorite canary.

In response to a question on the recent party for horses and dogs given by Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, wife of the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mrs. Roosevelt said she did not see why animal friends should not be entertained as well as any other friends.

Asked about recent criticism of the Washington school system under which it was charged school children were being used as "guinea pigs" in educational experiments, Mrs. Roosevelt promptly declared she would have no objections to her children being used as "guinea pigs" for worthwhile educational experiments. She pointed out that those who submitted to experimentation for medical research into the causes and cures of yellow fever were also called "guinea pigs" but that their efforts brought about great boons to civilization.

Champion School Band Plays Here Tomorrow

The Joliet (Ill.) High SchoolBand, national champion high school band, will give a concert tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 in Central High School auditorium. The band has been filling a week's engagment at Radio City Music Hall in New York, and is visiting Washington on its homeward journey.

Use of the auditorium has been granted by the Community Center Department, and the concert has been indorsed by Dr. Stephen Kramer, of the public school department.

Father and Daughter Depict Each Other at Portrait Show

How the younger generation views the older and vice versa can be seen at the exhibit of local painters sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the United States National Museum, where portraits of each other by a daughter and father are on display.

The father, William Parish, 75, has two other portraits on exhibition, one of Mrs. Victor Alfaro, daughter-in-law of the Panama Minister, and a second, a self-portrait, that contrasts strikingly with that done by his daughter, Mrs. E. F. McCarten, of 6320 Brookville road, Chevy Chase.

She, in turn, also has two other paintings on show, a portrait of the daughter of the late Representative Sam Major, of Missouri, and a waterfront sketch of a home on the banks of Cape Cod.

As seen by her father, Mrs. McCarten is a vivacious woman of considerable charm—typically youthful. In contrast, her sketch of her father shows an old man reading a book, his snowy-white locks falling over his forehead and his face wrinkled wiht fatigue. Long, shapely hands, still firm with obvious strength, indicate Mrs. McCarten still appreciates the painting skill of her father.

That Parish does not see himself as does his daughter is evident from his self-portrait. Here is no tired, heavy-lidded old man, but a venerable painter still in the prime of life, with smoothed back locks, shining bright eyes and a firm hand grasping the palette.

A native of Providence, R. I., Parish studied at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and at the Art Students League in New York. For several years he operated his own art school in Birmingham, Ala., discontinuing it to go abroad to Paris for further study.

Portrait painting always has been his specialty, his daughter explained, with beautiful women and distinguished men his favorite subjects. He taught his daughter to paint, and she in turn is passing on the family skill to her 7-year-old daughter, Ann.

Budget Chief Will Explain Health Cuts

Glass Indignant Over Revelations About Hospital.

By Gerald G. Gross.

The unusual procedure of a Budget director appearing before a Congressional committee to justify conclusions reached by his bureau probably will be enacted either Saturday or Monday, it was indicated yesterday.

The Budget Bureau acknowledged receipt yesterday of a letter from the Senate sub-committee on District apropriations, headed by Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, requesting the personal appearance of officials responsible for reducing the propoed 1937 appropriation for Gallinger Hospital from $706,000 to $679,000.

No definite date for the hearing, which is expected to shed new light on fiscal relations between the District and Federal governments, has been set. Senator Thomas said he hoped it would be this week-end or Monday. The spokesman for the Budget Bureau, who requested his name be withheld, declared "it may take several days" to gather data for the conference.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, did not deny yesterday that he had considerably influenced the District sub-committee's decision to call upon the Budget Bureau for an explanation of the Gallinger cuts.

"I am intensely indignant over the revelations to the committee about the hospital," he said. "I think its superintendent, Dr. (Edgar A.) Bocock, has done admirably on the fund he has to work with."

The Thomas sub-committee decided Tuesday, as reported in The Post yesterday, to request Budget Director Daniel W. Bell to explain his bureau's methods in passing upon public health items in the District's 1937 supply bill. He will appear personally before the irate Senators, it was learned.

Accompanying Bell to the hearing, in all likelihood, will be two of his assistants, F. J. Bailey and John L. Keddy, chief advisers on District budgetary matters. Bailey and Keddy sat alongside Bell when the latter presided at a special hearing the bureau accorded last month to the Ruffin civic committee on public health.

Additional authoritative information obtained at the Budget Bureau yesterday complicated still further the campaign being waged for adequate health department and municipal hospital appropriations under leadership of the committee headed by Dr. Sterling Ruffin, president of the District Medical Society.

It was said, in substance, that the fact the House even went further than the Budget Bureau in trimming health and hospital items precludes any reconsideration by the bureau whereby it would restore wholly or in part the funds it eliminated.

Senator Thomas has intimated his sub-committee, which is planning to report the disputed bill next week, will restore health and hospital slashes made by the House, but not those made by the Bureau of the Budget. It was held not unlikely, however, that the sub-committee may go even further with regard to the Gallinger Hospital estimate.

The House reduced this item by only $5,040, whereas the Budget Bureau struck out $27,000.

Youth in America Is Tame, Pearl Buck Tells Group Here

Author Says That Younger Generation of China Is Aflame Over Country, While Here Future Is Chief Thought.

The younger generation here is tame compared with the youth of China, Pearl Buck told an audience of 2,000 at Constitution Hall last night.

"I was talking with a couple of Princeton students recently," the author of "The Good Earth" explained, "and they told me they were interested solely in a job, security and amassing a fortune."

"In the new China of today it would be hard to find a young person who did not in some way want to strike out for his country or his generation."

She said she did not believe that any nation in history had changed so completely in such a short time as China had since the foundation of the republic.

"Lives have been lost to a wasteful degree," she added, "in bringing about that change. No one will ever know how many young people have been killed or put in prison by a ruthless reactionary government because of so-called Communist tendencies."

The daughter of a Chinese missionary was introduced by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "a great writer, but also a woman with a tremendous sympathy for the underprivileged."

The First Lady was referring to her interest in the Vineland Research Laboratory for mentally retarded children, for the benefit of which Miss Buck was lecturing.

In explaining the Chinese to her audience, she said they were more nearly akin to Americans in temperament than were the British.

"They have the same shrewdness, sense of humor, skepticism and desire to evade issues as we," she said. "They have the same common sense and are not mystical like the Japanese or Indians. We both are essentially a non-religious people."

She denied the often-expressed opinion that women in China were oppressed.

"They always have had power, though not until recently under the law," she explained. "For centuries the harassed Chinese wife has exercised the right to stand outside her door and tell the whole street about her husband."

Evalyn McLean Regrets Death Of Hauptmann

"Too Many Loose Ends" in Case to Warrant Execution, She Believes.

There were "too many loose ends" in the Hauptmann case to warrant the German's electrocution, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean declared last night.

The wealthy Washington woman, who has taken a close interest in the strange investigation, revealed for the first time what she thinks of the personalities involved.

A note of regret was apparent in her voice at mention of the electrocution of Hauptmann Friday in Trenton for his part in the kidnaping.

"Do you think Hauptmann should have been executed?" she was asked.

"I do not," she responded. "I think there are too many loose ends in the case so far. They could have locked him up for life."

"Do you think Hauptmann participated in the actual kidnaping?"

"I have strong doubt. It is all very confusing, but I do not think it was a one-man job."

Asked whether she expected a more complete solution of the crime, she replied:

"Yes. It will all be solved in time because so many people are interested in it."

"Has there been any public reaction to your interest in the case?" she was asked.

"I get awful letters," she replied. "Some contain threats. They come in every day, and they have been much worse in the last eight months."

"Do you think the reprieve he granted Hauptmann will hurt Gov. Hoffman's (Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey) political career?"

"I don't think so. He is very brave. Before I ever met Gov. Hoffman people who knew him told me he wouldn't touch the case with a ten-foot pole. But he did."

Mrs. McLean disclosed that she discussed the case with the late Charles Curtis, former Vice President. He promised to arrange an interview for her with Hoffman.

"A few days later," she recalled, "the Governor called here (at the Wisconsin avenue McLean estate, Friendship).

"He said he agreed with me that Hauptmann's conviction did not close the case. The Governor did not tell me he was going to issue a stay of execution when he left."

Mrs. McLean ridiculed reports she gave Hoffman $40,000 to finance his fight to save Hauptmann from the chair.

It was at her request, Mrs. McLean related, that Neil Burkinshaw and Nugent Dodds, Washington lawyers and former Assistant Attorney Generals, unsuccessfully petitioned the United States Supreme Court to grant Hauptmann a writ of habeas corpus.

In further substantiation of her statement that the Hauptmann case had not cost her "even a nickel," she declared Burkinshaw and Dodds did not ask her for a fee, and she paid them nothing.

Until Mrs. McLean disclosed these details Burkinshaw and Dodds were believed to have been retained solely by C. Lloyd Fisher, chief of defense counsel.

Relief Stopped, Destitute Face Eviction Soon

Many Families Paying Last of Rent Money for Food, Welfare Men Say.

An increasing number of destitute families will be evicted from their bare homes as a result of the reduction in relief funds and the consequent stopping of relief payments to employables, it was predicted by welfare executives yesterday.

A woman, her aged mother and her three children were evicted and her meager household goods set upon the sidewalk of a northeast street. The woman was employed and was paid $12 a week. Her rent amounted to $25 a month. Less than that amount was left for food, fuel, light and clothing.

The public assistance division had paid her rent for March, but even so she was two months behind in her rent.

"More and more evictions can be expected as a result of the curtailment of relief," head of one of the Community Chest agencies said. "Persons with rent money are spending it for food. Most of them, because they have been receiving only small amounts, are behind in their rent."

Another 36 families sought aid yesterday from Chest agencies. They were told nothing could be done for them. The agencies are carrying their full loads. Many more applied at public relief stations for help, but there was none for employables, they were told.

Meanwhile District relief officials have received no hint of any action by the Federal Budget Bureau on their request for an appropriation for an additional $258,000 with which to resume aid of employables during the rest of the fiscal year. Privately, they haven't much hope their request will be approved by the bureau. If it is they are dubious about favorable action by Congress. They believe, however, the bureau should at least let the request go before Congress for whatver action the House and Senate may take.

Hearing on Zoning Consent Rules Set

A second public hearing to consider amendments to the zoning regulations which would eliminate all consent provisions was called by the Zoning Commission yesterday for April 22 at 11 a. m.

Proposal to eliminate consent provisions was born of complaints against injustices which occur under present rules, supplemented by charges that obtaining consents for establishment of gasoline stations in residential neighborhoods had developed into something of a lucrative "racket."

Complainants pointed out that such stations could be placed adjacent to a house, the owner of which might strenuously object, if owners of 75 per cent of the property within a 500-foot radius consented, despite the fact the majority of the latter might be relatively far removed from the station.

'Red-Rider' Foes United For Repeal

House Committee Will Report Favorably Sisson Measure.

Support Against Blanton Bill 'Overwhelming,' Says Mrs. Norton.

The move to repeal the Blanton "anti-red rider" to the District appropriations act yesterday received the united support of the House District Committee.

Following an executive session, Chairman Norton announced that the Sisson repeal bill will be reported favorably to the House and be placed on the calendar for consideration on the second District day of the month, April 27.

"The support was overwhelming," Mrs. Norton said, but she declined to reveal the vote.

It is understood that two members voted "present."

Mr. Norton revealed that the transcript of hearings held by the sub-committee on education has been sent to the Government Printing Office without the revisions of Representative Virginia E. Jenckes, bitter opponent of the Sisson bill.

"We made every effort to get her revisions," Mrs. Norton said, "but we couldn't wait any longer. We want to have copies of the hearings in the hand of all members of the House at least a week before the bill is called up."

Mrs. Jenckes, who is a member of the education sub-committee, left Washington ten days ago with a transcript of the hearings, the only one then available, and has ignored all demands of the District Committee for its early return. She is at her home in Indiana.

The Sisson bill is expected to provoke the bitterest House battle over District legislation this session. Representative Blanton already has sought to forestall its adoption by holding lengthy executive hearings on Communism before the sub-committee on District appropriations. Copies of the hearings have been sent all members.

Representative Sisson (Democrat), of New York, is preparing to attack the use of an appropriations sub-committee to investigate a legislative matter in this fashion.

Morgenthau to Talk To U.S. Health Aids

Health officers from each of the 48 States, the District, Canal Zone, Hawaii, the Philippines, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will assemble here next week at the call of Dr. Thomas Parran, jr., surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will address them at 9 a. m. Monday, when the thirty-fourth annual conference of States and territorial health officers opens. Dr. Parran also will speak.

The program, announced yesterday by Dr. Parran, reveals the principal discussions will be on public health provisions of the social security act, industrial hygiene, syphilis and co-ordination of health and welfare activities of the Federal Government. The surgeon general will preside over the two-day conference.

Berwyn Worker Killed in Plunge

Walter T. Douglas, 52, of Berwyn, Md., plunged to his death yesterday from the third floor of a building under construction in the rear of the 1300 block of Florida avenue northwest.

Douglas, employed as a bricklayer, was cleaning brick joints on a scaffold when he lost his balance and fell 32 feet to the pavement. He was pronounced dead a short time later in Garfield Hospital.

He is survived by his wife and one child.

Hampden in Farewell Tour as Cyrano Vies With the Notables of Cinema.

Walter Hampden will open his week's farewell Washington engagement in Brian Hooker's translation of Edmond Rostand's poetic romance of "Cyrano de Bergerac" in the National Theater next Monday night. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, with the afternoon performances beginning promptly at 2 o'clock. The evening curtain will be promptly at 8. Local theatergoers are given the assurance that in cast, production and every essential accessory, this season's revival is on a par with any previous production of this popular work. Supporting the star, who, of course, appears in the title role, are Katherine Warren, as Roxanne; Ernest Rowan, as Le Bret; William Sauter, Robert Schnitzer, C. Norman Hammond, G. Hannam Clark and William Graff. Before the end of the current season, Hampden will have played the great-nosed Cyrano a total of 1,000 times.

Frances Hodgson Burnett's enduring story of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," will take possession of the screen in a new picturization at Loew's Fox Theater tomorrow. In the title role, once played with success by Mary Pickford, will be seen Freddie Bartholomew, so well remembered for his "David Copperfield." Foremost in his support are Dolores Costello Barrymore, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Guy Kibbee and Mickey Rooney. The picture was mounted with the greatest sumptuousness and good taste. On the stage, the Fox will present its Easter "Spring Frolic," starring Everett Marshall, Patricia Bowman, Yascha Bunchuk, Enrica and Novello, and others. Bunchuk will conduct a special overture and the Fox Movietone News will complete the bill.

Al Jolson comes to his hometown screen tomorrow at the Earle Theater in "The Singing Kid," his latest production under the Warner banner. In his support are such notables as Edward Everett Horton, Allen Jenkins, Lyle Talbot, Claire Dodd, Wini Shaw, Mitchell and Durant, Sybil Jason and others. In the leading lady role appears Beverly Roberts, a newcomer to the screen, whose likeness appears on this page. On the stage the vaudeville bill will be headlined by Ina Ray Hutton and Her Melodears, one of the most popular female orchestras on tour. On the bill with her will be seen Helen Honan, "all the stars in one;" the Burke Sisters, singing trio, and, as an extra added attraction, Jack Pepper, Terry Howard and Sammy Cantor.

Edward Arnold will return to the screen of the RKO-Keith Theater tomorrow in the role of Gen. Sutter, in Universal's picturization of the life of the man upon whose property was made the discovery of gold that started the rush to California in the 1840s, presented under the name of "Sutter's Gold." This production is said to have been executed on an epic scale, with a numberless cast appearing in support of the star. The action, of course, takes place in California in the early pioneer days and traces the adventures of a picturesque character who became ruler of a small empire of his own before the gold rush precipitated his undoing. Binnie Barnes, who was with him in "Diamond Jim," once more is Arnold's leading woman.

Beginning Saturday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, the chief feature of the bill will be "Captain January," in which the stellar role is played by that most gifted of the juvenile stars, Shirley Temple. In support of the tiny Shirley will be seen Guy Kibbee and Slim Summerville, Buddy Ebsen, Sara Haden, Jane Darwell, June Lang and Jerry Tucker. The story is of a little waif rescued from the sea by a kindly lighthouse keeper. The bill will be augmented by short sound subjects and special Easter attractions.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, abetted, as usual, by the effervescent Dorothy Lee, will be the pictured stars of the week beginning tomorrow at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater in "Silly Billies." The comedians in this subject are pictured as quack dentists in the Indian country. They encounter many hair-raising adventures—just as their patients do, also! Short sound subjects and full newsreel will complete the Easter Week bill.

Following the current engagement of "Three Women" on the screen at the Belasco Theater, a double-feature bill will be shown, consisting of a revival of Paramount's "Alice in Wonderland," admirably adapted to the Easter season, and Rene Clair's "Under the Roofs of Paris," never exhibited publicly in the city. In "Alice" will be seen Charlotte Henry in the title role—it was her first on the screen—Jack Oakie, Gary Cooper, W. C. Fields and practically the entire roster of Paramount stars.

Charlie Chaplin, supported by Paulette Goddard, will renew the F street run of "Modern Times," his latest comedy, on the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. This has been hailed as one of the star pantomimist's happiest efforts and reveals Miss Goddard as a leading woman perfectly attuned to his style and methods. News events and a special Easter cartoon comedy, "Funny Little Bunnies," will round out the program.

Cecil B. De Mille's stupendous production of "The Sign of the Cross" will be continued as chief feature of the bill at the Little Theater throughout the remainder of the current week and will be held over, one suspects, for the Easter week period. Claudette Colbert, Charles Laughton, Fredric March, Elissa Landi and others of note are foremost in a huge cast that is supported by an ensemble of thousands.

The Easter week attraction at the Gayety Theater, beginning with Sunday matinee, will be "Burlesk Stars of 1936." Benny "Wop" Moore and Manny King are the chief comedians. The feminine roster is headed by "Toots" Brawner, one of the most popular of burlesque's "queens." These stars will be supported by an able cast and sprightly chorus.

Nelson B. Bell

About The Showshops

"THINGS TO COME." H. G. Wells' most persuasive arguments still are to be found upon the printed page rather than upon the motion-picture screen. This was conclusively demonstrated by the preview presentation of his "Things to Come," before an invited audience of genuine brilliance in the Wardman Park Theater on Tuesday night.

BELL.

It is the impression of one who read the scenario of the picture 24 hours before viewing the film that the picturization of this condensed resume of the conclusions reached in the author's more voluminous work of "The Shape of Things to Come," presents arguments that lose much of their potency in the celluloid medium. This is partly accounted for by the fact that, evidently in the interest of brevity on the screen, many individually brief, but collectively important, deletions from the printed text have been made. These eliminations, no doubt, could be found on the cutting-room floor.

In the large view, "Things to Come" is an imaginative, engrossing and highly fantastic view of what the future may, or may not, bring forth in the way of a "Planned World." Its implication seems to be that before anything much can be accomplished for the betterment of mankind, the human race must be subjected to a quarter-century of war and all but complete destruction by pestilence. It seems a high price to pay for being brought to our senses.

The last half of the film, after this complete revolution in man's mode of thought, action and living has been brought about, is infinitely superior to the first sequences of the pictured story, which consist largely of repetitive presentations of the horrors of war with which the world already is pretty thoroughly familiar.

* * * *

As Mr. Wells freely confesses, his first attempt in a new medium, necessarily—particularly considering the vast scope of the subject he has chosen—is "sketchy and incomplete in its argumentative aspects." That is entirely true. The printed scenario is the more eloquent of the two documents, but even so, "Things to Come" is a courageous, conspicuously novel and commanding bit of gelatin propaganda which should be eagerly awaited by discriminating filmgazers.

* * * *

"LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY." Whether one has been an admirer of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's saccharine story of small boyhood or not, there can be no resisting the sentimental charm of the picture that has been evolved from the familiar story by Producer David O. Selznick, his adapter, Hugh Walpole, and his director, John Cromwell.

In the first place, the new picturization of this enduring tale is one of such artistic completeness and beauty as to compel the admiration even of the most grudging. Its title role is played with great skill and infinite appeal by that prodigious young actor, Freddie Bartholomew, whose Oxonian accent so fittingly distinguishes the young earl he is called upon to impersonate. Even with the superlative performance turned in by the picture's young star—which, by the way, is not to be compared with his David Copperfield any more than Mrs. Burnett is to be with Charles Dickens—I would not be sure that the veteran C. Aubrey Smith does not steal the honors of the occasion by the perfection of his portrayal of the crotchety and gouty old Earl of Dorincourt, the miserly terror of the countryside until Master Cedric sets him a better example.

There can be no quarrel with this picture. Especially will the small boys among its audiences applaud it for having abolished, once and for all, one hopes, those atrocious "Little Lord Fauntleroy suits" of velvet, with satin sash and wide ruffled collar that once were the bane of all youngsters below the age of 15. At Loew's Fox tomorrow.

* * * *

"THE SINGING KID." I regret to report that the screenings of "Fauntleroy" and this gay subject came so close together yesterday, and the executive preview of "The Moon Is Our Home," immediately preceding the "Kid" at Warners, ran so long that I was unable to see the Jolson opus in its entirety. The two-thirds of it I did see, however, showed Al Jolson to be at the top of his form, both as a singing comedian and as a romantic actor. He worked "straight" and in blackface and was in as fine fettle as 'way back in the old Shubert days when his Winter Garden hits were the talk of the amusement world. In fact, his new picture opens with snatches from these older productions, with the star singing scraps of the song hits from each.

On this page is a characteristic portrait study of the new Jolson leading woman. You will like her from the first word she utters. There is something about her, if you know what I mean. There is, even if you don't. And little Sybil Jason will captivate anyone whose susceptibilities are not of case-hardened Bessemer steel. The Yacht Club Boys, Cab Calloway and his hi-de-ho band, Mitchell and Durant and a complete musical comedy company—both white and sepia—furnish the gaudy trimmings. At the Earle tomorrow.

* * * *

"THE MOON IS OUR HOME." From the reel or two I saw of this one, it may be classified as a sort of Joan Crawford-Clark Gable type of matrimonial comedy, only with Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda in the pivotal roles.

This is the picture that has set afoot rumors that Miss Sullavan and Mr. Fonda, who are husband and wife once removed by the divorce courts, are about to walk that last mile together again. It is amusing when the script calls for Miss Sullavan to say, to Mr. Fonda, "I am the girl who was once your wife!"

This smiling young woman enjoys the distinction of making her screen debut, not as a "movie extra," but in the enviable role of Al Jolson's leading woman in his latest Warner Brothers production, "The Singing Kid." Her name is Beverly Roberts and she makes a splendid impression as leading woman in a cast that also includes such veterans as Edward Everett Horton, Allen Jenkins, the Yacht Club Boys, Cab Calloway and His Band, Claire Dodd, Lyle Talbot, Mitchell and Durant and that diminutive youngster, Sybil Jason, in addition to the star. "The Singing Kid" comes to the Earle screen for the week beginning tomorrow.

Japan

By Jimmie Powers.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The little silver umbrella pot, which represents the United States Open championship, will, in ten years at the very latest, grace a clubhouse mantel in Osaka, Kobe or Tokyo. Any nation which teaches its children an elaborately beautiful etiquette in which life, love and death alike are faced with a smile, will certainly conquer golf. I have spent the week at Augusta in the company of Torchy Toda and Chick Chin, two yellow men alone in a world of whites. I saw them suffer the most discouraging luck; putts hung on the cup lip; approaches bounded weirdly into traps, and once the gusty remnants of a tornado blew Toda, who weighs 110, completely off the green. Yet, through it all, they smiled—constantly, incredibly, they smiled.

All about them we Aryan whites were grousing. In the sultry lockers faces were distorted in rage. Scores were high, feet were wet. Still the two Japs sat, serenely smiling. One is liable, offhand, to mistake this for an idiocy. But my newspaper friends, Jack Flynn and Chojiro Kuriyama, explained that Torchy and Chin have had many lessons in self-suppression. When they were doll-like children with black bangs, bright kimonos and glossy, cricket eyes, they were taught to smile just as they were taught to bow, eat and clothe themselves. Though their baby hearts were breaking they were ever to present to parents a smiling face, because a smiling face is the most agreeable face. An uncontrollable burst of tears was an impoliteness.

This self-control is essential if one is to conquer golf nerves. Bobby Jones did not succeed until he stopped his peevish pounding of clubs on tree trunks. When temper flare, scores soar.

Toda and Chin already have a good record and there are 1,000,000 embryo Japanese golfers soon to follow them. Toda, smaller than Cruickshank, is Japan's open champion. He lives at Kobe. Toda has been in the top third of winter fields; he came within one stroke of winning the Hollywood Open. Although a midget, he socks the ball a mile and has consistently outdriven Hagen, Armour and Sarazen. Chin, taller, is from Formosa where most natives are big. Chin shot 300 at Augusta, tying Lawson Little. Both Toda and Chin are foremer caddies, sons of poor fathers.

Japan will repeat its Olympic swimming victories, they believe. Every schoolyard at home swarms with sprinters, high jumpers and vaulters. "San" is equivalent to the "Hon. Mr." and the features and records of "O'Doul-San, Ruth-San are familiar to all. A news reel of a United States football or World Series game sells out the house even in obscure Rice villages.

Cleveland Boxers To Organize Union

Cleveland, April 8 (AP).—Patsy Rosselli, 28-year-old amateur featherweight boxer (retired), proposed today to apply the axiom "in union there is strength" to nonprofessional leather pushers victimized, he claimed, by unscrupulous "mushroom managers."

Cleveland amateurs will meet tomorrow night, he said, to decide whether to form an association "for their own protection."

"The boys have been telling me their troubles. I had 'em, too. That's why I quit the ring.

"These muhroom managers pop up over night, thinking they see some easy coin," he said. "They take a kid under their wing. After a fight, the kid gets 50 cents or a dollar. The manager pockets the other three or four bucks, or maybe ten."

Bethesda Golf Team Beats Wilson High, 4-2

Paced by Harper's 78, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's golf team won its second consecutive victory yesterday by defeating Woodrow Wilson High, 4 to 2, on the Columbia Country Club course.

Herbie Shannon, young host club star, started the Wilsonites off with a 4 and 3 victory over De Lough. Bethesda captain, but Harper defeated Evans, 7 and 6, and shot good enough golf to win the best-ball 1 up.

Ruane, Bethesda, won over Eastman, 8 and 6, and Brent, of Wilson, over Schultz, 3 and 4, but the Bethesdans won the best-ball match again, 7 and 6, for the margin of victory.

U. S. Netmen Predict Win Tomorrow

Both Squads Kept From Practice by Rain; Play Friday.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 8 (AP).—A rain kept the United States and Mexican Davis Cup practice on a conversational basis today—and the home team won.

Rained off the courts, the United States cup players put in the day predicting an overwhelming victory for their side when they meet the Mexican team in singles matches here, starting Friday. They insisted the result will be the same as last year, when the Mexicans won but one match.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, and red-haired Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif., won enough matches between them to clinch the 1935 victory for the United States. Their opponents were Esteban Reyes and Daniel Hernandez, the same pair they will meet this year.

Grant proved he was in top form this season by defeating Wilmer Allison, the national champion, in the finals of the River Oaks tournament yesterday. The Californian looked like the Budge of 1935 in early tournaments on the West Coast.

Both Budge and Grant are thinking of the future. The spectacular 20-year-old Californian would like to pass the aging Allison in the national rankings for 1936. Grant hopes to convince the doubters he is qualified to represent his country in the more important Davis Cup matches later in the year.

Picard's $4,623 Tops Golf Winners

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., April 8.—Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., is the leading money winner among professional golfers in tournament play since January 1, with a total of $4,623, Robert E. Harlow, P. G. A. tournament bureau manager, said here today.

With only the $3,000 Richmond open to be played here Friday and Saturday to complete the winter and spring tour, none of the other players can equal Picard's earnings, Harlow said.

The leading 10, according to Harlow's figures:

Henry Picard	$4,623
Jimmy Hines	3,373
Horton Smith	3,263
Willie Hunter	3,175
Harry Cooper	2,973
Gene Sarazen	2,680
Johnny Revolta	2,509

Hot Stove League Boys To See Nat-Albany Tilt

YOUNG WASHINGTON—those lucky kids who are members of Arch McDonald's Hot Stove League—will find the gates of Griffith Stadium thrown open to 'em at no charge when the Nats play the Albany club Saturday.

The Hot Stove League, numbering 4,000 youths of Washington and vicinity, will be the guests of the Washington ball club on that date, McDonald announced last night following his People's Sports Review over Station WJSV.

McDonald, who this season, as in former years, will broadcast all of the Nats' out-of-town games under the sponsorship of the People's Drug Stores, in co-operation with The Washington Post, is making elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of "his gang."

Every holder of a Hot Stove League membership card will be admitted to the game on presenting the card at a special Griffith Stadium gate on Saturday.

Bands, photographers an' everything will make the day a gala occasion for the Hot Stove Leaguers, for whom a special section in Griffith Stadium has been set apart for the game.

Not only Washington youths who belong to the Hot Stove League, but members of the organization living in Maryland and Virginia are invited to the game as guests of Clark Griffith, Washington owner.

New York Gets Final Olympic Tryouts

Award Is Made Although Stadium Is Not Yet Completed.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 8.—Admittedly unimpressed by the recent progress in the construction of the Randalls Island Stadium, William J. Bingham, chairman of the Olympic track and field committee, today formally awarded that New York site the final tryouts on July 10 and 11.

"We have it in writing that the field must be ready by June 20, or else the final tryouts may be switched to some other place," Bingham explained. "But everyone has confidence in Robert Moses, the New York park commissioner, and he has promised to have the Randalls Island Stadium completed before the deadline.

Bingham also assigned the final Decathlon tryouts on June 26 and 27 to Milwaukee, which will sponsor the central semifinals on those dates.

The 50,000-meter walk final tryout was awarded to Cincinnati, to be held in conjunction with the National A. A. U. track and field championships there on May 24.

Bingham's committee has approved two final marathon tryouts, the Boston A. A. race on April 20 and the National A. A. U. marathon at Washington, D. C., on May 30. After the latter race, three runners will be selected for the United States marathon team.

The Harvard athletic director announces that the first of the four semifinal track and field tryouts would be the National Collegiate A. A. championship at Chicago on June 19 and 20. On June 26 and 27, semifinal tryouts will be held at the Coliseum in Los Angeles, at Milwaukee and at Harvard Stadium in Cambridge.

Hoyas' Hurling Blanks Terror Nine, 10-0

Nicketakis Holds Rivals to Three Hits; Strikes Out 10 Batters.

AIRTIGHT pitching by Nicketakis and Barabas and some championship hitting carried the Hoyas to a smashing 10-0 victory over Western Maryland yesterday at the Hilltop.

Powerless before the curves and fast ones fired over the plate by the two Hilltop twirlers, the Terrors were able to garner only three hits, two of them resounding off the bat of Outfielder Campbell.

The Hoyas launched a vigorous attack in the opening inning, rushing three men across the plate, thanks to Sheeran's triple, K. Nau's double, walks by Bassin and Crenshaw.

Again in the third Georgetown released another barrage of hits that brought in three players. Another run was tallied in the fourth, and three more in the seventh.

Nicketakis pitched masterfully during his six innings on the mound, fanning ten men. He never was in hot water. He was backed by superb fielding.

English Racer Leaves For Utah Record Try

Southampton, April 8 (AP).—Capt. George Eyston, holder of the world's 24-hour automobile speed record, sailed today on the Aquitania bound for Salt Lake City, Utah, where he hopes to set new records on Bonneville salt beds.

Capt. Eyston took two automobiles with him, one propelled by a Diesel engine. He was accompanied by a co-driver, A. Denly. Eyston's present record, set last September, is 140.550 miles per hour.

DeShong and Linke On Mound Today

In a mood to avenge themselves for the one-sided beating dealt 'em by the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, the Nats will meet the Dodgers again today at Griffith Stadium with Bucky Harris prepared to send two more of his best pitchers to the mound.

Washington fans will see in action for the first time in a Nat uniform Jimmy DeShong, obtained during the winter in a trade with the Yankees. DeShong will share the Washington pitching with Ed Linke, Ol' Tom Zachary, former star with the Nats, who balked at pitching for the Dodgers in yesterday's cold weather, is expected to take the mound for Brooklyn today.

Dodgers Rap Two Griff Hurlers

Attack Falters; Whitehill and Newsom Pounded for 15 Hits.

Only 500 Spectators See Tilt; Senators Make 4 Errors.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

WASHINGTON fandom, to the extent of some 500 of the faithful, saw the first Bobbin' of the spring yesterday at Griffith Stadium, where the homecoming Nationals slipped and were slugged into a 10-to-2 defeat at the heavy hands of the Brooklyn Daffiness Boys.

The weather wasn't exactly right for baseball and neither were the Nats. Both left the customers a little cold and disgruntled, but it actually wasn't as bad as that. Brooklyn was held on even terms for five innings and lost one, but it won the other three by unquestionable margins. This was particularly true of the ninth, when the Flatbush Flatfeet took great liberty with the offerings of Earl Whitehill and riddled his outward calm with five hits and an equal number of runs that clinched the final decision. Whitehill followed Buck Newsom to the mound, but their performances were not ones to inspire confidence in the hearts of the spectators.

Mungo Yields Only One Hit.

Van Lingle Mungo, a broth of a lad with a curve as round as Thomas Circle and a cordial dislike for Newsom, assumed Brooklyn's pitching chores at the outset of the game and did very well by himself, limiting his opponents to one hit in four innings. They were four futile innings for the impotent National batters, who couldn't get within shouting distance of the hitting column. Mungo fanned four and walked three.

Newsom, meanwhile, was displaying some plain and fancy pitching for the visitors' benefit, who passed up the fancy stuff and picked on the plain for eight juicy hits and half as many runs. It didn't help Buck's frame of mind any, for he, possessing a cordial dislike for Mungo, was bent on showing up the Brooklyn lad. Buck's determination to make good was not enough to thwart Brooklyn's steady and heavy cannonading, however, though he was stil pouring his fast 'un down the alley at the finish of his tour of duty.

The first bobbin' appeared on the scene as early as the first inning, when Cecil Travis scooped up Eckhardt's grounder and tried to throw him out in box A. Buddy Lewis and Buddy Myer followed suit with more miscues later in the game, but the eventual outcome of the day did not hinge on these.

Lewis Goes Hitless.

Lewis, incidentally, completely unraveled the reams of copy written from training camp about his hitting ability by going hitless in five appearances at the plate, starting with an inglorious strike-out in the first inning. The big guns of the Nat attack were Jesse Hill, who got two for three, and Jake Powell who produced the same number of hits in five tries.

Brooklyn started its victorious march in the third when Eckhardt beat out a slow roller to third and continued on to second when Lewis' peg missed Joe Kuhel's outstretched glove by a mere 3 feet. Cooney scored him with a sharp single to center.

But that was only the beginning, a prelude to the heavy wood work to follow in the succeeding inning, which Hassett opened with a walk. Geraghty drew another pass, but

Watson's Jaw Fractured in Bowie Spill

Youngster Injured When Mount Stumbles at Eighth-Mile Post.

STRUCK by the hoofs of his mount, which had unseated him in the stretch of the fourth race at Bowie yesterday, Jockey Georgie Watson suffered a probable fractured jaw and severe scalp wounds.

Watson was leading the field with Reigh Tetrarch when the horse stumbled at the eighth pole and fell against the inside rail. The 19-year-old Toronto, Canada, lad was tossed against the pole and knocked to the ground. The horse, off balance, struck the jockey with his hoofs.

Other riders in the race managed to clear the fallen leader and the diminutive Watson, who was rushed to the St. Joseph's Hospital by the track ambulance.

Watson, a 103-pounder, who is one of the tiniest jockeys at Bowie, is a brother of Bobby Watson, also a leading rider, and the cousin of the famed jockey, Charley Robertson. In Florida young Watson was one of the season's leading riders.

Huge Athletic Trust Is Aim Of Dickson

Wrestling, Track, Many Other Sports Would Be Involved.

By the United Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Jeff Dickson, outstanding European sports promoter, arrived on the Europa from Paris today and immediately went into a huddle with Mike Jacobs, outstanding American promoter, hoping to form an international partnership that would be the most important in athletic history.

This partnership, proposed by youthful, brown-haired Dickson to semi-bald Jacobs, would result this year in European tours by Joe Louis and Maxie Baer and the importation by Jacobs of a flock of European heavyweights—winners of eight European tourneys.

The combination also would have many other ramifications, extending into professional wrestling, professional track and field competitions, league baseball in England and professional ice carnivals on both continents.

Tour Planned for Louis.

"That's why I came to America this time," Dickson explained, after his first conference at Mike Jacobs' office. "For some time I have felt the need of tying up with a big-time American promoter. Jacobs is the man I want. And I think the partnership will do him a lot of good over here."

Jacobs said he thought the combine might be beneficial to both, but he would make no decision until after he and Dickson had discussed the matter thoroughly. Their conferences will be continued tomorrow.

"Before coming over here I was so sure that Mike and I could come to an agreement," Dickson said, "that I went right ahead and mapped out an exhibition tour for Joe Louis. I would like to have him start in Paris in October and appear in 11 countries, including France, England, Spain, Belgium, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries. Of course, I know he cannot come to Europe before meeting Schmeling and, probably Braddock for the title."

McCarthy May Reap Big Harvest in Malone

Notorious 'Bad Boy' Gives Promise of Great Season

By Paul Mickelson.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Down the sports trail:

Faith Rewarded. Manager Joe McCarthy, a man who never forgets a baseball pal and who seldom gets much in return for it, may reap a big harvest for his faith in Pat Malone, once one of the game's most notorious "bad boys." Close associates told Joe he couldn't settle Malone and that, anyway, the pitcher was all washed up. Joe vetoed them, hired him. Down to ideal weight and working harder than ever, Pat has been showing up splendidly this spring. Tonsilitis has laid him low for the present, but experts with the club expect him to have a great year. Pat won 60 games and lost 32 in three seasons under Joe with the Cubs.

Holdouts. Major league holdouts finished bad seconds in 1936, except for Hank Leiber, of the Giants, and possibly Babe Herman, of the Reds. They lost by an estimated margin of around $200,000 on the basis of their original demands. Dizzy Dean and Hank Greenberg, two most noted holdouts, shouted for $40,000 each and got about that much together. It is reported that even Elmer Dean, star peanut vendor down Houston way, was tickled to line up after a sad holdout campaign.

The only fellow to make good as a holdout was an outfielder named Ruth. And he finished second at the finish.

Down Under. Australia is sending out feelers on the prospect of landing the 1940 or '44 Olympic games, but Japan has the inside track. Fortunately for this country the games aren't located in either place this year. The American Olympic fund then would be really "down under."

Missing. Virginia Van Wie, three times-in-a-row National Women's Golf champion, has shattered all known precedent for definite retirement so far. Usually, when a sports champion retires (he or she hangs around the big show with that lonely look. Not "Ginny." You seldom see her any more; she plays only for the fun of it. Wedding bells?

Wallop. Two of the greatest wallops in sport are long and short. They belong to Golfer Lawson Little and Fighter Joe Louis. Joe, with his 6-inch pile-driving punch, is cashing in fast. Lawson, who frequently smashes the white pellet for a 300-yard drive, is out to do likewise now. He won't get nearly as much.

Thought. Wonder what would happen to some major baseball teams if Mussolini issued a world-wide call to the Italian colors? Di Magio, Lazzeri et al., farewell!

Sailor Beware, in Form Reversal, Wins Bowie Sprint Feature

$141 Mutuel Returned by Double

Epitaph and Wiggle In Reward Betters in First and Third.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, April 8.—Sailor Beware, a representative of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable, staged a comeback here this afternoon to win the Mayor Howard W. Jackson Handicap, named in honor of Baltimore's chief executive. The son of St. James led the Vanderbilt Stable's Bachelor Dinner to the imaginary wire by a half length at the end of the 6-furlong sprint, with Warren, jr., from the Calumet Farm, a like distance away.

Sailor Beware, which once defeated the great Omaha, winner of last year's Derby and Preakness, developed quitting qualities last fall and his handlers were about to end his racing career. However, the stable veterinarian decided that something was bothering the good-looking gelding. The trouble finally was diagnosed as a growth in the throat that was interfering with his breathing.

An operation was performed in Florida, and Sailor Beware showed immediate improvement and began to amaze the clockers. In his first appearance in the Inaugural Handicap here, the gelding was bumped soon after the start and failed to run his race.

Today he had clear sailing from start to finish, and, instead of quitting, answered Jockey Silvio Coucci's whip in the stretch to ease to the wire the winner.

The majority of customers had some doubt about the improved condition of the Greentree color bearer. Those who had faith cashed a $9.20 mutuel.

The ideal racing weather and a good program served to boost the attendance, some 8,000 participating in the sport.

Epitaph, a gelded son of Epinard, gave the long-shot players a thrill in the opening race with a front running effort that produced a victory and a $31.10 mutuel. War Saint, another long shot, took the place decision from Dogmata, the favorite.

An odds-on choice, Jackie D. scored an easy victory in the second race, the day's juvenile dash of 4 furlongs. Ridden by Harry Richards, Jackie D. forged to the front going into the stretch and then drew far out in the final stages. Hypo closed some ground to be second ahead of Capt. Yarbrough. Pass 'Em By, 32-1 shot, went to the top and was running second when he bolted toward the fence at the eighth pole. The winner paid $3.40.

Wiggle In made it three victories in a row in the third race to defeat Bright Emerald and Genie Palatine in a field of nine. The apprentice, I. Anderson, gave a good saddle exhibition. Argoan was the early pacemaker, but tired suddenly swinging into the stretch. The winner paid $8.60.

13-to-5 Odds on Brevity To Win Derby 'Pitiful'

Louisville, Ky., April 8 (AP).—"Mr. Coyne, the winter books quoted Brevity at 13 to 5 today."

"What do you think the odds ought to be, Mr. Coyne?"

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EPITAPH, $31.10, $11.30, $5.40; WAR SAINT, $15.20, $6.60; DOGMATA, $2.70.

EPITAPH, in the thick of contention during the early racing, moved to the front readily, opened up a clear lead when reaching the homestretch, came out into the firmer footing and outstayed WAR SAINT under a drive. WAR SAINT, well placed in the early stages, responded gamely when forced to a drive and was going stoutly at the close while on the inside. DOGMATA, sloughed when leaving the backstretch, took a wide course after recovering and finished in determined fashion. GOLDEN SEPTRE went with the early leaders and held on gamely in the closing test. M. J. BRENNAN, squeezed back after the start, bettered his position steadily when finding racing room. DISTRACTING was hard ridden after getting into a short lead early, but was not good enough. CURLING displayed early foot. CAMINO REAL was in trouble leaving the backstretch and was never a factor thereafter.

SECOND RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:08½. Winner, Otto Blank's br. c. (2), by Sweep All—Agnes Ayres. Trained by P. Clausen. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 4-5.*

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JACKIE D., $3.40, $3.10, $2.40; HYPO, $7.90, $4.10; CAPT. YARBROUGH, $3.60.

JACKIE D. assumed command when moving through on the inside of PASS 'EM BY leaving the backstretch, opened up a commanding lead at the turn for home and continuing strongly thereafter, drew out at will nearing the finish. HYPO, outrun after breaking nicely, responded to punishment when straightened into the home-stretch and closed with good courage. CAPT. YARBROUGH, prominent in the early racing, held on gamely although no match for the first two. MOONBURN lacked speed after being squeezed back going into the turn, and was unable to threaten. PASS 'EM BY displayed high speed after the start, bore out rounding the turn, swerved to the inside, striking the fence when reaching the homestretch, and had to be taken up in the last furlong. RED ARIL was outrun. ST. IVES was never a factor. HORNET had no excuses.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:37. Off at 3:39½. Winner, Calumet Farm's ch. g. (3), by The Satrap—Wiggle Waggle. Trained by F. J. Kearns. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WIGGLE IN, $8.60, $4.70, $3.20; BRIGHT EMERALD, $8.10, $4.90; GENIE PALATINE, $4.50.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $141.00.

WIGGLE IN, hustled hard to maintain a forward position, swung to the outside when moving to the leaders entering the homestretch, gained command in the closing furlong and outstayed BRIGHT EMERALD. Latter secured racing room on the inside to hold a contending position, challenged strongly when reaching the homestretch while on the inside and fought it out stoutly under punishment. GENIE PALATINE improved her position gradually and held on gamely for the closing test. ARGOAN had good speed while setting the pace, shook off IN FRONT, but tired in the last quarter mile. STE. LOUISE sulked after getting away clearly and was never dangerous while racing on the outside. IN FRONT showed good speed for five furlongs, then tired. PHRIXUS was unable to menace. GAY MINETTA stopped. TERRY ON lacked speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:09½. Winner, S. Gooch's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHN P. W., $4.20, $3.00, $2.40; AU FOLLY, $8.50, $3.80; SECURED, $3.00.

JOHN P. W., eased back off the leaders and rated close up after being straightened into the backstretch, rallied to punishment in the last quarter mile, went into the lead when REIGH TETRARCH left the track and outstayed AU FOLLY under a hard drive. AU FOLLY gained steadily in the last half mile after being outrun for six furlongs and finished determinedly. SECURED followed within striking distance of the pace-maker, made a strong effort entering the homestretch while on the outside, but tired badly in the last furlong. GAY LASS trailed most of the trip. INSULATED was never a factor. REIGH TETRARCH bolted and crashed into the inside rail at the three-sixteenths pole while leading his field.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. The Mayor Howard W. Jackson Handicap, class C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:38. Off at 4:41½. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. g. (4), by St. James—Lady Be Good. Trained by J. M. Gaver. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAILOR BEWARE, $9.20, $5.10, $5.00; BACHELOR DINNER, $4.40, $3.20; WARREN, JR., $4.30.

SAILOR BEWARE, continuing strongly after being overtaken, rallied stoutly in the last sixteenth and closing fast, was up in the last 20 yards. BACHELOR DINNER, under stout restraint while chasing in pursuit of the pacemakers, assumed command with a rush when reaching the homestretch, saved ground, but tired suddenly in the closing sixteenth mile. WARREN, JR., outrun for the first half mile, came through on the inside in the final issue and finished full of run. BILLY BEE, unable to race forwardly in the early running, swung to the outside and finished with a belated rush. ENTHUSIASM showed nice speed for five furlongs then weakened steadily. HOME LOAN went strongly for five furlongs. MORPLUCK was never able to enter contention. SILVER FLEECE was never a forward factor.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards; claiming. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:11½. Winner, Mrs. H. S. Herkheimer's ch. g. (5), by Mad Hatter—Broomotta. Trained by C. F. Clarke. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50, 1:16 2-5, 1:43 3-5, 1:49 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KEPI, $24.70, $11.10, $5.00; DOUBLE FINESSE, $4.20, $2.90; PLAYMORE, $2.40.

KEPI, forwardly rated in the early racing, challenged stoutly entering the home-stretch, bore DOUBLE FINESSE down in the closing furlong, and barely lasted long enough. DOUBLE FINESSE, reserved back of GNOMNIE, took a slight lead in the last five-sixteenths and held on resolutely after being overtaken by the winner. PLAYMORE, incompetently handled, was taken up at the break, drove into a pocket when leaving the backstretch, then was eased to the inside in the last quarter mile after being taken back at the turn into the homestretch, but tired in the final drive from his early misfortunes. HOT GRIDDLE went evenly throughout. FAIR BILLY could not engage the leaders. GNOMNIE was used up setting the pace and he stopped. REDIVIVUS was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward (foaled in Maryland). Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:38. Off at 5:41½. Winner, J. McNamara's b. m. (6), by The Wanderer—Elusina. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:43, 1:48 4-5.

MISS SYMPHONY	(Coule)	101	2	1	1h	6h	7h	8	8	168.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WANDREL, $10.10, $3.90, $2.90; MANAGER BILL, $3.90, $2.50; TRAGEDIAN, $3.10.

WANDREL, reserved off the early pace, gradually improved her position, moved up strongly through the stretch to wear down MANAGER BILL in the drive. The latter, away well, disposed of MISS SYMPHONY early, assumed a short lead, saved ground throughout, and just failed to last. TRAGEDIAN broke slowly, was rushed into contention too soon and weakened from his efforts. TIGHT WAD broke very slowly and closed a good gap. HAPPY EASTER raced evenly. MISS SYMPHONY and QUEEN GOVANS stopped.

Leaders Thunder Toward Wire in Bowie Feature Sprint

Sailor Beware, the winner, leads the pack in the stretch of the Mayor Jackson Purse at Bowie yesterday. Bachelor Dinner (No. 2) and Warren, jr. (No. 1), finished second and third, respectively. Jockey Coucci gave up the lead with Sailor Beware in the backstretch and regained it from Bachelor Jr. in the final running.

At the Post . . .

Bowie Race Track, Md., April 8.

Dear Al:

A Benningite who has not been satisfied with some of the riding here, comes through with a novel idea about racing. After writing that the "electric eye" will be a big help to the bettors, he says that what the public needs is a moving picture machine mounted on a tall pole in the infield. Under his plan the camera would revolve to follow the horses. He contends that both the stewards and the customers would be surprised at what the picture would reveal. He might sell the idea at Narragansett Park, Santa Anita or Hialeah, but Maryland tracks, too cheap to have convenient drinking fountains, would never go for it. I like to get the opinion of the Benningites. If you have a pet peeve or some constructive criticism, let me have it. In the meanwhile, I believe it would be a good idea if I picked a few winners—I mean a few more than those three today. Hats off to Clocker Mike, if you know what I mean. BILL.

First race—Trina ran a fair race last out to be second after overcoming early trouble. Meets many first-time starters, and if the field holds nothing sensational among the newcomers, the Sickle filly should score. Balkos Maid and Bergere represent the Vanderbilt interests. Both have worked well. Mad Damassin may be a lot better than that last.

Second race—Sang Froid has an excellent chance of ending the winning streak of Acautaw in this sprint. The first named gets a nice shift in the weights and has been improving. A fast track should help. Dowdy Dell to take care of the others.

Third race—Currants probably needed the last and meets a field that may succumb to his brand of speed. Gets in with only steadying weight. Playfole was in tight quarters after the break in that most recent effort and will be dangerous. Vanda Cerulea for the show.

Fourth race—Night Play was forced to race on the outside here the other day and turned in a good race. May be sharp enough to score here. Vitascope must be respected off that last. Irish Ted for the remainder.

Fifth race—Red Badge and Coming Back should battle it out for this purse. Both are fit and ready. Mad Frump ran well in the stretch last out and could be the medium of an upset.

Sixth race—This field is cheap enough to allow Lone Hand to take a set of brackets. His last was encouraging. Irish Vote was a bear at New Orleans. Tuleyries Wand is reported to be on edge.

Seventh race—Eudes, Sun Way and U. Demon is the way I prefer them in the day's finals. The last named has worked well and would be ready if an upset materializes.

WHEN I sent word from Florida about Sailor Beware being a different horse since he had his tonsils or something removed from his throat, Bill put him on top . . . but after he failed in the Inaugural Bill passed him up . . . so I made him my special yesterday . . . how y' doing, folks? . . . and I'm making Coming Back my good thing for today. . . . Singing Wood will not be seen in the $5,000 added Southern Maryland Handicap Saturday . . . the Inaugural winner was shipped to Havre de Grace yesterday . . . and will run in the Harford, Monday's opening feature at the Graw . . . and probably will be the favorite . . . however, a good field is expected to compete in the week-end-event at Bowie . . . Good Harvest (this one may win it), New Deal, First Minstrel, Lynx Eye, Purple Knight, Steel Cutter, Peradventure, Ward in Chancery, Ladfield and Chatmoss look like almost certain starters . . . Bryan Field, of the New York Times, will broadcast the Kentucky Derby again this year. . . . Field, who has discarded his radio name of Thomas Bryan George, has been doing the air reporting on big races for five years. . . . As was the case last year, his will be the lone air account of the Blue Glass classic. . . . Many of the horses that have been winning at Bowie will have a tough time getting in the money at the Graw . . . where many of the larger stables will send their charges into action for the first time. . . . Harry Richards is leading the jockeys. . . . Two years ago Richards left Bowie because he couldn't get a single mount. . . . Just Remember may do a bit of running in that cheap sixth race today . . . and if he wins he'll give you something to remember him by. . . . When the horse Beaver Dam was winning in Maryland captains referred to are reliable, many of them former members of the United States Coast Guard Service, all of them experienced men of the sea, and can be depended upon to give you the best of fishing.

Eastern, Western High Nines Win; Central Takes 3-2 Beating

EASTERN and Western High schools tucked away a victory apiece yesterday in early season baseball embroglios, but Central High absorbed a 3-to-2 defeat from Loyola School, of Baltimore, at Central Stadium. Eastern swamped Devitt Prep, 12 to 1, and Western nosed out Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, Va., 2 to 1.

Coach Charlie Guyon, who is as hard to keep out of the headlines as Dizzy Dean, came out over at Eastern Field all decked out in an umpire's hat and heavy overcoat to watch his newest Eastern diamond dragoons drub Devitt in a six-inning game.

It was Eastern's opening fracas of the season and found the inter-high championship club as dangerous as it has been for the past three years. Chief Guyon's chief worry, his pitching strength, proved itself more worthy of confidence.

Young Jack Carver and Lefty Wade Pembroke, two of the Police Boys' Club League's outstanding pitchers last season, held the Prep team to three hits. Guyon used two entire teams after the first stringers had taken a 9-0 lead in the first three innings. Joe Skomorack, starting Devitt pitcher, was knocked out of the box and was relieved by Bill Cleveland in the third inning.

After a five-inning pitchers' duel in which Rowles struck out eight men and Ker fanned five, Central broke the ice when Valenga and Rowles scored on Fones' two-base error to leftfield.

It remained for Melindeck, flashy Loyola centerfielder, to break up the old ball game with a resounding home run to bring in Clancy and Rector ahead. Central placed a man on the paths in both the eighth and ninth innings but each time Kerr was equal to the occasion.

Moore proved to be the goat of the Western-Washington and Lee game. After banging out a home run to put the visitors ahead, he muffed the ball in the sixth inning and allowed Alafoginis to score the winning run.

Dickson, Jacobs Plan Huge 'Trust'

Champion Maxie Baer, Dickson said he was confident Jacobs could entice Maxie back to the ring. He would prefer to let Maxie handle that end of it. Then he would match Maxie for three comeback fights in Europe in July, August and September. His opponents probably would be Tommy Farr in London, Andre Lenglet in Paris and any good continental heavyweight in Madrid.

"I figure Baer should make at least $80,000 clear profit out of the three bouts," Dickson continued. "I'll pay all expenses and take care of Maxie's taxes—in addition to that profit. Boxing is flourishing in Europe now, you know."

Had Dickson made any overtures to Louis or Baer? No—he had not. He figured he would let Mike handle Baer as well as Louis. Mike has the Brown Bomber under contract for a couple of years. Mike expressed confidence that he could inveigle Baer back to the beak-busting business.

REMARKS .....

NAME OF WINNER .....

NAME OF ENTRANT .....

ADDRESS OF ENTRANT .....

The Object.

To predict as closely as possible the official outcome of the Freddie Miller-Pete Sarron featherweight championship boxing bout to be held at Griffith Stadium May 11.

The Prizes.

Second prize—One ticket to the Louis-Schmeling fight.

The Rules.

File your entry on the above coupon, or similar blank, showing just how you think the bout will end. If you think it will end in a knockout, mark the coupon thus, showing the round in which you believe it will end, the winner and the time of knockout. In case of a knockout, the entrant calling the winner and round will win. If two or more call the winner and round, the one coming nearest to the time of knockout will win. If two or more are tied on time, the contestant scoring the fight nearest to correctly in the rounds preceding the knockout will win.

If the bout goes the distance, the contestant whose total score most nearly approximates the average score struck by the referee and two judges at the Sarron-Miller bout will be declared the winner. In case of a tie, the contestant who has the greatest number of rounds scored correctly will be declared the winner.

All ties that cannot otherwise be broken will be decided on the time of receipt of your entry. All scoring must be done according to the rules and regulations of the District Boxing Commission. The commission rule on scoring reads as follows:

"Scoring shall be by the '5-point' system. The winner of any round is marked 5. The loser of any round is marked from '0.1' to '4.9.' When a round is even, each contestant is scored '5.'"

Employes of The Post and their relatives are not eligible to enter this contest.

Lucky Strike Girls Lead Pin League

With but two weeks of activity remaining in the Ladies District League, the race for the championship has narrowed down to a two-team race between Lucky Strike and Rosslyn. Although both teams are tied in number of wins and losses, the Lucky Strike girls hold the edge by reason of their greater pinfall.

Arcadia narrowly missed whitewashing Lucky Strike last night at Arcadia when they dropped the first game by only four pins and scored easy victories in the last two. Temple gave Rosslyn a scare in chalking up a 1,580 set, but the team from across the bridge succeeded in gaining an odd-game decision.

Bill Woods, in third place, were humbled twice by Convention Hall, mainly through the efforts of Mabelle Herring, who scored a much-needed six-pin count in the second fray for a 119 game and finished her string with 344. Swanee gained the edge over National Beer.

Merrick, Washington Boys Club Boxers Win

The combined boxing teams of the Merrick and Washington Boys Clubs won a 5-to-2 decision over the Georgetown Boys Club last night in the latter's gym. Morris, of the losers, won on a technical knockout over Miller, of Washington, in the 100-pound class, feature of the evening.

Mike Tardugno, local boxer, refereed the bouts and the judges were Carso and Thrift.

Results:

$5 Entry Fee Set For Invitation Tourney

Chevy Chase Golf Club to Make Levy for First Time in 26 Years.

CHEVY CHASE GOLF CLUB'S invitation tournament, one of the oldest in America, will cost nonmembers five bucks to play in it this season, it was learned yesterday.

Tradition will be discarded, come May 13-14-15, and for the first time in 26 years an entry fee will be charged.

Decision to assess outside players extended invitations was made at a recent meeting of the golf committee, and was officially announced in the club's schedule released this week. Only members of the club will be permitted to play in the tournament free.

With Chevy Chase the only club in the District staging an invitation tournament this year, and the course a most desirable one, outside golfers are expected to shell out cheerfully. At least that is the thought of several veteran Washington players who received the news with considerable surprise last night.

It was pointed out that the entrance fee was being charged to cut down what in the past have been fat fields.

Only players with handicaps of 14 will be eligible for play.

Men's Events.

April 27 to May 9, French High Commission Cup. Qualifying rounds, April 11 to 25.

May 13, 14, 15, Chevy Chase invitation tournament. May 30, Victor Kauffman Cup. Eighteen holes handicap and match play against par.

June 22, 23, 24, 25, Horstmann Memorial Cup for club championship. Seventy-two holes medal play.

July 4, Hungarian Cup, 18 holes medal play handicap.

Women's Events.

April 29, 30, Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer Cup.

May 26, team match.

May 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, French High Commission Cup.

June 24, intercity team match—Richmond vs. Washington.

Brooklyn Crushes Nats by 10-2 Score

was forced at second by Berres. Mungo proceeded to help win his own game with a single to right-center that scored Hassett and moved Berres to second. Cooney followed with a pop fly to right center that fell harmlessly between Powell, Stone and Myer for another single scoring Berres. It should have been good for only one run, but Powell heaved one into the grandstand in an unexpected and rather dismal exhibition of cutting off runs, and Mungo loped home from third.

Washington got its first run in the seventh, and Whitehill had an important part in its manufacture, pushing Kuhel, who had singled, up to second with a sharp hit to center. Hill completed the cycle with another single to left that brought Kuhel in. Lewis forced Hill before Myer walked, filling the bases and supplying a full house for Powell to play to, but Jake's liner to left was snagged by the be-whiskered Bordagaray.

Lewis' second error, coupled with some of Whitehill's groove pitching, figured in the making of Brooklyn's five ninth-inning runs, but it was mostly Whitehill's pitching or Brooklyn's batting.

Card Arranged For Ft. Myer Carnival

Nine Classes Are Listed for Last of Indoor Horse Shows.

OFFICIALS in charge of the Fort Myer Horse Show, to be held on Tuesday aftrenoon and evening in the riding hall, completed the program yesterday afternoon for the meet, which brings to a close the series of three indoor competitions held there this winter and spring.

Nine classes featuring events for enlisted men and girl students, as well as an unusually interesting list of open contests, has been arranged. Trophies are to be awarded the winners in eight of the classes, while the successful entrant among the enlisted men will receive a cash award.

The student's jumping class will be run off at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, one hour after a preliminary competition to select the 12 best performers among the enlisted men. The finals in the enlisted men's class will be run off beginning at 8 p. m. and will be conducted on a touch-and-out basis.

A warning was sounded by the committee last night that entries will close at midnight on Saturday and must be in the mail by that hour. Entries will be received by Lieut. B. D. Jones, Sixteenth Field Artillery, Fort Myer, Va. Stable facilities also may be reserved through Lieut. Jones.

The riding hall will be turned over to exhibitors for schooling purposes on Saturday afternoon and Monday evening. Schooling will begin at 1:30 o'clock Saturday and continue until 4:45 p. m., while the hall will be open from 7 o'clock until 10:45 p. m. on Monday night.

Wiffy Cox, Back From Augusta, Lauds Horton Smith's Victory

By Dave Herman.

WIFFY COX, the erstwhile Brooklyn Bombardier, came home yesterday. He stayed around Kenwood Golf and Country Club long enough to greet his legion of friends and tell them "It's a tough job trying to win money in golf tournaments these days."

This morning he embarks for Richmond to compete in the Richmond Open, which starts tomorrow.

The King of Gab praised highly Horton Smith's second victory in the Masters' Championship at Bobby Jones' Augusta course, saying it was a most remarkable triumph considering the trying conditions.

"Horton won because he was the best putter for the last 36 holes," the Kenwood pro declared. "I didn't see him play, but they tell me he couldn't miss—even with the course waterlogged and the storm going strong. How many guys can finish with 68-72 under those conditions and wipe out the six-stroke lead which Cooper held?"

"Jones didn't have a chance from the start. No golfer can stay away from competition and hope to make a successful comeback. Bob's nerves were shot. Do you think Dempsey could get in the ring and hope to win back his title? Certainly not."

Cox said the reason so many of the strapping young golfers such as Smith, Henry Picard, Vic Ghezzi and Ray Mangrum were winning tournaments was because they not only were powerful drivers but excellent chippers and putters. This, he pointed out, blasts the old theory that the big man with the big driver is weak with his short game and putter.

"On top of that," he added, "there are so many tournaments these days that nearly every pro who steps up to the tee is equipped with a splendid competitive spirit."

Lawson Little's decision to turn pro isn't worrying Cox. Nor is it worrying any pro, he said.

"Little knows what he's doing, I guess, but he's going to feel different out there with the pros. The going will be tough for him. There are too many paid players who can outplay him."

Hunt Cup Races Will Draw 47 Entries

12 Events on Middleburg Card Saturday and Wednesday.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., April 8.—Forty-seven entries are listed for the six races on Saturday, the opening day of the sixteenth annual spring race meet of the Middleburg Racing Association, which will be held on the beautiful Glenwood race course, estate of D. C. Sands, near Middleburg. The races will continue Wednesday with six races also listed.

Six outstanding timber horses are entered for the Middleburg Hunt Cup, a 4-mile timber race and feature on the day's program.

Entries are Mrs. F. M. Gould's Ostend, winner in 1933 of the Middleburg Hunt Cup, and other big timber races; Mrs. Vadim Makaroff's good brown gelding, Gigolo, winner of the R. Penn Smith Challenge Plate; Charles S. Cheston's Kettle, twice the winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup; Cheston's Gray Cock, Flying Horse Farms The Prophet, a permanent winner of the Virginia Gold Cup, and Mrs. Austin Wadworth's Hotspur II, winner of last year's Maryland Hunt Cup, over Captain Kettle, who came in second.

Softball Team Wins.

On the Air Today

AFTER talking most enthusiastically of Jack Hylton and his revue in this space in the last few weeks, I inadvertently set up last Supday's radio page without a word of the shift of Hylton's show to NBC's Blue network, effective last Sunday night.

And it was a typical Hylton show, with Alex Templeton at his best, Pat O'Malley in his recitative account of Wallace, the lion, eating the Ramsbottom's little boy, Albert, and the orchestra's full performance of Hylton's theme song, "She Shall Have Music," also used now by Kate Smith.

I have contended for a long time that the radio is too varied in its fare, and too many tastes have to be catered to, to make program criticism of any considerable importance. With the obvious exception that some programs are of poorer quality than others. But far be it from me to say that Program A is better than Program B simply because I like it better.

All of which leads up to my recommendation of Hylton's Continental Revue. I like it. Perhaps you won't. But if you missed the first show last Sunday night, make a mark in your date book now to give it a trial next Sunday night. It is not colossal, stupendous nor is it gigantic. But it's very easy to take.

Television will be trotted out for a trial within two months, according to word from the Associated Press. Field test preliminaries are scheduled for late June. But it doesn't mean public television by any means. What it does mean is that engineers believe they have progressed far enough in their locked-door laboratories to bring their apparatus outside and see just what sort of reactions they get under actual broadcasting conditions.

One of the problems remaining to be ironed out is that of standardization of receiving equipment. At present not every system will copy the signals of others. The RCA tests in June will be centered around electrical scanning apparatus developed by Dr. Zworykin, both for transmission and reception. It is different from that developed by Philo T. Farnsworth, of Philadelphia, another big television name.

$70,000,000 Cons. Edison Issue Offered

A group of investment banking houses headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. is offering today $70,000,000 debentures of the Consolidated Edison Co., of New York, formerly the Consolidated Gas Co. The issue is divided into two amounts of $35,000,000 each, one a ten-year 3¼ per cent series due 1946 and the other a 20-year 3½ per cent series due 1956. The 3¼ per cent debentures are priced at 101 per cent and the 3½ per cent issue at 99½.

The proceeds from the sale of the debentures to the underwriters will aggregate $68,862,500, exclusive of accrued interest, and will be applied to the redemption on May 15, 1936, of $50,000,000 20-year 5½ per cent gold debenture bonds at 103½ per cent and interest and to the redemption on July 15, 1936, of the remaining $20,000,000 25 year 5 per cent gold debenture bonds at 103 per cent. The balance required for such redemptions plus the company's estimated expenses in connection with the sale of the debentures will be obtained from the company's current cash.

Associated with Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. in the public offering are: Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Blyth & Co., Inc., Brown Harriman & Co. Inc., Lazard Freres & Company, Inc., The first Boston Corporation, Edward B. Smith & Co., Bonbright & Company, Inc, Lehman Brothers, and Clark, Dodge & Co.

R. C. Jones & Co. Buy Maryland Bonds

Robert C. Jones & Co., investment bankers of Washington, have bought the issue of $350,000 3½ per cent Washington (Maryland) Suburban Sanitary District Bonds, dated April 1, 1936, maturing in 30 or 50 years, they being the highest bidders at a public offering.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Bullish Sentiment Increases in Stock Market on Good Industrial News.

New York, April 8.—Financial markets enjoyed the change for the better in the weather and, although the approach of the holidays at home and abroad served to keep down activity, turnover in stocks increased moderately and prices stiffened. Popular industrial stocks were bid up 1 to 3 points, many of them to their best prices of the year. Bonds were firm in all departments. May wheat closed ¾ of a cent higher at 95¼ cents a bushel.

Most sections of the stock market moved higher. Steel shares rose 1 to 3 points, with U. S. Steel common leading by 2 points to a new high price. Youngstown, Republic and Bethlehem were favorites. Coppers held their following and Anaconda and Kennecott made the usual new high prices. Silver stocks again were strong.

Rubbers created some excitement by moving up 1 to 3 points. U. S. Rubber issues took the lead and the volume of trading for the group was unusually large. Motor shares recovered much of their previous losses. Rails were barely steady. Public utilities were firm. American Water Works and Public Service were better than that, rising a point or so on large volume. Most of the oils were quiet, but Barnsdall found a lively demand.

Railroad equipment shares were mixed. Baldwin was heavy, especially the preferred, but General American Transportation rallied. Losses of 1 to 2 points were taken in Morrell, Union Bag and Continental Diamond Fibre. Seagrams and Greyhound improved a little. Manville jumped more than 3 points. Crown Cork was strong. Airplane prices were lifted.

Bonus and Inflation.

Francs were a shade easier, after their recent upturn, and trading was slower on the approach of the holidays. It was just a year ago that a heavy export movement of gold from Paris had been checked, after much shaking of heads and predictions that the franc would have to be devalued. The outlook for maintenance of the franc on gold and without devaluation now looks much brighter than it did a year ago, largely because of the adjustment of commodity prices in France to those of the rest of the world.

France in the meantime has lost a good deal of capital, which might quickly return if devaluation were decided upon, on the ground that the matter had been settled for a long time to come. On the other hand, if after the coming elections a strong stand be taken against devaluation and the war clouds lift a bit, some repatriation of French funds might take place anyway.

Money markets are dull and are likely so to continue for a long time. The Treasury will have to borrow a good deal more money between now and the end of the fiscal year, the contemplated bonus payments and flood relief being large factors, and partly for that reason the excess reserves of the banks likely will remain large and money rates low. Soon the actual spending of the bonus will tend to give a fillip to the velocity of currency circulation, but from a monetary and credit standpoint the inflationary effects of the bonus payments will be slow in making themselves felt.

Business Outlook.

Whatever may be the proportion of the bonus payments that will go toward reducing debts, enough will find its way into new spending to give a considerable lift to retail trade this summer. That is doubtless counted upon in some businesses to offset the seasonal slackness in trade and hide any tendency toward caution that might crop up as a result of the claims, charges, promises and repudiations, hopes and fears, connected with a Presidential election. Given good crops as a background and something to give courage to customers of the capital goods industries, that they might increase their purchasing, and continued industrial improvement is to be expected.

Wash. Loan Votes 175th Dividend

Arthur Peter, chairman of the board of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., announced yesterday that the directors had declared a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent payable on May 1 to stockholders of record April 23. This will be the 175th consecutive dividend paid by the company.

The books will be closed for transfer of stock from April 23 to May 1, inclusive. President Harry G. Meem reported to the board that the resources had reached an all-time peak and now exceeded $27,000,000.

Jewel Tea Sales.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Jewel Tea Co., Inc., reports sales for the four weeks ended March 21, 1936, at $1,534,026.30, an increase of 6.58 per cent over the similar period during 1935. Sales for the first 12 weeks of this year were put at $4,526,963.53, an increase of 5.64 per cent over the like period in 1935.

Silver Futures Rise in Montreal

Montreal, April 8 (AP).—Sale of 109,000 ounces of silver was made during today's dealings on the commodity exchange here as interest revives with reports from Washington of discussions on "mutual monetary problems" between Chinese and United States Government officials.

Observers said that the heavy trading, the greatest volume to date this year, was based mainly on anticipation that the outcome of the discussions would prove promising for world silver markets, weak for some months. May and September futures were the most active. Prices advanced as much as ½ cent an ounce.

Croswell Agent For Battles Here

Battles & Company, Inc., investment bankers, with principal offices in Philadelphia and New York and other offices in Boston and Wilmington, announced today that George E. Sales to consumers in the United States for the first quarter of 1936 totaled 379,950 units, against 258,093 in the corresponding period of last year. Sales to dealers in the United States in the first quarter totaled 410,314 units against 301,256 in the same quarter of 1936.

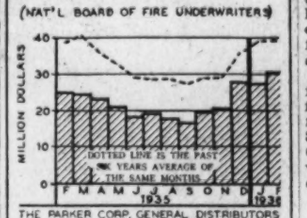
Sales to all dealers in the United States and Canada, together with overseas shipments in the first quarter of last year.

N. Y. Central Financing Is Approved by I. C. C.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved a $62,900,000 refinancing plan of the New York Central Railroad. The road, under the authorization, will issue $40,000,000 of 10-year 3¾ per cent secured sinking fund bonds, $15,000,000 of serial notes bearing interest ranging from 1.5 to 2.6 per cent and $7,900,000 in a five-year 3 per cent promissory note.

The new obligations will be issued to refund short-term outstanding bank loans.

Fire Losses Run Over Last Year



THE PARKER CORP. GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., April 8.—Although fire losses have been running higher this year than in the corresponding months of 1935, they are still well below normal. February losses were 11½ per cent higher than in January and 23 per cent above a year ago. The year 1935 had the smallest fire losses of any year since these records were first published, but they totaled $259,000,000.

Curb Prices Gain With Oils, Metals

New York, April 8 (AP).—Selective buying in oils, metals and industrials provided the central feature in the curb market today. Numerous issues were bid up a point or more, including Gulf Oil, Newmont Mining and Sherwin-Williams. Fractional gainers included a long list of trading favorites, such as Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Sunshine Mining, Lake Shore Mines, Creole Petroleum and International Petroleum.

Shares lagging behind the leaders, but able to display a fairly steady tone, included American Cyanamid "B," Cord Corporation, Humble Oil, Niagara Hudson and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Wheat Is Higher On Canadian Sales

Chicago, April 8 (AP).—Stimulated by news the Canadian government had sold to shippers 5,000,000 bushels of No. 2 Northern in exchange for futures, wheat rose strongly today.

Bethlehem Steel To Open New Mill

Bethlehem, Pa., April 8.—Formal opening of its new mill for the manufacture of Bethanized wire will be held by Bethlehem Steel Co. before a convocation of agricultural, science and financial editors, at its Cambria plant, Johnstown, Pa., April 16.

The new mill unit is part of Bethlehem's $30,000,000 program of improved facilities in making types of steel for consumers' goods. The Bethanizing process provides a new type of zinc coated galvanized wire having a mirrorlike chromium type finish.

Steel Corp. Merges Another Subsidiary

New York, April 8 (AP).—Another step in co-ordinating the manufacturing activities of United States Steel Corporation was taken today when announcement was made that the properties and activities of American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. would be merged as an integral part of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation of which Benjamin F. Fairless, is president. An announcement, following a meeting of the board of directors of the steel corporation:

"In continuation of the policy of more closely co-ordinating the activities of the subsidiary companies, the corporation has approved the unification of the properties and operations of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation."

New Haven Flood Loss Approaches $1,000,000

New Haven, Conn., April 8 (AP).—The losses suffered by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad during the recent floods were fixed today by President Howard S. Palmer at between $750,000 and $1,000,000.

Palmer said the flood damages were responsible for a substantial part of the increase in the road's deficit for March as compared to that of March, 1935.

He estimated the March deficit probably would be about $1,500,000, an increase of $1,200,000 over the deficit for the same month a year ago.

British Blame Hitler in Delay On Air Treaty

Baldwin Cabinet Seeks to Offset Sympathy for Nazis in England.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 8.—The British government, criticized for its foreign policy during parliamentary debate, moved tonight to counteract a wave of German sympathy over the nation.

In a white paper which authoritative sources admitted was counter-propaganda, the government set forth that Germany had delayed for almost two years negotiations for a European air force limitation treaty.

The document showed most of Adolf Hitler's proposals, advanced when Germany reoccupied the Rhineland on March 7, were actually not new, but only reiterations and amplifications of previous suggestions which had failed for one reason or another.

Even as the White Paper was published, new criticism was heard in the House of Lords where Lord Snell, Labor leader, demanded to know "whether Italy is to be allowed to continue to spread Christian civilization in the manner in which she now is performing in Ethiopia.

Launches Twin Assaults.

The Labor peer launched a double-barreled attack on Rhineland developments, asserting his party would not agree to any accord "which left Germany free for an independent attack on Russia" but at the same time scoring the French for placing "black troops on German territory," during the occupation of the Ruhr.

Replying for the government, Lord Halifax, lord privy seal, said the government had done everything possible to halt the East African war and asked:

"Are you prepared that this country should go to war with Italy in order to stop the war in Ethiopia?"

The British White Paper stressed two factors as responsible for Germany's delay in pressing for the air pact.

"On November 21 (1935) the French Ambassador at Berlin saw Hitler and emphasized the importance which the French attached to continuance of negotiations for the air pact," the documentary presentation said. "He was told progress was impossible during a continuance of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute."

Still later, on December 13, Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador to Germany, urged the chancellor to continue negotiations for the air treaty, the White Paper related.

The period covered by the document began June 27, 1934, and ended March 7, 1936, when Leopold von Hoesch, German Ambassador to London, told British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that Nazi troops had marched into the Rhine zone.

Pedestrian Safeguard Organization Formed

Baltimore, April 8 (AP).—A corporation designed to protect pedestrians was incorporated today by the State tax commission. The full title of the non-stock corporation is "The Association for the Protection of the Pedestrian, Inc." Its purpose was listed as "to try to make the roads, street crossings and thoroughfares safe throughout the State of Maryland for the pedestrians to walk on and to protect the pedestrian's rights to the proper use of such roads, street crossings and thoroughfares and to otherwise protect the pedestrian."

Listed as incorporators were Charles Gunther, Lansdowne, and Stephen Synowski, Frank Ballman and Harry Helwig, Halethorpe.

Japanese Seek To Split Soviet, Russia Charges

Creation of Puppet State in Mongolia, Northern China Cited as Aim.

Moscow, April 8 (AP).—The government organ, Izvestia, tonight accused a portion of the Japanese military command of plotting to repeat a former attempt to drive a wedge between European and Far Eastern Russia.

The plan, the newspaper asserted, would follow the outline of the ill-fated campaign of Baron Unger in 1921 by an attack on the Lake Baikal region from Outer Mongolia.

The Soviet Union, therefore, acted in the legitimate interests of self-defense in completing a mutual assistance treaty with the Mongolian National Republic, the paper added.

The first step would be the creation by the Japanese of a puppet state in north China and Inner Mongolia. Then, using authorization of certain Chinese generals as the basis for further action, the Japanese would attempt to occupy the whole of Outer Mongolia. From this point, they presumably would drive northward to insert a wedge into Siberian territory which, if accomplished and maintained, would detach the far eastern section from the western or European portion.

Rejects China Protest.

Moscow, April 8 (AP).—The Soviet government informed the Chinese charge d'affaires tonight it could not accept China's protest against the Soviet-Outer Mongolian Republic mutual assistance pact.

Russia declared the protest was not "well founded." It promised the treaty signifies no territorial claims in either China or Mongolia and does not contradict the Peking agreement of 1924, in which the Soviet Union recognized Chinese sovereignty over Outer Mongolia.

Mussolini Vows To Annihilate Enemy's Army

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Rome, April 8.—Ethiopia's armies must and will be annihilated in order to safeguard the security of Italy's African colonies, Premier Benito Mussolini told his cabinet today.

While Il Duce promised early victory in East Africa he assured his ministers that development of Italy's continental land, sea and air forces will continue with "ever increasing rhythm."

The cabinet meeting was called suddenly after important developments at Geneva, where the League of Nations Committee of Thirteen is sitting to consider Italio-Ethiopian hostilities.

"Annihilation of the Ethiopian armies cannot fail nor will it be delayed," Mussolini said.

Praises Troops Morale.

"The victory is all the more important since the Emperor's guards were trained, equipped and armed by Europeans," Il Duce said. "The morale of our soldiers in East Africa is splendid."

Meanwhile Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commanding Italian expeditionary forces in East Africa, reported in an official communique that all along the road to Dessye, Galla tribesmen, revolting against Ethiopian rule, are attacking the retreating imperial forces, inflicting heavy losses in the ranks of the remnants of the Emperor's vanquished army.

"In large sections of Gondar, Semien and Wolkait numerous chiefs have submitted to our commanders," Badoglio announced. "Markets in all occupied territory have resumed normal activities."

Dessye to Be Invested.

Press messages from Asmara forecast occupation of Dessye by Friday. Dessye long has been the Emperor's field headquarters. Units of three Italian army corps have started to advance southward in large numbers from Korem, where their supply base has been established.

Today's cabinet meeting was the first in the history of Italy's Fascist regime to convene without advance announcement. It was called by the ministry of the interior under the presidency of Mussolini. Originally it has been scheduled for Saturday.

Discussing the general situation with his ministers, Mussolini praised the aviation industry and its workers for the volume of output. He revealed weekly increases in airplane production.

Says Sanctions Fail.

"Italy's fight against sanctions is most successful," he said.

"The fight will continue, and the security of our colonies will be reached fully with total annihilation of the Ethiopian armies. This annihilation cannot fail. Nor will it be delayed."

Detailed official reports from Badoglio show that Italian victories in the Lake Ashangi area have added 29,166 square miles of Ethiopian territory to the regions conquered.

Territory conquered on the northern front since the start of the campaign now totals 38,610 square miles. Advance positions of Italian troops now are 186 miles from the old Eritrean boundary. Italian columns are advancing along a front 372 miles long.

Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Italy, visited the American Embassy in Rome today, but there was no explanation of the move.

League Inquiry Ordered

poison gas and among them was an affidavit of a British physician of an ambulance unit, saying that between March 1 and 18 he treated "several hundred Ethiopian men, women and children suffering from burns caused by mustard gas."

There was simiar testimony by Red Cross workers of other nations.

The session at which Eden protested against what he called was Italy's use of gas was held in secret. He recalled that both Italy and Ethiopia signed an international convention here in 1925 against the use of asphyxiating gases, of which the United States was a signatory.

It was decided to ask the International Red Cros for information it has on the subject.

A protest against the "paralyzation" of sanctions against Italy was filed by Mexico, saying

"It is our duty to inform you that Mexico believes that since March, when peace negotiations were suggested, everyone supposed that would not signify either paralyzation or delay in application of sanctions against the country branded an aggressor.

"Furthermore, when the suggestion for conciliation was accepted, it was understood the conciliation should attain its goal within a very brief delay—a delay of 48 hours for a reply from the countries, and suspension of hostilities during the negotiations."

Eden declined to comment on the French peace plan for Europe, explaining he had not had time to study it.

British quarters, however, cited section 8 of the French memorandum in support of Eden's strong stand against use of poison gas. This section reminds Hitler that France signed an anti-poison gas convention in 1925.
